EXHAUST LIKELY PLACES IN SEARCH FOR MARTIN

Ships Hunting, Lost Flyers Explore Every Obscure Cove in Vain; Planes Quit Atka Today

BY EVAN J. DAVID

[Copyright, 1924, by United States, Canada and Great Britain by North American Newspaper Alliance.]

ON BOARD THE COAST GUARD CUTTER ALGONQUIN (via Chignik, Alaska) May 4.—After nearly ninety-six hours of constant search along the desolate coast line of the Shumagin Islands, we are still without trace of Maj. Frederick L. Martin, commander of the round-the-world flight, and his mechanic, Alva Harvey. The watch in the crow's nest has been changed every two hours and most of the crew are on deck, scanning the blue waters of the Pacific with telescopes and binoculars.

In the Algonquin steamed into dozens of unexplored coves and inlets I often imagined that I saw a flashlight, signalling to us. It is to find, when we ran in and ignited the shore, nothing but green forks and no sign of life. Did Martin did not fly north as the natives say they saw him headed, he ought to be somewhere in these islands or in the bays on the south shore of the Alaska peninsula. Up to tonight none of these obscure places have been visited by some kind of craft or had a sign of the flyers.

WEATHER FAVORABLE

Despite the weather continues mild and warm, with the barometer dropping below normal after nightfall. We have learned that four natives are on the bay across the Alaskan peninsula from Chignik, forty miles by the flying line. If the flyers are not at Chignik Lake, one of the natives will return to Chignik and the other two will proceed to Black Lake. The journey by sea to Black Lake is being made on the water in bidarkas, as the river and the lake are now frozen up to midnight.

Later that the Algonquin met the Coast Survey schooner Pioneer at Sanak and Paul Islands. A conference was conducted on board the vessel. Capt. Lokeng, a colleague of Maj. Martin, is believed to have steamed into Dutch Harbor to confer on the south coast up to the head of Kukuka Bay. There he met the two natives who had reached across the peninsula looking for the flyers. This neck of land is 30 miles wide and there are no roads on it. Across this neck of land the three other airmen hiked, several weeks ago, to their route to Unalaska. Search in that region has been searching for days but the oil fuel is now running low. Capt. Taggett is running up to Chignik to look further in the major and to see if every-

AIR MAIL TO SPAN UNION

Skyline Service Begins July 1

Planes Will Fly Between the Atlantic and Pacific in Thirty-five Hours

Angelenos to Send Letters by San Francisco and New York Transit

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Daily air mail service between New York and San Francisco with deliveries within thirty-five hours or from one morning to the following evening, will begin July 1, it was announced today by Postmaster-General New. The time of transit will be cut to twenty-four hours probably within a few months, the Postmaster-General believes.

Not only will people on the two coasts benefit by the rapid deliveries, but those of the country generally will be enabled to transmit their letters more swiftly, as special air mail stamps will carry them from any city for transmission from coast to coast or from intermediate cities for further dispatch by train.

Special air mail postage has been arranged and special stamps in three denominations, 8-cent, 16-

FOES AIM AT PRESIDENT

Veto Campaign Their Hope

Democrats and Insurgent Republicans Plan to Embarrass Coolidge

Bonus, Postal Salaries, Tax, Rail and Farmer Relief Bills as Ammunition

BY ROBERT BARRY
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Unable to touch President Coolidge through the scandal mill, Republican insurgents and Democrats are preparing to embarrass him, if possible, through adoption of radical legislation which he would be expected to veto. Most of it is class legislation that carries a thin veneer of "progressivism."

Mr. Coolidge sought to demonstrate effectively yesterday that he does not fear to meet the issue in his veto of the Bursum omnibus pension bill. He adhered strictly to his most recent New York speech for economy. The Bursum bill would have cost $242,000,000 for the first five years and $415,000,000 for the first ten years.

The soldiers' bonus bill is before the President. He has indicated clearly he will veto it. His decision probably will be revealed before the end of next week. Congress can re-enact it over his veto but the responsibility would repose on Capitol Hill, not at the White House.

FIGHT DUE TODAY

The fight for the Barkley-Howell bill to abolish the Railroad Labor Board and set up a pseudo-arbitration system, estimated to cost $1,000,000 a year for administrative purposes alone, will open tomorrow in the House. A motion will be offered to discharge the Committee on Interstate Commerce from further consideration of the measure. Once it reaches the floor, it will become a tail to the kite of radical railroad legislation.

Over the protest of the President and Postmaster-General New, the House Committee on Postoffices has instructed Representative Rouse of Kentucky to report favorably the postal salaries increase bill, estimated to add $70,000,000 to the pay roll the first year and reach eventually $125,000,000 additional a year.

The farm bloc is ready to open the battle for the McNary-Haugen bill to form a government trading corporation to guarantee prices to the farmer for his wheat, corn, rye, oats, barley and live stock. The cost has been estimated to run as high as $200,000,000.

CHAIRMAN BUSY

Chairman Haugen of the House Committee on Agriculture was to have discussed the measure with the President this morning but was too busy getting ready to report to the House. The President stated his objections to the general principles of the legislation in his message to Congress in December. There is genuine doubt the bill can command a majority in the Senate.

The Norris amendment to the tax bill, adopted Friday for virtually full publicity on income tax returns is but another of the moves designed to wreck the Mellon plan and invite a Coolidge veto of tax reduction on the eve of a Presidential campaign. The administration leaders in the Senate have abandoned hope for the Mellon votes on income and are fighting to prevent their going higher than the 37½ per cent voted by the House.

Senator Norbeck of South Dakota, purposes to offer the McNary-Haugen bill as a rider to the pending tax bill on the theory, obviously, that a vote might be forced in that way and administration leaders foreslalled in their efforts to let it die on the calendar.

REBELS ON RAMPAGE

The whole purpose of the Republican insurgent activities is to begin at this time the advocacy of radical legislation such as the Brookharts, Magnus Johnsons, La Follettes, Wheelers and Dills promised in their campaigns of 1922. They were diverted by their investigation orgy. Now that the scandal sessions have become tiresome to the public they are bringing forth the fifty-seven varieties of class legislation.

These gentlemen were free with their promises in the 1922 campaign. They were going to enact the most radical sort of legislation to relieve the farmer. They were going to tear the Esch-Cummins Transportation Act to shreds, reduce rates and raise wages to railroad workers. They were going to lower taxes on moderate incomes and "soak the rich." They were going to give pensions to everyone and a bonus to World War veterans. They have votes to put through their insurance bonus but it is not that promised in 1922.

Meantime, Magnus Johnson, ceasing to be a political novelty, has been twiddling his thumbs during Senate debates and the dome of the Capitol still is in the same old place. He is up for election again this year. He has not proposed a single farm-relief measure. His world-peace plan was a weak gesture which hardly anyone noticed. The measures he has offered have been mostly private pension bills.

A June adjournment would be blocked if necessary to permit consideration and adoption of the various "progressive" measures. Senators Lodge, Watson and Curtis are prepared for the onslaught. They are hopeful of defeating the extremists. They cannot expect to do so while the Democrats continue to follow the leadership of LaFollette. The President is the only hope of the conservatives.

Southland Campaign Committee Predicts Sweeping Victory for President

Predicting a sweeping victory for President Coolidge in California tomorrow, the Southern California Campaign Committee, consisting of Frank F. Merriam, Speaker of the California Assembly; former Lieut.-Gov. A. J. Wallace, Ralph Arnold, chairman of the Los Angeles County Republican Central Committee; Mrs. Florence Collins Porter and George B. Bush, yesterday issued the following statement:

The campaign in California to elect a delegation to the Republican National Convention pledged to the nomination and election of President Calvin Coolidge has been successful. The President will carry the State by a large majority, probably between 70,000 and 100,000.

FAITH JUSTIFIED

We feel justified in making a positive assertion on the eve of this election because of the general support accorded the efforts of the loyal Coolidge workers in this State and because of the issues involved.

The candidacy of Mr. Coolidge, already indorsed by so large a majority of our sister States as to insure his nomination virtually by acclamation, is a constructive candidacy and on that basis his campaign in California has been conducted. We have tried consistently to keep strictly to the issues and to ignore personalities and personal attacks.

REASONS FOR PRIDE

We are proud of our candidate, proud of the principles, ideals and policies for which he stands, and feel that California Republicans will accord him the same wholehearted indorsement and support he has received in the nation at large.

Our only concern now is that thousands of his well-wishers in California may fail to vote in tomorrow's State-wide primary. It is, therefore, our earnest and urgent recommendation that every Republican elector in California go to the polls tomorrow—and that they all vote for candidates for delegates pledged to Calvin Coolidge, President of the United States.

COOLIDGE CHIEFS URGE NEEDS OF STATE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—The following final statements were issued today by the State headquarters of the League of Coolidge Republican Clubs, the documents being by Marshall Hale, president of the league, and by Mark L. California's plurality for the President's ticket of delegates on Tuesday will be just as large as California cares to make it. The same tide of aroused public opin-

GASES FROM POTATO POT KILL WOMAN

Carbon Monoxide Created by Burning Vegetables is Held Cause of Death

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, May 4. — Carbon monoxide, generated by burning potatoes, was declared by a Coroner's jury to have caused the death of Mrs. Caroline Showerman, 73 years of age, who was found dead in the kitchen of her home. Neighbors who discovered the body said a pot of potatoes that had boiled dry was burning on the stove.

At the inquest it was explained that, ordinarily, potatoes in carbonizing would give off carbon dioxide gas, but if the oxygen in a tightly closed room had been greatly exhausted, this gas would be changed to carbon monoxide. The room was tightly closed, and it was decided this was what had caused the death of the aged woman.

Wife Covers Jailer While Mate Escapes

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

ROCHESTER (N. Y.) May 4.—Howard M. Keavin, scheduled to go on trial on May 19 for the murder of a policeman, escaped from the Ontario County Jail at Canandaigua this afternoon when his wife and sister held up at pistol point a lone jailer. Keavin's wife escaped with him in an automobile.

The two women called at the jail and asked to see the prisoner, according to Deputy Smith, the jailer. Smith brought Keavin from his cell into the office where the women were waiting. Keavin's wife drew two revolvers and ordered the jailer not to move.

The prisoner and his wife then ran from the jail to a waiting automobile driven by an unidentified man.

WAR PAGAN, BISHOPS AVER

Methodist Episcopacy Urges America to Enter World Court and Condemns Divorce

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) May 4.—The union of nations in the cause of peace and the union of the Methodist churches in America in the cause of Christianity were indorsed by the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church in their addresses to the quadrennial general conference in session here today. The report, the official pronouncement of the episcopacy, was presented by Bishop Joseph F. Berry of Philadelphia, senior bishop of the church.

Limitation of the church's ban on amusements to those which cannot be enjoyed in the name of Jesus Christ was recommended by the bishops, who also suggested a means of combatting the divorce problem and favored prohibition enforcement and restrictions of immigration.

WAR JUNGLE LAW

They reaffirmed the church's fundamental doctrines in view of present-day theological controversy. Condemning war as "a law of the jungle" and "organized revenge," the bishops advocated the entry of the United States into the World Court.

"The Church of Jesus Christ," the report read, "must never again quietly acquiesce in national or international politics which promote warlike temper and attitudes. It must do more than mildly protest. The whole strength of the united churches of Christ must be thrown with compelling force against warlike policies and preparations.

"Our position must be that international warfare, unless undisputably in self-defense or defense of humanity, is a monstrosity of the pagan past which has absolutely no proper place in the program of the modern world. We respectfully remind the government of the United States that we expect the Federal authorities to discover a method other than war to settle international disputes."

STAND BY COOLIDGE

Emphasizing the duty of America to use its vast resources and wealth for the succor of other nations, the bishops indorsed the statement of President Coolidge that the nation could not main-

VICTORY FOR DAWES PLAN WON BY GERMAN PARTIES

Coalition Triumphs in Election as Reds Fail to Show Strength; France Makes New Offer

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

BERLIN, May 4.—A Parliamentary coalition comprising the Socialist, Clerical, Democratic and People's parties, which will command a sufficient majority to put the provisions of the Dawes report into execution, has been assured by the general elections held throughout Germany today. This is the conclusion reached late tonight at government headquarters after a competent appraisal of the returns already received.

Assuming that the People's party and the Socialists continue to maintain their position in today's balloting, as reflected in the early returns, it is even probable that the four-party bloc will have sufficient backing in the new Reichstag to enable it to carry it through the constitutional amendments with only limited outside aid from the independent factions, of which there will be several groups.

While the Nationalists and Communists show decisive gains, it is not considered that their increases will constitute a menace to the policies to which the four coalition parties are pledged.

RADICALS WEAK

The ultra-reactionaries, led by Gen. Ludendorff, failed to develop their expected strength.

The count of the ballots is proceeding extremely slowly owing to the lateness of the incoming returns and the complications arising through the presence of twenty-three party tickets on the official ballot. Only 150 out of 2000 precincts in Greater Berlin had reported by midnight.

Despite the delays the government and political leaders already are convinced that the cross-section survey afforded by incomplete reports from all sections of Germany, including the occupied areas, decisively indicates the failure of the Radical and Reactionary parties to stampede the voters.

Both the German People's party, headed by Gustave Stresemann and the United Socialists have had fewer defections than predicted and while the Socialists are severely pressed by the Communists in the Ruhr, Saxony and other industrial sectors, it is believed that their loss of mandates will be smaller than their leaders were inclined to expect three days ago. The People's party also is succeeding in keeping well to the front in districts where it was forced to face Nationalist opposition.

POINCARE MAKES NOTABLE CONCESSION

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

LONDON, May 4.—The Belgian Premier and Foreign Minister M. Theunis and M. Hymans, returned to Brussels this morning, thoroughly optimistic after a week-end conference, which is considered here to have been of vital importance in the adjustment of the Allied views of the reparations problem.

It is known from authoritative sources that the Belgians brought a proposal from Premier Poincare which represents one of the greatest concessions the French Premier has made—a proposal to evacuate the Ruhr completely in exchange for alternative sanctions. Premier Poincare's suggestions for such sanctions is a blockade of German ports by the Allied fleets in case of any default of reparations payments. Such a blockade should go into effect automatically upon the default and the Allies should unitedly tell Germany so.

DEEP IMPRESSION

Prime Minister MacDonald avoided answering this but Poincare's obvious desire for Allied unity manifested by such a proposal is said to have made a deep impression on the Prime Minister.

In the verbal message which the Belgians will transmit to Premier Poincare for Prime Minister MacDonald he declares he appreciates fully France's distrust of Ger-

Hopes of All Exiles Center on Grand Duke as New Leader

Nicholas, Cousin of ex-Czar, Ready to Act When Time is Ripe

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

PARIS, May 4.—Exiled Russians living in Paris are greatly cheered by reports arriving almost daily from Moscow of an impending change. The struggle for power between the Stalin triumvirate, including also Kameneff and Rykoff, and the moderate groups is growing more tense, in the opinion of Russians of distinction here, who believe that the present regime is toppling. The hopes of both Monarchists and Liberals seem to unite on Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaivitch, second cousin of the former emperor and once in command of the Russian armies.

The Grand Duke is living quietly in a small country house some twenty miles from Paris.

"I never until now have received a representative of the press," said he to a correspondent of the Associated Press in conversation today. "However, I make on this occasion an exception to this rule for two reasons, first, because my name has been frequently used of late and opinions and views have been attributed to me to which I am entirely strange, and, second, because I am glad to see in you the representative of a nation whose relations toward Russia cannot fail to evoke in the Russian people a sense of the deepest gratitude."

SEES RELIEF NEAR

On being asked to review the present situation in Russia, the Grand Duke remarked:

"What is going on in Russia is well known to all who take a real interest in the subject of arbitrary dealings, reign of terror,

TOKIO HAS NEW PROPOSAL

Joint High Commission Plan Studied by Japanese in Seeking Way Out of Exclusion

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TOKIO, May 4.—A plan for a joint high commission consisting of an equal number of American and Japanese members to take up the question of immigration was placed before the government at a meeting at the Prime Minister's residence yesterday and attended by Premier Kiyoura, Baron Matsui, Minister of Foreign Affairs; Count Uchida, thrice former Minister of Foreign Affairs; Dr. Dan, of Mitsui & Co., and the sponsors of the plan, Viscount Shibusawa and Viscount Kaneko.

The project is not a new one, having been advocated for several years past by both Viscount Shibusawa and Viscount Kaneko, but it had never previously met with approval of the Japanese government, to which it last was submitted in February of this year without success.

CHANGE OF ATTITUDE

The Japanese government now, however, seems to have changed its attitude and is prepared to sound out American public opinion, believing if the effective date for the exclusion clause is set ahead there might be time for a joint commission to meet and consider the problem and make its recommendations to both governments.

It was stated at the foreign office today that the plan would not be communicated to Washington at the present time.

The tension which existed last week has been relieved by the news of the possibility of a compromise on the immigration question, although great uneasiness still prevails owing to the uncertainty of the outcome. It generally is believed that if the date for enforcement of the exclusion clause is postponed Japan would agree to enter into negotiations with the American government for a new agreement restricting immigration and the government then might submit the plan of a joint commission.

UNPLEASANT TONE

There has been little comment on the proposal of President Coolidge as the terms of the proposal are only vaguely known, but what comment that has appeared in the vernacular press has not been of a receptive tone. The Nichi Nichi says:

"The solution proposed by President Coolidge is not a solution but a postponement of the solution. It is far worse than we suspected, and we must raise a strong protest against it. The gentlemen's agreement was not a voluntary but a forced act and it is not a gentleman but a coward that does things under duress. The same may be said of a second gentleman's agreement in a more emphatic manner, because of the increased duress."

NATION'S GREAT TO CONVENTION

Cleveland Roster to Hold Famous Names

Veteran Depew Again Will Aid in Nomination

Borah is Likely to Present Coolidge's Name

BY ROBERT B. ARMSTRONG
"Times" Staff Correspondent
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Among the delegates elected to the Cleveland convention are many of the outstanding figures in the Republican party.

The list includes Cabinet officers, leading Senators, members of the House, governors, national committeemen, and men who have helped to mold the nation's history during the past half-century.

One of the most picturesque and imposing personages to take his seat on the convention floor will be the venerable and beloved Chauncey M. Depew, delegate at large from New York, who has hardly missed a Republican National Convention since that of sixty years ago in which he participated in the renomination of Abraham Lincoln.

Depew, who recently celebrated the ninetieth anniversary of his birth, served his State for twelve years in the United States Senate and, in 1888, came near being nominated for President himself. He has known more or less intimately every President since and including Lincoln and still is known as one of the country's greatest orators.

Two Cabinet members who will be present and vote for the nomination of their chief, President Coolidge, are Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon and Secretary of the Interior Hubert Work. Secretary Mellon will head the powerful delegation of seventy-nine delegates from Pennsylvania, of whose "big seven" he is a member, while Secretary Work will come to the convention as a delegate at large from Colorado.

SLEMP ON LIST

Conspicuous also will be Campbell Bascomb Slemp, secretary to the President and chief strategist of the Coolidge preconvention campaign. He is a delegate at large from Virginia.

Not the least interesting delegate in the convention will be former Atty-Gen. Harry M. Daugherty, just elected a member of the Ohio "big seven," though the low man in the primary vote. Driven from the Coolidge Cabinet by a flood of hostile criticism, subjected to denunciation on the Senate floor and made the target of reckless and irresponsible testimony before the Senate Sommittee, he will appear at Cleveland to vote for the nomination of the man who requested his resignation.

Four years ago at Chicago it was Daugherty who, though defeated for delegate-at-large from his home State, triumphed in the nomination of Warren G. Harding for President. This year he will sit in the convention which is to nominate the President's successor.

In the memorable convention of 1920 the influence of the United States Senate in the Republican party came to its climax with the nomination for the first time of a member of that body. This year the Senate will play a minor role but still an important one. At least fifteen Republican Senators will be delegates in the convention and one of them—James C. Wadsworth, Jr., of New York—probably will be permanent chairman.

BORAH MAY LEAD

Others in the list are Senators George Wharton Pepper and David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania; Frank B. Willis and Simeon D. Fess of Ohio; William E. Borah and Frank R. Gooding of Idaho; Richard P. Ernst of Kentucky; Lawrence C. Phipps of Colorado; Peter Norbeck of South Dakota; Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts; William B. McKinley of Illinois, and Walter E. Edge of New Jersey.

Senator Pepper, famed as a lawyer, achieved additional distinction recently by his address before the Republican State convention of Maine, when he asserted that the late President Harding had made "a grave mistake" when he appointed Harry M. Daugherty Attorney-General. Daugherty's hot retort, declaring that "blame it on Harding" would not prove a winning slogan in the approaching campaign, has become a political classic.

One convention bet as safe as the nomination of Coolidge is that there will be no fraternizing between Pepper and Daugherty at Cleveland.

Another Senator who will attract attention on the convention floor will be Borah of Idaho. Borah is a national figure. Probably no member of the Senate since the days of Webster has commanded more universal respect than this man. Intellectually he towers high above his colleagues. As an orator and debator he has few equals. His grasp on foreign affairs amazes foreign diplomats and his mastery of domestic problems has become a byword.

Borah is one of the few members of Congress who measures up to Presidential proportions. He is one of the President's most valued counsellors and it is likely to be he who places the name of Calvin Coolidge in nomination before the Cleveland convention.

ROOT HAS PART

Senator Wills of Ohio will be one of the most popular and best-known delegates. He played a conspicuous part in the last two Republican conventions. In 1916, as Governor of Ohio, he placed in nomination before the Chicago convention the name of Theodore E. Burton as Ohio's favorite son in a speech which is still the talk of convention-goers. In 1920, it was he who presented the name of Warren G. Harding in a speech which had much to do with turning the tide to the Ohioan, who five months later was triumphantly elected.

Senator Lodge, Republican leader of the Senate, who was temporary and permanent chairman of the 1920 convention, will be seen at Cleveland as head of the Massachusetts delegation which this year is assured of the honor of seeing one of its sons nominated for the Presidency.

Senator Norbeck will be the only Senator to vote for Hiram Johnson in the South Dakota delegation which he heads is pledged to Johnson.

A former Senator ranking high in the party's councils who will go to Cleveland is Elihu Root, a member of New York's "big seven." He was temporary chairman and "keynoter" at the convention of 1904 at which Theodore Roosevelt was nominated. Again in 1912 he presided over the memorable convention which renominated William H. Taft, but ended in the dramatic bolt of the Roosevelt delegates and the creation of the Progressive party.

Among the prominent Republicans who will not show up at Cleveland will be Gifford Pinchot, Governor of Pennsylvania, whose hostility to Secretary Mellon and the whole Coolidge administration resulted in his overwhelming and humiliating defeat for delegates-at-large by the Republicans of his home State. In his place will be Ralph Beaver Strasburger, the politically ambitious young millionaire who, four years ago, largely financed Hiram Johnson's primary campaign. He is an ardent Coolidge man.

OTHER NOTABLES

Some of the other notables to be found among the delegates will be Gov. Percival P. Baxter, the bachelor Governor of Maine, who ordered the flag over the State Capitol unfuried at half mast when his pet dog died; Charles A. Dawson, Republican nominee for Governor of Kentucky last year; Hannibal F. Hamlin of Maine, a descendant of Hannibal Hamlin, who was Abraham Lincoln's first Vice-President; Representative Richard S. Aldrich of Rhode Island, son of the late Senator Aldrich; R. Livingston Beeckman, former Governor of Connecticut; Fred W. Estabrook, New Hampshire's silver-tongued spellbinder; Mayor Kendrick of Philadelphia, who appointed Gen. Smedley D. Butler of the Marines to clean up that "corrupt but contented" city; Representative William S. Vare, boss of the famous G.O.P. machine of Philadelphia; Gov. John J. Blaine of Wisconsin, who may place Senator Robert M. La Follette's name in nomination, and John T. Adams of Iowa, retiring chairman of the Republican National Committee, and William M. Butler of Massachusetts, his successor.

The Cleveland convention will be notable also for its women delegates. Never befome will a political party convention have had so many fair participants, both as delegates at large and district delegates, not to mention alternates.

World Air Cruisers Continue Flight Without Leader

First Pictures of Army Planes at Far North Harbor

thing is being done to expedite the search through the snow forty miles north to the Bering Sea. The cannery boat at Port Moller is exploring all the bays and inlets on the Bering Sea side of the peninsula up to a point 100 miles north, where Maj. Martin should have come out, if he continued in that direction.

ICE HALTS BOAT

The motorboat dispatched by Superintendent Nichols from the cannery at False Pass to Port Moller on the Bering Sea has not yet reported to the Algonquin. The Port Moller boats have reported that they could not get farther than twelve miles off Black Hills because of the ice. They are now trying the other direction. They have seen nothing of the flyers.

At the invitation of Maj. Martin I had lunch with him and his mechanic, Harvey, ashore just before we raised anchor to proceed down the Alaskan peninsula to be stationed about half-way to Unalaska, where he would pass over us. Maj. Martin had promised to fly over the Pioneer at Kings Cove and then go over the Algonquin at False Pass, landing near us, if he could not go on, and dropping a note for our boats to pick up in case he was proceeding to Unalaska without stopping. Of course, he never flew over either ship.

When I got ashore, Harvey had finished chopping the ice from the pontoons and the major had gotten his gas drums ready to refill. They were both in the best of spirits at the prospect of an early hop to join their waiting comrades at Dutch Harbor.

"David," said Maj. Martin, "I want to show you how superstitious some people are. Here are a few of the many kinds of lucky omens my friends have given me to assure my safe flight around the world. I certainly appreciate their good wishes."

MANY LUCK CHARMS

First he showed me a rabbit's foot with the seal of California attached; then there was an ivory walrus tusk presented by the Hudson's Bay Company at Seattle.

"They said in presenting it," continued the major, "that they had done so much exploring in the North that their good luck would surely go with me if I carried it."

On it was inscribed a motto of Magellan when he sailed around the world, which read: "It matters not; God hath many things in store for us."

"A fellow ought to go a long way on a faith like that," remarked the major.

There were a dozen other gifts, a wrist watch from the Douglas Airplane Company; a $5 bill, containing the signatures of two friends who promised to redeem it at twice its face value if he brought it safely back to them; a silver plate with the figure of St. Christopher, presented by Father O'Connor of Chicago; a handful of coins and lucky pennies; several pennants from clubs and organizations and a Bible from Mother Tush of San Francisco, known to all air pilots of the Pacific Coast.

FAITH IN PRAYER

"Personally, I don't believe in luck," concluded the major. "But you can say this for me; I am confident that I will be able to lead this flight around the world to a successful conclusion."

"I'll do that," I replied.

The major's words after he made that wonderful flight from Kanatak to Chignik through a blinding snow storm, a few days before, came to my mind:

"I prayed, and I believe in prayer"—the simple statement of a brave gentleman.

"Good-by, Harvey," I called to the mechanic in the plane.

"Harvey never says much but he is always on the job," smiled Maj. Martin.

"Good-by, Major, I'll shake with you in Unalaska," I added.

"I hope so, David," was all he said as I pushed out for the Coast Guard cutter.

As he faded out of sight I thought of the note in my pocket, which he had given me to radio from the Algonquin to his small son, Master John Robert Martin, in San Diego:

"Birthday greetings from dad, at Chignik."

THREE AVIATORS PLAN HOP-OFF TODAY

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

DUTCH HARBOR (Alaska) May 4.—While the crew of the revenue cutter Algonquin at Chignik are directing a thorough search for Maj. Frederick L. Martin and his mechanic, Sergt. Alva Harvey, who have been missing since Wednesday, preparations are being made at Atka Island for a hop-off tomorrow morning, weather permitting, by the air cruisers New Orleans, Chicago and Boston on a 530-mile flight to Chicagoff, Attu Island.

The coast guard cutter Haida left here early this morning for Atka to give further service to the flyers if needed. It is expected there tomorrow morning.

The Elder, a Bureau of Fisheries vessel, is proceeding from Atka to Attu, to receive the flyers when they reach that point.

Although a low fog was encountered throughout the flight, the planes New Orleans, Chicago and Boston, piloted respectively by Lieuts. Lowell H. Smith, Erik H. Nelson and Leigh Wade, covered the 350 miles from Dutch Harbor to Atka yesterday in four hours and fifteen minutes. Reports from Atka state that all the airmen are in good condition.

Searchers at Chignik still entertain the hope that Maj. Martin and Sergt. Harvey are alive and well. It is believed likely the two airmen were forced down in some isolated place where they will eventually be found.

MOTHER PRAYS FOR LOST FLYER-SON

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

RICHMOND (Va.) May 4.—The mother and sister of Maj. Frederick L. Martin, commander of the United States army squadron of airplanes, are praying the lost aviator is still alive in the wilds of Alaska and have not despaired of his life. His sister, Mrs. Irwin Jackson, 116 North Seventeenth street, believes his mechanical genius will overcome any defects in his equipment. His mother, Mrs. Nancy Martin, whose home is in Mobridge, S. D., had been visiting with her daughter here until Thursday when she departed for Connersville, Ind., to visit a sister.

"My mother was discouraged when we heard of Frederick's trouble a few days ago," said Mrs. Jackson, "but she is sure he is all right now. Of course, she had a mother's hesitation about his going but he wanted to so much that she consented. She follows all the news dispatches closely and although she cannot overcome her natural maternal anxiety she feels sure he will come through all right."

Maj. Martin's last visit here was in August, 1922. He was reared about eighteen miles south of here in Union county. Another sister, Mrs. George Mercer, lives in Anderson; one brother, Joseph, in Detroit, and another, Louis, in Mount Clemens, Mich.

COALITION WINS GERMANY VOTE

many's good faith and the fact that militarism across the Rhine is suspected by him in view of Berlin's attitude toward inter-Allied military control.

He wishes to give France the necessary security, not by a military alliance, which is contrary to public opinion, but under the machinery of the League of Nations. He desires to come to an agreement fully as ardently as does Premier Poincare, and he will not allow technical details to become an obstacle in the final settlement.

VICTORY FOR DAWES'S PLAN

In his answer, he avoids all those thorny questions on pledges and evacuations on which France and England still hold widely divergent views. Prime Minister MacDonald's favorite policy is said to be to create an atmosphere of trust in which an inter-Allied conference can meet. As a result of the Belgians' visit, such a conference now is considered inevitable shortly after the French elections.

RESUME OF TALK

The conversations at Chequers followed closely the lines of the Belgians' conversations with Premier Poincare in Paris last week. It has been authoritatively outlined as follows:

(1.) Ruhr and Rhineland railways: Premier Poincare is ready to see these lines merged into the general German system as the reparations experts' report provides, and is willing to agree to all the traffic regulations and administrative details supplied from Berlin, as well as agreeing to all financial transactions, tariffs and payments to be made in German currency. But, he demands that the 10,000 French and Belgian railway men now employed on the lines remain. The reason he gives for this is that in case of a renewal of the passive resistance, the Allies must secure control of the lines. The Belgians told Mr. MacDonald that Marshal Foch holds this condition absolutely essential, and added that if the German resistance last year had started ten days earlier the occupation of the Ruhr would have been a total failure.

(2.) Military evacuation of the Ruhr: Premier Poincare's position is that the garrison should be reduced by stages proportionate to the payments of reparations, and he defines the payments as all cash or binding obligations. In his desire to conciliate the British view, however, Premier Poincare is willing to give up the occupation on condition that the British propose some alternative sanction.

ALTERNATIVE TOLD

He suggests, for example, a binding agreement of the Allies to blockade all German ports in case of a defaul't in reparations payments, but there must be no jockeying, and the blockade must become effective automatically. The Belgians are said to have informed Mr. MacDonald that this concession is of great importance on Premier Poincare's part, as he remains personally convinced of Germany's bad faith and says before two years are up Great Britain will feel the economic competition of Germany to such an extent that it will turn to France for assistance against it.

On the vital question of the surrender of pledges, Premier Poincare declared that France only can give up the economic administration of the Ruhr and Rhineland to an organization foreseen by the experts' report, and not to the German government under any circumstances. He places the date of this whenever the Reparations Commission officially declares the experts' scheme is in full working order and Germany is endeavoring to carry it out.

cent and 20-cent, will be distributed to the principal cities of the country for use in specially designating letters to go by plane.

THREE MAIL ZONES

Three zones have been designated for postage purposes—New York and Chicago, Chicago and Cheyenne, and Cheyenne and San Francisco. An 8-cent air mail stamp will carry an ounce letter anywhere within one zone, a 16-cent stamp anywhere within two adjoining zones and a 24-cent stamp anywhere within the three zones.

Letters from points not on the air mail route, if bearing proper air mail stamps, will be transmitted to the nearest air mail field for dispatch without additional postage. Any class of mail, including parcel post packages, may be sent by air mail but only at regular air mail rates. Special air mail letter boxes are being installed in the larger cities along the route to expedite handling.

Regular landing fields, where changes of planes will be made on both eastbound and westbound trips, are located at New York, Belfonte, Pa.; Cleveland, Chicago, Omaha, North Platte, Neb.; Cheyenne, Rock Springs, Wyo.; Salt Lake City, Elko, Nev.; Reno, Nev., and San Francisco.

ELEVEN PLANES

Eleven planes will be required for the single trip each way. New planes, with slower landing speeds, deemed necessary for night flying, have been advertised for and bids will be opened June 10.

The mail planes will fly by night over 1000 miles of lighted airway between Chicago and Cheyenne, the pilots being guided by automatic acetylene lights placed every three miles. Every twenty-five miles of the night lane has an emergency landing field provided with powerful searchlights and at about every 250 miles there is a regular landing field with searchlights visible from 100 to 150 miles when flashed in the air.

The existing daylight coast-to-coast air mail, which has been in operation six years and which has been merely an advance service to speed up letter mail, will be merged with the new service. After July 1, no mail will be carried on planes except that bearing special air mail postage stamps.

LOS ANGELES MAY GET AIR CONNECTION

Although no plans for an air service connecting Los Angeles directly with the thirty-five-hour New York-to-San Francisco service are under consideration at this time, local postoffice officials confidently believe that such a service will be worked out before the initial cross-continent delivery is made, according to Alfred B. Foster, assistant postmaster at Los Angeles.

"We have known of the plans of Postmaster-General New for the establishment of the thirty-five-hour service for some time, but we have not been asked to submit plans or suggestions for a Los Angeles connection," Mr. Foster stated last night. "There is little question, however, that Los Angeles will have a connection with this service which will land mail here within forty or forty-one hours after it leaves New York.

"The thirty-five-hour service does not mean, of course, so much to Los Angeles as it does to San Francisco, which gets a direct cross-continent service, but it will mean a considerable reduction of the time factor between Los Angeles and New York."

The route, according to Mr. Foster, is practically the same as that of the present air mail service, the improvement being in the time.

At present, Salt Lake is the terminus of the cross-continent air service and mail from Los Angeles designated for air service leaves here at 11:45 a.m. for Salt Lake over the Union Pacific Railway.

The air time between Los Angeles and San Francisco is between five and six hours.

SEES STATE TO COOLIDGE CAMP

ion that swept New Jersey and Ohio so overwhelmingly in favor of the President has set in over California. The eyes of the nation are focused upon us. California must not be outstepped. Everybody must vote.

50,000 IN SOUTH

Predictions from the south estimate the southern counties to bring a minimum plurality to the President of 50,000, which should be added to over the north by an additional 25,000. The degree of Mr. Coolidge's plurality from that point on will depend entirely upon the size of the total California vote and it should be the duty of each and every loyal Republican to see that the plurality is rolled up to an extreme maximum. There is scarcely a northern county from which the report has not come during the last seven days of the swing over to the President and this is noticeably so in San Francisco.

The campaign for the President's ticket of delegates in this State has been marked by a completeness of organization never hitherto set up. This is especially true among the population centers of Los Angeles, San Francisco and Alameda county. More than 200 clubs throughout the interior have been functioning for months, while a complete Congressional district personnel has tied up to the League of Coolidge Republican Clubs the entire State activities, all efforts being effectively and [illegible] co-ordinated.

HE MEETS TEST

President Coolidge has met every test. From that moment after his long silence and [illegible] ment to his new high [illegible] issued his message to [illegible] every act and every [illegible] served to make cumulative [illegible] public mind a constantly [illegible] ing confidence in and [illegible] for him as a sound, [illegible] statesmanly exponent of the [illegible] est practices and ideals of [illegible] can republicanism. There is [illegible] no attack, either veiled or [illegible] against the President or [illegible] ministration but has resulted [illegible] detriment of the detractor [illegible] to the President's benefit.

He bulks large in the [illegible] mind because he has proved himself of true Presidential [illegible] sion, the embodiment of [illegible] trative, executive and [illegible] wisdom, sanity, clarity of [illegible] point and poise of temperament.

It becomes nothing less than [illegible] fore, than our obligation [illegible] to the Cleveland convention [illegible] our vote next Tuesday, a [illegible] tion that shall carry a [illegible] vigorous and magnificent [illegible] confidence from all California.

REQUA'S VIEWS

Mr. Requa's statement [illegible] The primary campaign [illegible] closing has been conducted [illegible] Coolidge Campaign Committee [illegible] with the conviction that the [illegible] sens of California were [illegible] were entitled to have a [illegible] and intelligent presentation [illegible] facts.

The committee has [illegible] avoided personalities, [illegible] ing, misstatement or [illegible] It believes it is but a [illegible] pliment to the intelligence [illegible] citizens of California to [illegible] to befog or bewilder them [illegible] avalanche of rhetorical [illegible] designed to create [illegible] and erroneous opinions [illegible] minds of the public.

California has much at [illegible] Tuesday. The State is [illegible] and with President Coolidge [illegible] against him. He will be [illegible] ed at Cleveland regarding [illegible] vote of California.

TWO IN CABINET

He does not need the [illegible] of California, but California [illegible] ing the coming four years [illegible] emphatically needs the [illegible] Calvin Coolidge and the [illegible] fornians now members [illegible] Cabinet.

It is for California to [illegible] Tuesday whether the [illegible] support the party [illegible] electing a Coolidge [illegible] the Cleveland convention [illegible] liberately turn its back on [illegible] publican party and vote [illegible] Coolidge, Hoover and [illegible] of office.

That California will [illegible] keep Coolidge and the two [illegible] fornia members of his Cabinet, Herbert Hoover and Curtis [illegible] Wilbur in office seems [illegible] that it scarcely merits discussion.

But a mere plurality [illegible] idge does not satisfy [illegible] tion. It must be, [illegible] made, a landslide if [illegible] voter will do his or her [illegible] morrow.

LEADING ISSUES AT CROSSROAD

President's Power to be Put to Severe Test

Decision Near on Bonus and Tax Measures

Stand of Congress on Veto to be Known

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, May 4.—There will be a showdown in Congress this week on the extent to which President Coolidge is able to influence pending legislation.

Whether Congress will pass over the President's veto the Bursum pension bill increasing Civil War and Mexican War pensions by $58,000,000 annually will be decided. The Senate yesterday deferred action on the veto message until Tuesday.

Before the end of the week a similar veto message may be sent to Congress by the President in connection with the soldiers' bonus bill, which now is ready for White House action.

There will be a showdown Tuesday in the Senate on the Watson resolution for the discharge of the special committee investigating the Internal Revenue Bureau. Action on this resolution will be an indorsement or a repudiation of the President's position in his recent letter to the Senate protesting against the course of this investigating committee in employing Francis J. Heney as counsel with a view to a general attack on the Internal Revenue Bureau.

TAX VIEWS KNOWN

The President's influence also will be a factor in the deliberations of conferees on the immigration bill, particularly in connection with Japanese exclusion.

Still another piece of legislation in which the President has made known his views in unmistakable fashion and on which the Senate will act this week is the tax bill. Approval of tax rates greatly at variance with those favored by the President is in prospect. Democratic Senators aided by radical Republicans hope to demonstrate control of tax legislation in the Senate this week.

Conferences among Republicans looking toward a compromise on surtax rates do not appear to have accomplished anything as yet, and unless there is a sudden change in the situation the Democrats expect to put over the Simmons surtax with a maximum of 40 per cent.

The Democrats and radical Republicans defeated the conservative Republicans in the vote an publicity of tax returns Friday and the same sort of an alliance is in prospect in important votes this week. The best the Republican leaders hope for is that some sort of a combination can be effected by which the Longworth rates of the House bill can be substituted for the Mellon rates. Such action would merely mean the adoption of rates framed by Republicans at a slightly lower level than the similar moneys rates.

The compromise proposal put forward by Senator McCormick, Republican, Illinois, under which there would be a maximum surtax of 37 per cent while rates on incomes below $150,000 would be reduced almost as low as the Mellon rates and even below them on incomes of less than $50,000 has been widely discussed among Senators the last week. It has not seemed probable, however, that enough votes can be obtained for this rate schedule.

Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, chairman of the Finance Committee, who a week ago was talking of proposing a compromise after the Mellon taxes are rejected, now does not seem disposed to make many concessions. He takes the position that if the Senate rejects the 25 per cent maximum of the Mellon plan and also rejects a 32 per cent it makes little difference to him whether the highest rate is made 37 per cent, 37½ per cent, as in the Longworth plan, or 40 per cent, as in the Simmons plan.

Radical Republicans expect at some stage to offer the rates of the present law with a maximum of 50 per cent as a substitute. There also will be an opportunity to vote on still other substitutes if Senator Smoot carries out his plan to propose a maximum of 30 or 32 per cent.

NORMAL RATES

If the Simmons surtax rates are approved the Democratic normal rates also are likely to go into the bill. These rates are 2 per cent up to $4000, 4 per cent between $4000 and $8000 and 6 per cent above that; instead of 3 per cent below $4000 and 6 per cent above, as in the Mellon plan, or 2, 5 and 6 per cent as in the Longworth plan.

When the normal and surtax rates are out of the way the Senate will have acted on all important questions except corporation taxes, estate taxes and the gift tax. While the Senate has accepted the Finance Committee amendment increasing the tax on corporation earnings from 12½ to 14 per cent in lieu of the tax on capital stock, action remains to be taken on the Democratic substitute for the 14 per cent plan. This substitute consists of a normal tax of 9 per cent supplemented by surtaxes ranging from one-fourth of 1 per cent up to 40 per cent an percentages of undistributed earnings. Whether the radical Republicans will support this substitute is somewhat uncertain, but they may do so because of the fact that it is designed to reach the stock dividend situation.

WOMAN FIGHTS OFF INTRUDER AT HOME

A barefoot intruder frightened Mrs. F. W. Taylor, 25 years of age, of Davidson, by entering her bedroom early yesterday, according to a report to the sheriff's office. Mrs. Taylor woke and the intruder tried to silence her by putting his hand over her mouth, but she fought free and screamed and the man ran. Neighbors chased the man four blocks but he escaped. Deputy Sheriff Sweesy found his footprints in the mud near the Taylor home. Mrs. Taylor's husband works at night and was not at home at the time.

NEW PASTOR FOR PARISH

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

LANCASTER, May 4.—Rev. M. J. Mee, for several years a missionary at Hankow and Hangyang, China, has arrived here to succeed Rev. J. W. Meehan as pastor of the Catholic parish. Father Meehan is now in charge of the parish at El Centro.

WAR IS PAGAN, BISHOPS AVER

tain itself by material prosperity alone.

"We believe profoundly," they said, "that the United States of America should co-operate with the other nations of the world in bringing about world justice and world peace. We, therefore, give our hearty indorsement to the proposition that our country shall become a member of the permanent Court of International Justice and if is our firm conviction that all nations should agree to submit to impartial tribunals all disputes that threaten the world and which cannot be adjusted by the usual process of diplomacy."

On the subject of divorce, the bishops declared that a "frightful condition" existed. They proposed as remedies the standardization of divorce laws of the various commonwealths, the immediate enactment of a Federal divorce law to provide uniformity in dealing with the matter and "a return to the former ideals of personal virtue, modesty and social propriety."

Among the causes given for this condition were the frivolous temper of hte times, the dissemination of loose views, ridicule of the old-fashioned virtue, the passion of luxury, pernicious incitements of modern fiction and drama, and, "above all," the loss of the sense of God and of moral responsibility.

The removal of the present "amusement ban" of the Methodist discipline was recommended by the bishops as follows:

"This paragraph," they said, has proved an embarrassment to many pastors and to the largest success of the work of the church, especially among young people. . . . The legislation embodied there has not corrected the evils named as detrimental to the recreational life of our people."

The bishops then planned that the general conference adopt general legislation which substitute a prohibition—against—"the taking of such diversions as cannot be enjoyed in the name of Christ."

Passing to the Federal prohibition law and its enforcement, the bishops declared that its success had been shown by a decrease of crime and misery.

Alluding to the theological controversies of other churches in recent years, the bishops said:

"Methodism is not wholly exempt from controversy. It never has been and it never will be. The test of a living church is its power of adjustment. But without ecclesiastical arrogance and with the humble thanksgiving, we may say that during the quadrennium there has been no disquietude among us concerning our doctrines."

EXILES SEE END OF SOVIET RULE

lawlessness, violence, total disregard for private property, exactions and famine. All things holy have been removed; great numbers of bishops, priests and monks have been put to death and others exiled in most appalling conditions. Those who still remain are subjected to cruel persecutions and every moment run the risk of sharing the same fate.

"The Bolshevists are attempting to destroy the soul of the people; they want to uproot all moral and religious foundations. However, neither persecutions nor a frantic propaganda of Godlessness has been able to tear out from their hearts the faith of the people. Their religious vitality is sure to be manifested sooner or later through the moral bankruptcy of the Communistic power and prove once more the people's fidelity to the Orthodox Church.

"It is very difficult to speak of the future, and much more so to predict it," the Grand Duke continued. "One thing is clear. To be saved from destruction Russia and her many millions must be liberated from Communistic rule. We cannot know either the time or the conditions under which this long-hoped-for liberation will be achieved."

In terminating the conversation the Grand Duke said:

"You wish to know how I regard the appeals of my countrymen to put myself at the head of a movement for the liberation of Russia. I receive every day the most touching proofs of confidence. I do not seek anything for myself, and, being an old soldier, I can only say that I should be happy to give my life for the service of my country. But I shall deem it possible to head any national movement only when I shall have acquired the conviction that such a decision on my part is in accordance with the wishes of the Russian people and that the time for decisive action has come."

Denies Report Japan to Seek New Loan Here

TOKIO, May 4.—Minister of Finance Shoda today emphatically denied reports from Washington that Japan planned to seek a new loan in the New York market in 1925.

"The recent loan is sufficient to redeem old loans and meet restoration needs. The government therefore sees no necessity for another foreign loan," said a statement issued by the Finance Department today.

"HELP TO KEEP THE WHITE SPOT WHITE"

STOCK DISEASE MAKES NO GAIN

Tulare County Said to be Free of Plague

Fears Eased of Spread of Cattle Infection

New Outbreaks in Region Already Affected

While two new outbreaks of the foot-and-mouth disease in territory already infected were reported officially to Federal authorities in the Pacific Finance Building yesterday, preliminary reports from Porterville in Tulare county, where the disease was rumored to have been discovered late Saturday, indicating that the rumor is unfounded, further increased the optimism of the authorities engaged in the battle of eradication.

Grave concern was expressed Saturday night over the reports from Porterville, a district which has been kept free of the disease, and experts immediately were sent to the district with instructions to take every precaution necessary to check and eradicate disease and to make a full report to headquarters here. A full official report from these experts — Dr. L. Enos Day, special pathologist, and Dr. E. E. Bennett, expert on foot-and-mouth diagnosis—has not yet been received, but it is their preliminary report which is the basis of the belief that Tulare county is still free from the disease.

The two new outbreaks in infected territory are at Workman's Station, near Clearwater, where twenty-eight head of cattle were found to be infected, and at Lamanda Park, in a herd of forty-nine head. These outbreaks, according to Federal authorities, do not constitute a set-back in the battle against the disease because both herds were in a district where the disease has been more or less rampant and where precautions long since have been taken to prevent spread. Such outbreaks are not unexpected in infected territory and are viewed with little concern by those in charge.

Further reduction of quarantine restrictions in Los Angeles, regardless of the progress made, cannot be expected for several days, it is announced from headquarters. Every concession compatible with caution already has been granted and, while the outlook is decidedly optimistic, it is deemed inadvisable further to lessen restraint.

Reports to the effect that all motorists using the Ridge Route must be fumigated at Lebec were emphatically denied last night by Deputy Sheriff Wilmot in charge of the quarantine at Lebec. All vehicles must pass through a dip but the occupants are neither required to alight nor submit to fumigation, he said.

OFFICIALS TOLD TO KEEP HIGHWAY OPEN

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

EL CENTRO, May 4. — Gov. Richardson assured Imperial county officials today that it is their duty to keep State highways open to traffic at all times. The message came in telegrams sent to Sheriff Gillett and Dist.-Atty. Utley in answer to a request for advice regarding the attempts by Arizona quarantine officers and Fort Yuma Indian Reservation officials to block the highway in the desert at the Knob Siding fumigation station.

Sheriff Gillett immediately instructed deputies stationed in the vicinity of the Fort Yuma reservation to see that the road is kept open. It was at Knob Siding that 800 tourists were detained by Arizona authorities for several days last month. Imperial county officials finally broke down the barrier and allowed the crowd to proceed to the edge of the county at the Colorado River bridge.

TOURIST JAM IN NEVADA IS REPORTED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

RENO (Nev.) May 4.—Congestion of automobile traffic as a result of tourists seeking to enter Nevada after being turned back at the Arizona-California border due to quarantine regulations against foot-and-mouth disease is reported at Searchlight, in the extreme southern corner of Nevada, situated in barren desert regions, according to advices reaching Reno tonight.

FINDINGS IN FLOUR MILL QUIZ ISSUED

Report Asserts Slump in Wheat Brought Slight Cut in Bread Price

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The 1923 slump in wheat price brought less than a 2 per cent decrease in the price of bread, the Federal Trade Commission declared today in a report on its investigations of the wheat flour milling industry.

From January, 1919, to September, 1922, the price of flour in the northwest decreased 33 per cent and in the southwest 43 per cent, the report said. Wheat prices declined 55 and 50 per cent, respectively, in the two districts, it added, but the decrease in bread cost was only 2 per cent, except in Kansas City, where a price war brought a 25 per cent drop.

The commission reported that certain trade associations tried to hamper the inquiry immediately after it was launched and charged that the Millers' National Federation, the leading organization of the flour milling industry, told its members they had the right to refuse to answer the cost and profits questionnaire sent out by the commission, and advised them not to open their books to the commission. Despite these occurrences, the report said, the millers accorded every aid to the commission.

A constant concentration in the flour milling industry since 1914 was noted in the report. Thirty per cent of the mills operating in 1914 have gone out of business, it said, despite the fact that since that year, production has increased 86 per cent. Expansion of some mills and mergers of others was declared responsible for this concentration.

The average profit of flour mills is 10.6 per cent on their investment, the commission found.

MEN BATTLE RIVER FLOOD IN MISSOURI

Angry Waters Menace Two Bridges and Sweep to Cut New Channel

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SLATER (Mo.) May 4.—Hundreds of workers are battling tonight to prevent the Missouri River from cutting a new channel at Harmony, Saline county. If the river wins, two bridges valued at more than $1,000,000 will be rendered useless, while the Chicago and Alton Railroad will lose a long stretch of its right of way adjacent to Glasgow, Howard county.

About 100 citizen volunteers are aiding construction company men who are putting in retards there, Chicago and Alton workers and employees of the State Highway Department are fighting against the swift river current. Box cars are being run into the river to divert the current. The water is now about twenty-five from the railroad right of way.

The bridges in jeopardy are at Glasgow, across the river from Harmony. One is the Chicago and Alton bridge, the other is the new State highway bridge paralleling the railroad at the same point. The piers of the highway bridge were finished in January. Work has not started yet on the steel superstructure. The bridge, when completed, will cost about $600,000.

Reports tonight are that the flood is slowly receding. Belief was expressed that the river will be held in its present channel.

The new channel would cut off several thousand acres of Saline county land and make it a part of Howard and Chariton counties. It also would leave Glasgow, a river town, several miles off the stream.

Faroe Islands Facing Famine Due to Storms

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

COPENHAGEN, May 4.—The Faroe Islands are suffering from one of the worst gales and blizzards in many years, according to an official statement today. Agriculture is made practically impossible on any scale this summer and sheep have been killed by hundreds. Twenty fishing boats were lost last week in the seas south of Iceland and nearly fifty men lost their lives.

HOUSE TO ASK DATA ON NAVY

Alarmed at Disclosures on Condition of Warships

Wants Comparison Made to Japan and England

Britten and Rogers to Put Resolutions Today

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Two resolutions will be introduced tomorrow in the House with the object of ascertaining the present strength of the American Navy, particularly as compared with those of Great Britain and Japan.

Representative Britten of Illinois, ranking Republican on the Naval Committee, announced today he would propose that the Navy transmit to Congress a report covering twenty-seven points, while Representative Rogers, Republican, Massachusetts, said he would offer a terse resolution of inquiry. Both declared they were acting as a result of the recent report of Admiral Coontz, commander in chief of the battle fleet, in which deficiencies in the Navy were pointed out.

UNPREPAREDNESS

Outlining the resolution he will offer, Mr. Britten said it would "once more call to the attention of the country the shocking state of our unpreparedness in a naval sense."

"Just imagine," he declared in a statement, "spending $175,000,000 over a period of years for submarine construction only to find that we have not a single ship that is worth a darn. If it takes the government ten years to build a useless submarine, how long will it require to build a good one?

"I am certain our Navy is not on a parity with England's and I am not so sure that Japan is very far behind us, notwithstanding our right under the Washington Conference, to be nearly twice her size."

INADEQUACY OF TYPES

Representative Rogers declared that "the friends of the American Navy have recently become greatly alarmed at the disclosures concerning the physical condition of our war vessels, as well as at the inadequacy in the number of several types. If the Navy really is being maintained at the strength agreed upon at the Washington Conference," he added, "apprehension can be dismissed.

"But if we are not,' he went on, "it is incumbent upon the administration and Congress to make good the deficiencies."

COOLIDGE UNOPPOSED IN MARYLAND VOTING

STATE-WIDE VOTE WILL BE TAKEN IN PRIMARY TO-DAY, HOWEVER

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

BALTIMORE, May 4.—Although President Coolidge is the only candidate in the primary in Maryland tomorrow by a ruling of the State Attorney-General, a Statewide vote must be taken to conform to the election law. Thus a one-man primary is established and the contest is presented between the candidate and an uninstructed delegation.

Supporters of President Coolidge express no apprehension over the outcome. His candidacy is backed by the State organization and party leaders regard his victory as a foregone conclusion. No Democratic Presidential candidates filed in Maryland.

Contests on either side will require primaries in three of the six Congressional districts. The most interesting one is in the Sixth District represented by Frederick N. Zihlman, Republican, who has been under investigation by a House committee. Mr. Zihlman is seeking renomination with two Republicans in the field against him while four Democrats are striving for the Democratic nomination in this normally Republican district.

VICTORY FOR McADOO INDICATED IN TEXAS

PRECINCT CAUCUS RETURNS SHOW LARGE MARGIN OVER UNDERWOOD

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

DALLAS (Tex.) May 4.—Returns from precinct caucuses yesterday indicated a decisive victory for William G. McAdoo, candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination in next Tuesday's county conventions in Texas, according to the Dallas News. Unofficial reports from 758 precinct conventions in 157 of the 253 counties of the State show McAdoo, 434 precincts; Underwood, 43; uninstructed, 282.

All portions of the State are represented in the incomplete figures and later returns are expected to leave the relative position of the candidates unchanged, the News says.

The county conventions to which the delegates were elected yesterday will be held Tuesday and the instructions voted apply to delegates to the State conventions at Waco, on the 27th inst.

Reports from Republican precinct conventions were unavailable tonight, although preconvention indications were that President Coolidge would be indorsed.

PREACHER PAYS FINE AND GAINS FREEDOM

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, May 4.—After serving four days in the County Jail at Auburn on a charge of reckless driving, Rev. C. B. Fairfield, Roseville's Ku Klu Klan pastor, gained his freedom yesterday by the payment of $46. Mr. Fairfield was sentenced to pay a fine of $50 or serve fifty days in jail. He refused to pay the fine and started serving the jail sentence.

RAIL LABOR BILL BLOW FORECAST

Republican Leaders Predict Debate Plan to Fail

Author Asks Measure be Taken Out of Committee

House Votes Today; Charges Leveled at Scheme

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Defeat in the House tomorrow of the motion to discharge the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce from consideration of the Howel-Barkley railroad labor bill was predicted today by Republican leaders. The motion is designed to bring the bill before the House for debate.

Representative Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, who introduced the bill in the House for the railroad labor unions, and who offered the motion to discharge the committee, expressed the belief, however, that the motion will be adopted, although he admitted the vote may be close.

Representative Garrett, Democrat, Tennessee, minority leader, and other influential Democrats, it is understood, will vote against the motion.

MUCH OPPOSITION

Representative Longworth, Republican, Ohio, majority leader, will oppose it and all the conservative Republicans will follow his leadership. While the radical Republicans will support the motion and possibly as many as two-thirds of the Democrats, it may not secure quite a majority vote.

The Howell-Barkley bill is a comprehensive revision of the laws relating to disputes between railroads and their employees. It repeals the labor provisions of the Transportation Act and in place of the Railroad Labor Board sets up four boards of adjustment, two of which would have fourteen members each and two, six members each. Each member would be paid $7000 a year by the government.

In addition to these boards there would be a board of mediation and conciliation of five members at annual salaries of $12,000 each to be paid by the government. A final provision is made for an arbitration board.

HIGHER COST SEEN

Opponents of the bill say that the cost to the government of the proposed scheme would be in excess of $1,000,000 a year as against between $300,000 and $400,000 for the Railroad Labor Board.

The railroads charge that the bill, if passed, would establish by statute every wage rate now in effect because wages could not be changed without consent of the employees and arbitration could not be resorted to without consent of the employees. They also charge that the bill practically would establish the closed shop on the railroads and force disbandment of the so-called company unions, many of which were formed after the railway shopmen's strike failed in 1922. It is further charged that the prime purpose of the bill is to strengthen by law the so-called "regular" railroad labor unions.

FIND REMAINS OF MAMMOTHS

Excavators at Tulare Lake Unearth Huge Bones

Fossils Are Identified by Dr. E. L. Furlong

University May Try to Dig for Whole Skeleton

HANFORD, May 3.—Since the advent of the white man into the San Joaquin Valley, the great inland lake in this county of Kings has furnished many evidences of prehistoric animal life. Bones of mammoths of immense size have been unearthed and these relics continue to be found.

Recently the bucket of a dredger working at the end of the Tulare Lake Canal, in the bed of the old lake, brought up from a depth of sixteen feet some gigantic bones, which were taken to the office of D. W. Lewis at Corcoran. A huge thigh bone, in an excellent state of preservation, was unearthed at the same place by L. M. Stone, of Hanford, manager of the Kings County Development Company. Mr. Stone carefully packed his find and forwarded it to A. D. Schindler of San Francisco, president of the company. Mr. Schindler took the huge bone to Dr. E. L. Furlong, a noted authority at the University of California.

Dr. Furlong's report is that the bone is the upper end of a thigh bone of a mammoth, a gigantic animal that lived in California "some 500,000 years ago." He states that similar fossils have been found in the foothills west of the lake, near McKittrick, but never before so near the center of the valley.

At Mr. Schindler's suggestion Mr. Stone forwarded the bones in the possession of D. W. Lewis for Dr. Furlong's inspection and report. It is possible that the University will send men here to unearth the remainder of the skeleton, which, it is presumed from the bones already taken out, will be in a fine state of preservation. They are located in a type of soil that will make their uncovering comparatively easy.

Old Power Dues Litigation Goes to Fresno Court

FRESNO, May 4.—After many years of litigation, a suit brought by Tulare county against the San Joaquin Light and Power Corporation and the city of Dinuba to collect money alleged due on franchises has been removed to Fresno county for trial. This action was filed under the Broughton Act. It was brought here by consent of the litigants.

According to a stipulation filed, the power corporation deposited $15,074.34 as the full sum due from it to Tulare county and Dinuba under the Broughton Act franchise. By this, the corporation is said to be discharged from any further payment up to and including 1922.

The case was tried but later reversed by the Supreme Court, according to a copy of the opinion.

DURAY DEFEATS DE PALMA IN THE TRIUMPH SWEEPSTAKES AT ASCOT

STAR RACE LOOKS LIKE A SLOW MOTION FILM

Racing Pilots Attacked by Spring Fever; 20,000 See Speedfest Turned Into Comedy Act

BY G. E. WILLIAMS

Loafing around the track like they both had a bad case of spring fever, Leon Duray and Ralph De Palma staged a slow race at the Ascot Park Speedway yesterday afternoon, making more or less of a comedy out of the fifteen-lap Triumph Sweepstakes feature event.

Duray won. De Palma was second, Fuzzy Davidson also ran, coming in third. The time was awful, being 18m. slower for the race than the time made by De Palma last Sunday, when he and Ralphi put on a real race.

NO ALIBIS

An analysis of the event fails to reveal much of an alibi for the driver. Eight cars were entered, and the driver's position was determined by drawing numbers from a hat. De Palma, Duray, Davidson were lined up in the second row. Duray took the lead from Babe Stapp in the second lap. De Palma was trailing in fourth place.

With Duray leading him by about half a lap, De Palma came back in the seventh lap and managed to squeeze Davidson out of third place. But the effort seemed to exhaust him. Anyway, he was unable to reduce any of the distance between him and Duray and the race ended with the Indian driver coming in a full second.

One of the best crowds of the year, estimated at more than 20,000, witnessed the races. Hollywood representatives, among them Jack Dempsey, Pola Negri, Alice Taylor, Rod La Rocque and other film celebrities, lustily cheered Duray's performance. The Indianan was presented with a silver cup trophy offered by Cecil B. DeMille to the winner of the event.

DE PALMA WINS DASH

De Palma won the one-lap Victory Crown dash, with Duray second and Davidson third. The time was 31s flat, two seconds below the track record. Two motorcycle events and the usual ten-lap handicap race for automobiles completed the program.

A summary of the events follows:

One-lap Victory Crown, one-leg dash for cups offered by Fuzzy Davidson and Leon Duray, Elk, 1st; Duray, Elk, 2d; Davidson, Elk, 3d. Time, 31s flat.

Ten-lap handicap for motorcycles, free for all—Won by Fred Kruger; D. Beebler second; Fred Edwards third. Time, 8m. 18s.

Ten-lap handicap for automobiles, free for all—Won by Ralph De Palma, Ice Man; Leon Duray, Miller Special, second; Fred Edwards second and E. W. Davidson, Elk, third. Time, 8m. 18s.

Ten-lap Championship dash for automobiles, free for all—Won by De Palma, Ice Man; Leon Duray, Miller Special, second; Fred Edwards second and Davidson third. Time, 8m. 18s.

Ten-lap Victory dash—Won by H. Lopez; Ralph Hepburn second and E. Briggs third. Time, 8m. 18s.

This was one of the best high-school games ever played in the athletic circles in this city. Lemoore led by a score of 8 to 5 in the ninth inning when Hanford High drove across a run. French Rugby Team Wins in Olympic Game

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

COLOMBES (France) May 4.—The eighth Olympic games of modern times were ushered in today with France obtaining a crushing victory over Rumania in Rugby football, 61 to 3.

An attendance of 15,000 cheered impartially a great exhibition of rugby by the French and of gameness by the Rumanians in fighting a desperate battle to the finish in the face of tremendous odds.

The French team outweighed the Rumanians twenty pounds to the man.

The match was more interesting as the opening event of the Olympic games in the Colombes Stadium than as football—the primitive game of the Rumanians being far below international rugby standards.

HENRIETTE FINISHES FIRST

Sets New Record in Winning Schooner Race Around Catalina Island; Aafje is Second

A new epoch was inaugurated in Southern California yachting yesterday when the trim schooner Henriette won the 100-mile dash around Catalina Island in the first race over the course since 1914, and in doing so established a new record of 28 hours. The skipper, Morgan Adams, is also the owner of the craft. The Aafje, captained and owned by Roy Millsap, came in for second honors, and the Pasqualito, owned by Francis Graves, was third. Morgha, the fourth racer, dropped out before finishing the race.

With a good west breeze blowing at 12 a.m. Saturday the graceful racers were given the starting signal. The Henriette pulled out in front before the race was fairly begun and in that position was never threatened. The Aafje was close behind the Henrfette until she broke her main gaff on the windward side of the island. This break down held her back so that second place was all she could hope to win. The Pasqualito was a good third all during the race. The Henriette continued to increase her lead Saturday night when a dead calm slowed down the boats somewhat. Yesterday evening, with a southwesterly breeze blowing the winner slipped across the finish, just twenty-eight hours after the start, making the best time ever hung up in this historic event.

Before the war this schooner race was the one big event of the yachting season and it bids fair to come back into its old prominent position.

HACKLEY WILL TAKE ON WILLIE O'BRIEN

Matchmaker Art Braathen will offer Compton fans one of the best main events ever presented there next Friday night when Jimmy Hackley and Willie O'Brien get together. Tommy Richards, who is staging a successful comeback, will battle Kid Mack in the special event. Three other good bouts will be on Matchmaker Braathen's card. They follow: Bill Sweeney vs. Georgie Mannor, 165 pounds; "Battling" George vs. Art Williams, 145 pounds, and Young Shoemaker vs. Kid Murphy, 135 pounds.

HANLON AND NINO TO MIX AT PASADENA

Bud Hanlon, young kayo phenom, will battle Young Nino in the Pasadena main event Wednesday night. Hanlon knocked out Bud Garber and Art Springer in two weeks. Both were second-round kayoes. Other bouts: Young Vargas vs. "Pee Wee" Nolan, 116 pounds; Young Mabini vs. Barney Myers, 108 pounds, and Young Alexander clashes with "Battling" Vilares at 126 pounds.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

Many Tennis Tournaments Are Lined Up

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, May 4.—More than 250 tournaments are listed on the 1924 schedule released yesterday by the United States Lawn Tennis Association. Most important of the new events is an inter-service competition for the championship of the Army and Navy arranged by Assistant Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis, donor of the Davis Cup to be played at Washington on June 21.

The Davis Cup challenge round matches will begin September 11 at the Germantown Cricket Club, Philadelphia. The interzone match between the winning teams of America and Europe has been awarded to the Longwood Cricket Club at Boston and will be played on September 4. No dates or places have been named for the American zone preliminaries.

MIDWICK CLUB TO BANQUET POLOISTS

A banquet for the Midwick Country Club polo team, which will leave late in June for the national championships at Meadowbrook Field, New York, will be held at the Midwick Club, Wednesday night. Carleton Burke, team captain, and his players, who won the open Pacific Coast championship at Coronado recently, will be feted. This is the first time in many years that the Pacific Coast has sent a team East.

GOLF TEAMS TO SETTLE TITLE

Flintridge, Los Angeles and Annandale in Play-Off

Midwick to be Scene of Big Event Tomorrow

News Garnered from Country Clubs and Golf Links

BY CHARLES WEST

While the Coolidge landslide tomorrow will undoubtedly cause a ripple of comment, the play-off for the Southern California golf team championship bids fair to outshine the Presidential primaries as the big event of the day. The result of the election is a foregone conclusion, while it takes a bold man to predict whether Flintridge, Annandale or the Los Angeles Country Club will emerge with the title after the battle at Midwick.

These three country clubs finished the regular schedule of matches, tied for first place in Class A, and a play-off was arranged to decide the championship. Although originally set for Wednesday, the date was moved up in order that the players could take advantage of the holiday granted for the less important matter of voting.

Tomorrow's competition will be best ball match play against par, the ten-man team which gives Old Man Par the worst beating being declared the S.C.G.A. championship outfit for the season.

HOLLYWOOD

D. C. Hutchon won the annual spring handicap at the Hollywood Country Club Saturday by defeating Earl Neitzel in the final match, 1 up at the nineteenth hole. Although Neitzel shot splendid golf, he gave eight strokes away, with disastrous results. P. P. Yohe won in the second flight from D. C. Riddle, 3 and 2.

Mixed foursomes were in order yesterday, Mrs. L. F. Kinslow and Tom Haley winning low net honors, 90-18-72. Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Riddle were second, 101-21-80, while Miss Ruth Killian and Wally Lohman tied for third with Mrs. R. J. Breed and E. C. Simpson with net scores of 81.

A women's putting and approaching contest Saturday went to Mrs. J. S. Horan, who chipped and putted out three balls in nine stokes. Mrs. W. P. Lohman and Miss Ruth Killian tied for second with ten strokes each, the former winning in the play-off.

VIRGINIA

Fred Hicks won the Virginia Country Club championship Saturday by defeating W. E. Martin 2 up in a bitterly contested 36-hole match.

In preparation for the annual Invitational Tournament, the green committee is tightening up the course considerably. Now bun-

VERNON TAKES DOUBLE BILL

Warner Drives in Winning Run in Ninth

Christian Outhurls Boehler in Second Tilt

Shellenback Checks Acorns in First Game

BY ROBERT E. RAY

Behind bottled-in-bond pitching by Frank Shellenback and Jimmy Christian, the Vernon Tigers finished the series with Oakland by taking both games, the first by a score of 5 to 1 and the second, 2 to 1. The Oaks dropped the series by a 5-to-2 margin.

Jack Warner, the youthful Bengal shortstop, had a great day, driving in both Vernon runs in the second encounter and fielding like Hans Wagner and Charles Hollocher rolled into one all afternoon. Warner showed the 14,000 fans present more stuff around second base than Jack Dempsey can show in the ring, and that's a fact.

The closing encounter was one that had all those present forgetting about how they were going to get money to buy gas for their car, with pitching the way you read about in story books. For six innings Boehler and Christian hurled shut-out ball and, with the support their mates were giving them, it began to look like the score would stay 0 to 0 until Bryan starts pulling for beer and light wines, and the evolution theory. Both hurlers had some narrow squeaks, but flossy fielding managed to pull them out of the holes.

STIFLES RALLY

In the second inning the Oaks got men on first and third with two out, but Christian fanned Boehler to stifle that rally, while a great throw by "Buzz" Arlett, right field, nailed Chadbourne at the plate in the third inning. In the Oak half of the third Bruhaker doubled and stole third, but died there when Christian retired Cooper and Cather. Vernon threatened again in the fourth when Menosky led off with a double against the score board and went to third on Blakesley's infield single. Boehler then settled like a fog in San Francisco and forced Deal to foul to Guisto, while McDowell lined to Adams, who tossed to Guisto doubling Blakesley off first.

The Bengals nicked Boehler for the initial marker in the seventh after two were out. Denny Murphy, the third man up, clicked a single to left and stole second. Jack Warner delivered a long double to center and Murphy cantered home.

Oakland came right back in the

Marty Krug Commits Two Errors in Game

Team Manager Orders Self Out of Contest

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—By winning both of today's games the San Francisco Coast League baseball club took the series from Los Angeles, 6 to 1. The morning game score was 8 to 6, and the afternoon contest, as a result of the Seals' hitting hard and often, ended 16 to 5. In the afternoon game Walters and Ellison each hit a home run with nobody on base. Manager Marty Krug made two of the Angels' five errors in this game and finally ordered himself off second, sending in Gunther.

The Seals made an early start to victory in the morning game, scoring four runs and knocking Weinert out of the box before a single out had been made. Scores:

RAY MEETS WATSON

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

LINCOLN (Neb.) May 4.—Joie Ray, crack middle-distance runner, and Ray Watson, Illinois Athletic Club star, will run a special match race at the Missouri Valley track meet to be held there on the 24th inst., Henry Schulte, track coach at the University of Nebraska, announced today.

GOLF TEAMS TO SETTLE TITLE

kers are being placed on number 2, 6 and 7 to catch anything but the most well-figured approach shots.

The greens and fairways are in the best condition in the history of the course.

WILSHIRE

Qualifying rounds in the Wilshire Country Club's mixed foursome tournament were held yesterday, Mrs. T. H. Pike and J. Duncan tying with Mrs. T. W. Haas and Dr. H. C. Humes for low gross honors, each twosome shooting at 94. A playoff will be necessary. The low net trophy went to Mrs. H. Carroll and Frank Deject, who scored 94-13-81. The foursomes are two-ball alternate drive affairs. Match play will be played a round a week.

Tomorrow the Wilshire women players compete against the Midwick team at Wilshire.

GRIFFITH PARK

Due probably to the fact that few people realize that the quarantine has been lifted on Griffith Park, comparatively few golfers played the municipal links yesterday. There is usually a string of cars waiting for the gates to open in the cold, gray dawn, but very few played yesterday.

SAN GABRIEL

San Gabriel's week-end sweepstakes were won by E. E. Bean in Class A, who finished one down in match play against par. Dave Jacobs took second in this division, finishing three down. In Class B C. T. Schramm was the victor, being two up on par, while W. S. McKay was second by virtue of finishing even.

Arrangements are in progress for the president's cup tournament. Play will be divided into three classes, and match play will be at handicap. There will be no qualifying round. Golfers are to sign up with Caddymaster Tommy Langdon by the 9 inst. in order to be drawn for match play, which opens May 10.

PASADENA

Qualifying rounds in the club championship tournament were completed yesterday, Capt. P. McNaughton capturing the low gross trophy with a score of 77. Harold Thompson was second with a 78, while C. A. Strouse followed with an 83. Dr. R. Waterman was next with an 84.

Match play will progress at a round each week until the finals.

BRENTWOOD

L. P. Ferguson, scoring an excellent 76, finished two up on par yesterday and won Brentwood's Sunday sweepstakes. W. B. Dickinson was second, two down, while George Merritt, Jr., took third place, finishing four down.

Saturday the Stymies defeated the Dormies in an intra-club team match, 85 to 55.

FLINTRIDGE

Standish Mitchell played in a manner which bodes ill for his handicap in the week-end sweepstakes at the Flintridge Country Club. He turned in a card of 76 with a 10 handicap, giving him a net 66 for the trophy. He has been selected for the Flintridge team. Most of the members of the team played at Midwick yesterday in preparation for the championship play-off tomorrow.

H. S. Webb was second in the sweepstakes, 80-8-72, while E. J. Cheeswright was third, 94-20-74.

Mixed foursomes are in order for tomorrow. Paul Scott, assistant professional, announces that he has feminine players for all the male members who wish to compete.

HACIENDA

Glen Gray broke the amateur course record of the Hacienda Country Club yesterday by shooting the sporty links in 72 strokes. The best open score for the course is 67, made by Professional Harry Pressler.

ANNANDALE

Mrs. Dorothy and H. B. Ingalls captured the glory in yesterday's mixed foursome competition at the Los Angeles Country Club, scoring a splendid 79, which, with a 5 handicap gave them a net score of 74. Mrs. Webb and C. J. Gordon were second, 98-21-77; Mrs. L. A. Houser and Everett Seaver shooting 83-5-78 to tie with Mrs. H. M. Voorhees and A. D. S. Johnston for third place, the latter scoring 72-4-78.

Third rounds in the spring handicap were completed yesterday, with the following results: W. G. Young defeated F. H. Crawford, 1 up; C. T. Shorer defeated H. J. Harley, 1 up, nineteen holes; C. S. Lyday defeated Allan Shore, 3 and 2; H. P. Taylor defeated H. S. Brinstall, 3 and 2; E. E. MacGill defeated Dr. C. J. Hartley, 2 and 1; S. M. Griffith defeated N. W. Cowells, 2 and 1; Arthur Letts, Jr., defeated A. D. Barrett, 3 and 2. Consolation flight: M. W. Bekins defeated W. A. Gillette, 3 and 2; I. A. Marshall defeated H. A. DeWitt, 5 and 4; W. H. Cameron defeated F. H. Freeman, 3 and 2; T. H. McManus defeated F. H. Floyd, 2 up.

HILLCREST

A triple tie resulted in yesterday's Blind Bogey sweepstakes at the Hillcrest Country Club, A. J. Lasker, W. Heilman and J. Coogan, all scoring 74.

Herman Politz, who has just returned from a business trip to New York, participated in a unique match yesterday in which Ed Gayer, club professional, played the best ball of Politz, George Germain, Ellis Elkeles, Eddie Meyberg. Gayer had a 75, Meyberg an 81, Germain an 85, Elkeles an 86, and Politz an 86.

AMATEUR BOXERS HOLD STAGE AT DOYLE'S ARENA THIS WEEK

Amateur boxing comes into its own in Los Angeles this week, when forty-one of the cleverest lads to be found in all of Southern California will whale away at each other for the glory of representing this division of the A.A.U. in the Boston Olympic final tryouts, set for the 19th, 20th and 21st insts.

Sailors, college-glove swingers, unattached boys and a big string of boxers from the Los Angeles Athletic Club are entered in the big show, which will be staged at Doyle's Vernon Coliseum next Wednesday and Thursday evenings. Charley Keppen and George Blake of L.A.A.C. are arranging the details of the meet.

Three Pacific Coast champions and two Southern California titleholders are entered in the contests.

Fidel La Barba, who has held the Coast flyweight title for the past two years, is billed to take on Harry Pava, champion of the University of Southern California. Fans who know Pava say he will give La Barba the fight of his life.

Ned Golden, Southern California bantam champ, faces the job of getting by his old rival, August Gotto, one of the gamest youngsters in local ranks. Gotto has beaten Golden on two or three occasions.

Lightweight Champion Julius Jessick shines as the target of a field of ten husky scrappers, and Clayton Frye, premier Coast welter, must show his superiority over a like number to win a place on the team headed for Boston. Frye's most dangerous competitor appears to be Jimmy O'Fallon, former champion of Cornell University, and welter titleholder of New Jersey and Indiana. This should be a corking battle.

Coast Middleweight Champion Ad Allegrini will meet Scott Poffenberg in the only scrap in that class. Poffenberg is an unknown quantity here.

Unusual interest centers in the heavyweight division, where Joe Woods, undefeated L.A.A.C. knockout star, is up against three formidable punchers.

Seats for the two-night show were placed on sale a day or two ago at the Athletic Club, the Coliseum and Doyle's downtown office, 736 South Spring. Ladies will be admitted.

The complete list of entries follows:

118-pound class—Bernie Duarte, unattached; Billy Weber, unattached; August Gotto, L.A.A.C.; Ned Golden, L.A.A.C.

126-pound class—Frank Brown

WOODMEN GO INTO LEAD

Trim Western Lithographers in Ninth Frame, 3 to 2, and Head Pacific League; Angel Stars

Catcher Angel's single, which scored Draper in the ninth frame, gave the Fremont Woodmen a 3-to-2 victory over the Western Lithograph Company nine in a hot Pacific League game played yesterday at the Arroyo Seco Playgrounds. The victory put the Woodmen in the lead of the Pacific loop.

Angel's hitting was the feature of the hotly contested game, the winning team's backstop driving out five safeties in five times at bat and enjoying a perfect afternoon with the willow. A large crowd witnessed the game.

It was a pitching battle between Draper of the Woodmen and Cioffi, star southpaw of the Western Lithographers, with the former having the edge. Draper yielded only five hits and pitched shutout ball after the second, while Cioffi was touched for ten bingles. George Knox, first sacker for the victors, hurt his ankle running to first after singling in the opening inning, and had to retire from the game, Carvell filling in for him.

The Lithographers scored in the first and second innings, but after that were helpless before Draper. The Woodmen got one in the second, another in the third and put over the winning marker in the ninth, when Draper walked, took third on Sapin's double and scored on Angel's single to right. Score:

EAGLES LOSE TO GLENDORA

Winners Take Lead in League by 3-to-2 Victory

Pasadenans Start Off With Marches to Plate

Wally Knox's Team Clinches Tilt in Ninth Frame

The Glendora ball team, by defeating the Pasadena Eagles, 3 to 2, yesterdy at Glendora, stepped into first place in their league, with three games won and none lost. The tilt was a hot one throughout the nine innings. The game was up in the air until the ninth inning, as the Glendora team did not cinch the game until that frame.

The Eagles began the mix-up with a good start in the first, when they marked up one tally. Another run in the third looked very good to the Pasadena rooters, as the Glendora nine had not obtained a run. Things moved along with both teams getting a few hits, but not enough to score any runs until the eighth frame. In this inning Carissosa for the Glendora nine found Billman for a double with two men on. This raised Glendora's score to two runs, which tied the visitors' total. Coming back in the last of the ninth Glendora won the game when, with an error by the Eagles and a hit by Glendora, the last run and winning marker was chalked up.

The game was almost free from errors, only two being committed during the fracas. The Eagles were the only offenders, securing both.

Tacoma Brews Victors Over Larry's Stars

Larry's All-Stars were offered more Tacoma Brew than they could carry yesterday at the Salt Lake Playgrounds, the Brewers winning a tight game 4 to 1, by pushing across runs in the early innings. Pitcher Cotti of the Tacoma team had the Larry batsmen swinging dizzily all afternoon, no less than fourteen strike-outs being credited to him. He also fielded the ball well.

Center fielder Cars drove in two runs in the second with a well-placed double, and two more followed in the third frame. The Larry's only tally came in the eighth inning.

Ardst, second sacker for the losers, got all the hits Cotti allowed, smacking out three singles out of four trips to the plate. Ronald heaved a good game for the Larry team, fanning ten. Score:

NEW OFFER FOR MUSCLE SHOALS

Union Carbide Company Bid to be Filed Today

Proposal Appears Broadest So Far Submitted

Ford Eight Per Cent Profit Limit Cut to Five

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, May 4.—A new bid for Muscle Shoals in competition with that of Henry Ford will be submitted tomorrow to Secretary of War Weeks by the Union Carbide Company and will then be turned over to the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Where Ford's offer specifies that he will make fertilizer if he finds it can be made at 8 per cent profit, the carbide company promises to make 2,000,000 tons of fertilizer per year at only 5 per cent profit and to use half of that profit during the first ten years in experimenting on cheaper methods of production. Thus, it actually would pocket only 2½ per cent profit, and it also agrees that the 5 per cent must never in any case amount to more than $2 a ton.

And, at the end of the ten-year period of experimentation the company still would be receiving only 2½ per cent profit itself, for the other 2½ per cent would be put in an amortization fund for the government.

BID BROADEST YET

The new bid appears to be the broadest yet submitted by any concern, for while recognizing the value to the farmer of cheap fertilizer, it also recognizes the need of industry for cheap electric power, the value of cheap electricity on the farm and the protection the government itself must have in keeping an interest in the great power site for powder making purposes in time of war.

The bid is, in fact, two proposals. One offers to lease the entire Muscle Shoals property for fifty years under the Federal Water Power Act at a guaranteed minimum return of $120,000,000 to the government and a guarantee that at the end of fifty years the government will not only receive back all the properties, but also will receive more money than it put into them.

ALTERNATIVE PLAN

The other proposal suggests that the company run the plant for the government, with the government in full ownership and fixing all prices for fertilizer or power. The company would pay for all maintenance, all improvements and research work and the government would pocket three-fourths of the profits.

Under either proposal, the Secretary of War would be empowered to cancel the contracts and take over the plants for war purposes at any time at a financial return to the company which he himself would set.

This proposal is believed to be partly applicable to the Norris-Keller bill, which provides that the government shall retain the properties and have them operated by a nonpolitical group.

Concerning the manufacture of nitrogen from which the 2,000,000 tons of mixed fertilizer would be made annually, the company points out that it now controls five patents for this purpose and that it will take no profit itself on any patents but would pay reasonable royalty to any patentees whose processes might be used and leave it up to the government to decide what processes to install.

CONFIDENCE SHOWN

It declares that it will not only be able to make the fertilizer at a minimum profit, but will be able to produce it at less than the present cost of Chilean nitrates, now imported to manufacture fertilizer.

Concerning the hundreds of thousands of electric horsepower which would be developed in addition to the 100,000 horsepower needed to manufacture fertilizer, the company specifically agrees not only to set up an industrial site at Muscle Shoals and supply it with power, but to distribute power to farms, towns or industrial sites within range.

The bid, submitted by E. F. Price, president, also says that if there is anything objectionable to the government, the objections will be promptly remedied or a new proposal covering any specifications of the government submitted.

The new bid supplements a previous bid by the Carbide Company for a single unit of the site.

STRINGS ON PARIS LOAN ARE DENIED

French Refute Version of British Paper on Terms of American Help

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, May 3.—The French Foreign Office today issued an emphatic denial of the truth of the London Daily Telegraph's statement yesterday that the American reparations experts had recommended the Morgan loan to France under the condition that France accept the re-establishment of complete financial economic freedom in the Ruhr and Rhineland. Quai D'Orsay hotly insists that the Telegraph's story is "flatly contrary to the truth." The inspired press declares the Telegraph's story is particularly injuries because the American experts maintained an attitude strictly outside of politics during their stay in Paris.

The semiofficial Temps today prints a letter written by M. Robineau, president of the Bank of France, to the American bankers giving the terms of France's acceptance of the Morgan credits. M. Robineau states after conferring with the government that he is ready to promise that France "has not made any new appeal for credit except for a consolidation of floating debts and it will not issue any government loans even for the reconstruction of the devasted regions," until the financial situation is ameliorated.

GARRISON ESTATE TO SERVITOR

Family is Disinherited in Will Naming Housekeeper Executrix and Heir

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CAMDEN (N.J.) May 3.—Ex-Justice Charles Grant Garrison of the Supreme Court of New Jersey, who died at Merchantville, N. J., on April 22, left his entire estate to his housekeeper, Miss Winifred Dallin of Wildwood, N. J. Miss Dallin filed the will before Surrogate Brewer here today for probate. The personal estate was estimated at $30,000, but the value of the real estate was not set forth.

The will left nothing to Justice Garrison's widow or to any of their three children or to his brother, Lindley M. Garrison of New York, former Secretary of War. The widow, Mrs. Anna H. Garrison, who has a home at Palmer Lake, Colo., had lived apart from her husband for fifteen years. The children are Carlisle Garrison of Jersey City; Mrs. Josephine F. Herr of Essex Falls, N. J., and Mrs. Geraldine Lane of Summit, N. J.

In leaving his holdings to his housekeeper, Justice Garrison wrote:

"I give, devise and bequeath to Winifred Dallin all of my property, real and personal, in fee simple, and outright. I appoint said Winifred Dallin executrix in this will."

Miss Dallin is about 40 years of age. She had been housekeeper for Justice Garrison for many years. Under the laws of New Jersey a widow is entitled to a dower interest of one-third of her husband's real estate.

Dusting Liberty Bell May Prove Costly to City

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

PHILADELPHIA, May 4.—Dusting the Liberty Bell may cost the city of Philadelphia $3240 because Margaret Marter, an employee in Independence Hall, where the relic is kept, fell while cleaning it.

The State Workmen's Compensation Board has awarded her $10.80 a week while she is disabled. The maximum period over which the compensation can be paid is 300 weeks, which would make $3240.

Mrs. Marter said she fell off a stool while dusting the top of the bell and "skinned her shin." An infection developed, she said, which she asserted had totally disabled her.

WHO THEY ARE:

Elise Duchanier is a beautiful and innocent young girl of gentle birth, who, by misfortune, has sunk to be a dresser in a small Montmartre theater. Elsie has the care of a bed-ridden sister, who is attended by an elderly doctor, named Lapierre, who loves Elise. The young girl is dresser to the Parisian star,

Lolette, a gorgeous creature of flaming passions, glaring appearance and equally glaring morals. Elise's natural modesty and beauty is a thorn in Lolette's jealous side, and the star desires the downfall of her little dresser. Lolette's manager and protector is Maurice Brunel, the great entrepreneur, while another follower of Lolette is a certain Count Mordac. To this latter Lolette confides the fact that she is determined to ruin Elise.

Chapter IV
TARNISHED WINGS

Lolette was—Lolette. When one said that, one said all, for those who knew her. She was famous—perhaps notorious is the more fitting word—a wonderful tainted butterfly, with singed wings. She had made for herself a name, wealth, jewels, fine clothes—and she had paid for them with herself and her soul.

It was written there in her eyes as Elise looked into them, written clearly; and with it was that something else Elise had not before realized, that her own innocence, her own purity, were to Lolette a perpetual affront and reproach. Lolette might have her cars and her gems, her furs and her Paquin gowns—but she was poor beside the girl who brushed her hair and fastened her hooks and heard unmoved her revilings. This growing hatred went deeper than jealousy. Elise understood it then; it reached right down—far—to the depths of Lolette's black soul. Involuntarily Elise shuddered.

Lolette was smiling. It was as if a mask, slashed with crimson, smiled, with holes cut in its hardness behind which yellow lamps burned low.

"You tell me—you! And these fools of men smile at you! Why? For the sake of your beautiful eyes? Slut! I wasn't born yesterday." She paused, and her voice rose: "Are you going to brush my hair—or are you going to stand like a fool all night with the brush in your hand? Hurry!"

Elise fell to brushing again and as she did so, Lolette cried: "Heloise! Heloise! Dieu de Dieu! Where is that woman? Heloise!"

Heloise came hurrying, carrying in her hands the flimsy, priceless fragment of lace and jewels which was Lolette's only adornment for her Dance of Love. It was fastened on the vibrant white figure, setting off daringly its sweeping lines, its life and its promise. The clipped gold band which, when unfastened during the dance, loosed the mass of vivid hair, was snapped into place. Lolette was preening herself before the mirrors when the door of the room opened.

Elise, turning, had first only a quick glimpse of two white shirt fronts backed by the nebulous black of male evening wear. Then she recognized the men.

One was Maurice Brunel, the all-powerful entrepreneur, owner of the theater, whose word could make or break anybody in French theatrical circles—anybody, that is, except Lolette. He was a big man, stout, with a face slightly flushed on the cheeks, and a hard, straight mouth under-hung by a solid jaw. His eyes were gray and small and quick, set deep under heavy brows.

The other was that Count Mordac who was, at the moment, Lolette's most favored suitor, and whose attentions to Elise had assisted in arousing the dancer's wrath. He was a wealthy, cosmopolitan financier of dubious ancestry, a dark man, slim, with narrow white hands and eyes like black pools in shadow; a suave man, who always spoke softly and with a smile.

Old Heloise, seeing who the visitors were, withdrew, and Elise stepped forward with the intention of replacing the heavy silver brush on the dressing-table and followed her. In doing this, she stubbed her foot against the leg of Lolette's stool and stumbled, so that the brush fell from her hand and slid to the feet of Mordac, while she herself would have fallen also but that Brunel put out his hand and caught her arm.

"Careful!" said Brunel. "You'll hurt yourself."

Lolette had opened her lips to loose a torrent of vituperation, but suddenly she changed her mind and stood watching, her eyes almost invisible, narrowed down to thin slits of swimming light, her crimson lips swisted into a sneer. She might have been the ironic spectator of some little episode with which she had nothing in common, but which she very well appreciated.

Mordac was picking up the brush.

Elise, now steady on her feet, looked up at Brunel, who still gripped her arm and smiled down into her face.

"Thank—you," she said. "Thank you." There was that in Brunel's expression, which made her speech halting. "I nearly fell."

The pressure of his fingers on her arm was firmer than was necessary. In fact, there was no need for him to hold her any longer.

"You did," he said quietly. "But I saved you." His arm moved, as though to draw her toward him, and then he released her—smiling.

Mordac held out the brush with a little inclination of his head.

"Permit me also to assist," he said.

Elise took the brush and laid it on the table. She was shaky and flustered and a little frightened, for she was realizing about these two men something which had hitherto escaped her conscious knowledge; that each in his way was possessed of a certain force, an unswerving strength, which seemed typified in their attitude toward her during this little incident. Brunel had gripped her, held her, made to draw her toward him. Mordac had stood aloof, offering suavery, with a well-tuned phrase. Yet the threat of them had been equal—if there was a threat outside her own imagination.

And Lolette. She ventured a glance at Lolette. The dancer was yet very still, yet with the same sneer, the same narrowed eyes. She sighed exaggeratedly as Elise replaced the brush, and her white shoulders lifted high.

"Mon Dieu!" she breathed.

Elise walked to the door. As she went she saw that Brunel was watching her, but that Mordac was watching Lolette. He seemed amused.

It was later, over supper at a night restaurant, that Mordac, alone with Lolette, ventured to mention Elise.

"You were not pleased, cherie, that your dresser should stumble. Hein?"

Lolette, her cheeks flushed beneath their make-up, sipped the half-consumed champagne before her.

"Tcha! I was contemptuous, I! She is such a simpering baby—so modest! Dieu! Modesty! She exudes it. She is too wholly virtuous to admit that lips were made for kissing, and not talking."

Mordac nodded with becoming gravity. He understood Lolette very well, this slink, smooth man; and he knew perfectly well the rock-bottom foundation of her hate for Elise. For he could read the difference in them with ease—the one leapt from the gutter, lacking refinement and elegance, and possessing only a certain slashing confidence to carry her through; the other gentle, with breeding all about her, toppled into the mire by giant circumstances and yet preserving herself and her beauty with patient fortitude.

"So, so," he said. "But what would you? It is not all of us who realize our gifts." Lolette did not appreciate the irony of this.

"Gifts, you say! You would call a characterless face and simpering continence gifts? Listen, mon ami! I am tired of that one. Understand? She affronts me!"

Mordac understood that very well; he had understood it long.

"She shall learn." Lolette, warmed by the champagne, was speaking eagerly. "She shall learn. She shall discover that there are—what says that poet?—more things in heaven and earth—" She laughed devilishly. "You know the rest. More than she dreams, I shall arrange it—I, Lolette. That she should be insolent dumbly to me! She! I will teach her!"

Mordac's lips had lost their smile, and he was very earnest. "You mean that you would—?" he began, and left the sentence significantly unfinished.

"I shall teach her!" repeated Lolette.

Mordac's lips pursed. He watched Lolette quietly, slyly. "How?" he asked.

Lolette laughed. She was mightily mysterious. She finished her champagne.

"There is a man through whose hands pass many girls, girls who wish to get on, and make for themselves a name—like me. That is all. I have an idea. I shall teach her!"

And Mordac, sitting back, watching the smoke wreathe lazily upward from the top of his fat cigarette, has a sudden, vivid memory of Brunel holding Elise's arm and making to draw her toward him, and, with the memory, realized why Lolette had been so inexplicably silent at the time.

Brunel—He took up his champagne cup and twisted its slim stem in his white fingers. Brunel—Well, there were others, beside Brunel, to whom Elise's beauty appealed.

He smiled across at Lolette and remarked on the heat.

Chapter V.
ON THE BRINK

For a fortnight Elise waited for the dismissal she deemed inevitable, and for a fortnight Lolette watched her slyly, her yellow eyes aglow. In that time Elise found something freshly sinister about her mistress. Lolette's reviling ceased. No longer was the shrill, piercing voice lifted in invective; no longer were the ears of Elise assailed by that sonorous insult of which the French tongue is peculiarly capable.

Lolette was quiet. She spoke softly. She said "please" and "thank you." Once she used the word "cherie." It will be understood that there were no delicate shades of subtlety in Lolette's nature. She was not as Mordac, finding the easy, smooth way through life, avoiding the corners and the hills with facile elusiveness. She was mentally the same as her outward appearance, all flaring color, extremes of light and shade, and when she wished to be cunning with Elise she overdid it.

For in her quietness and her new-found politeness Elise read a threat unutterable. To her strained imagination it was as though some deadly creature drew back, breathless, watching, able to pounce and destroy at any moment, but wishful of prolonging the sport to the ultimate second.

It was, perhaps, a small matter, this losing of her position; yet Elise magnified it to the crisis of her life, and found an innate, inexplicable justification for doing so. She may have been clairvoyant in those days, as people are sometimes when they stand on the brink of a mighty change. On the horizon of her life the clouds were gathering. She could feel the net of circumstances closing about her, and yet could point to no tangible indication of its presence. She was gripped fast in the fingers of destiny, and must go whither those fingers placed her. So she trod forward, afraid, shivering, waiting, understanding within herself that she had but to leave the theater, to get away from Lolette, to escape that which was threatening her, and yet knowing that it was impossible for her to take the step. She must go on—she must meet whatever Fate held in store for her.

She stayed much with her sister, Marthe, in those days, in their little room high above the Rue Jacques, within a stone's throw of Cacre Coeur. It was a long room, with a narrowed section curtained off. In this section were two beds, and on one of them Marthe lay chained and a prisoner.

They were much alike, these two sisters, and yet between them was all the difference in the world. In Marthe, Elise's junior by two years, was reflected Elise's hair, black and fine, Elise's regularity of feature and Elise's blue eyes; but the blackness of the hair was dull, the face was worn and drawn and white, and the eyes were dimmed and torn with suffering and longing. Marthe was not beautiful like Elise, for Marthe had lain on her back through three long years of patient suffering, while Elise battled for her and Dr. Lapierre tended her.

One night Elise found Marthe lying awake when she returned from the theater, and she lifted her frail, thin hand as Elise entered the room.

"Hello, Elise." There was a little excitement in Marthe's voice which drew from Elise a quick, inquiring look. "I have had company this evening. Doctor came in to talk to me."

"Dr. Lapierre?"

"Who else? He thought I might be lonely, so he dropped in."

"I see." Elise removed her hat and took off her jacket. Marthe lay and watched her for a space silent. Then she said suddenly: "Elise! Did you know the doctor loves you?"

Elise dropped her jacket. She was rosy from throat to forehead. Martha nodded eagerly and went on. "He told me so tonight. It was like a bit out of those stories you read to me—just like that. He was very earnest and solemn. He said he would like to marry you, and then he would care for both of us properly."

"He was joking," said Elise lamely, still red. It was, she thought, unfair of Lapierre to choose this method of furthering his suit.

"He wasn't," Marthe's eyes were wide and unnaturally bright. "He meant it. He was speaking the truth. I knew that. Do you think you would marry him, Elise?"

Elise shook her head. "He is joking," she repeated. "Why should he wish to marry me? And now, look! You have excited yourself and you will feel ill tomorrow. You must rest and get to sleep."

Marthe was disappointed and lay watching Elise as she undressed and until she got into bed, leaving alight the little lamp which always burned by Marthe's bed all through the night. Elise was snuggling down between the sheets when Marthe touched her timidly.

"Elise! I can't sleep. My head is all whirring—like wheels. Tell me a story, one of your own, about love."

So Elise sat up, with her hair tumbled gloriously about the whiteness of her shoulders, and told a story—a pitiful, almost incoherent stringing together of romantic incidents, with always the beau chevalier and the beautiful maiden dominating it; while Marthe lay back and listened, and saw dream castles lifting on the wall at the foot of the bed.

When Elise had finished, Marthe said sleepily: "You tell me these stories of love, Elise, and yet when love comes to you you pass it by."

Elise, still with the memory of the golden youth she had tried to paint for Marthe's benefit, had a quick vision of Lapierre's gray hairs, his age, his rounded shoulders; of Brunel, as he had gripped her arm that night; of Mordac's deep eyes smiling at her across the silver brush out-held in his slim hand.

"Ah—love!" she said bitterly. And though their beds were so close together Marthe did not hear her crying.

Sometimes, in those days, Lolette talked to Elise in a half-friendly, half-patronizing way, with a little undercurrent of cold sneering beneath it, which, try as she would, she could not altogether eliminate.

It was after a matinee, and Elise was kneeling at Lolette's feet, putting on the dancer's walking shoes.

"I understand from Heloise that you dance. Is it true?"

Elise looked up, slightly flushed. "It is nothing, madame. Sometimes they have persuaded me to—to try." She hardly knew how to express it.

"Heloise tells me that you are good at it—that you have danced some of my dances up here in the dressing-room. Is that so?"

Elise wondered why old Heloise should babble so, and wondered how long Lolette had known that sometimes, to amuse the others, she had imitated Lolette while Lolette was on the stage and the echoes of her dance music reached up from the orchestra.

She made frank confession. "I don't think I am good, madame; but I have always loved dancing."

"So!" There was a note of mingled menace and triumph in Lolette's purring voice. "And you imitate me, eh? Well, it is sincere flattery, that. Is that shoe fastened?"

"Yes, madame."

NAVY UNITS TO BE INSPECTED

Battleships Must Remedy Defects, Says Admiral

Robison Gives Order to Ships Based Here

Changing Personnel Blamed for Inefficiencies

Serious deficiencies of the American naval forces, as pointed out in a communication to the Navy Department by Admiral Robert E. Coontz, are to be remedied as far as possible by the efforts of the forces themselves, it became known yesterday. Admiral Coontz, in a communication to Admiral Samuel S. Robison, commander-in-chief of the United States Battle Fleet based at Los Angeles Harbor, has ordered an investigation of the deficiencies of all ships of the fleet.

All unit commanders have been subsequently ordered to keep Admiral Robison informed of the results of these investigations. The report is considered by naval officials here to indicate Admiral Coontz's determination that the defects of the fighting ships shall be remedied, so far as action originating in the fleet may have that effect.

COONTZ'S ORDER

In his order Admiral Coontz said:

"To the end that the mobility of the fleet may be improved, the commander-in-chief, United States Fleet, directs that hereafter whenever any ship fails for any month to make a satisfactory score in engineering performances or for any year a satisfactory merit, the unit commander to which the ship belongs will investigate, to determine the causes, and will take active measures to assist the ship in question to improve her performance. This investigation is separate from and in addition to any formal legal investigation required.

"The commander-in-chief believes that the unsatisfactory performances are in the main due to the following causes:

"(a.) Failure of the ship to follow the best standard practice. This entails study of the manual of engineering instructions, bulletins, reports of exercises, etc.

INSPECTIONS IRREGULAR

"(b.) Failure of unit commanders to inspect regularly; and thereafter to follow up unsatisfactory conditions developed and to initiate remedies.

"(c.) Failure to allow, after an extensive navy yard overhaul, a few days for the examination of machinery, minor adjustment of machinery, and shakedown of personnel into the organization when such is advisable.

"(d.) Failure to see that adequate uninterrupted time for overhaul is allowed and utilized. One week to three should be ample for any ship; one week in four may suffice under favorable circumstances.

"(e.) Failure to reduce the operations of a ship to a degree consistent with the inadequate quality and quantity of the personnel available for the particular ship.

"(f.) Bad history, especially the failure to fully and properly repair the ship, first by the forces afloat, second by the navy yard overhaul.

INEXPERIENCE OF OFFICERS

"(g.) Insufficient rank and general inexperience of captains and executives. For example, in a destroyer the executive officer should be a Naval Academy graduate not below the rank of lieutenant.

"(h.) Insufficient rank and general inexperience of senior engineer officers. For example, in a destroyer it is a reasonable expectation that the senior engineer will have at least two years' commissioned service.

"(i.) Failure to keep filled the standard allowance of officers.

"(j.) Inadequacy of skilled ratings, both quantity and quality.

"(k.) Lack of permanency of personnel. The turnover of officers and men has been very high. Its effect is bad. It wastes time, decreases ship and unit spirit, and robs officers and men of interest, loyalty and sense of responsibility."

SAYS HELEN OF TROY LIVED

Chicago Egyptologist Asserts King Tut Documents Reveal Fair Trojan as Real Woman

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, May 4.—Helen of Troy was a real woman. That's the discovery that has been made from recent excavations in Egypt and Asia Minor. Dr. James H. Breasted, head of the oriental languages department of the University of Chicago is the authority.

Dr. Breasted has just returned from a four-months' stay in Egypt, where he has been deciphering manuscrpits found in the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen, which, by the way, is now spelled by those who know—Dr. Breasted included—"Tutenkhamon." In the tomb are manuscripts that will fill out and amplify all the history of Egypt now known, he says, and also will throw a light on ancient Grecian history.

For example, there have been found documents in the tomb to show the serious effect Tut-Ankh-Amen's revolutionary belief in freedom of thought and individuality had on the politics of his time. They supplement the vague information regarding the franctic efforts of his girl-widow to save her throne by an alliance with a prince of the Hittites in Asia Minor.

IS TREASURE HOUSE

It is in this ancient correspondence that Dr. Breasted has discovered documents supplementing recent discoveries in Asia Minor, showing that there was a Trojan war, and that Helen, the lady for whose sake ships were sunk and battles raged, was a real woman and not the figment of the imagination of a roving Greek minstrel.

"The tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen," Dr. Breasted said, "is a treasure-house of ancient art. It survived from a revolution which was the first period of spiritual emancipation in human history."

This revolution, he explains, was caused by Tut-Ankh-Amen and his father-in-law. They declared in favor of one god, caused their artists to draw pictures of the King in intimate and realistic poses, and allowed freedom of thought.

All of this was done for the first time in Egyptian history, and shocked and horrified all the old first families in Egypt. The result, history shows, was that the throne was wrested from Tut-Ankh-Amen's widow and the old reactionary regime resumed.

ACTED AS MEDIATOR

Dr. Breasted had occasion to act as somewhat of a mediator in the misunderstanding between Howard Carter, excavator, and the Egyptian government. In the capacity of head of the Oriental Institute, supported by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., he worked to make possible the uninterrupted progress of the study of the contents of the tomb.

"Said Zaghloul, the Prime Minister of Egypt, expressed to me the belief that the new Egyptian government should accord the fullest consideration to the claims of science in the administration of the priceless heritage of monumental remains for which he and his colleagues are now responsible, both to the people of Egypt and to the world," Prof. Breasted said.

"The other Egyptian Minsters, especially Morcus Pasha Hanna, Minster of Public Works, have expressed to me their desire that in the matter of salvaging the magnificent works of art which remain still untouched in the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen, the requirements of science be fully met."

RALLY FOR COOLIDGE AT MADERA

"Stockton Republican" in Message Says President Will Carry San Joaquin

FRESNO, May 4.—A Coolidge rally was held Saturday night in the Madera City Hall, former District Attorney Sherwood Green presiding. Lewis H. Smith, nominee for delegate to the Republican National Convention, declared "it is unthinkable that California will fail to support President Coolidge next Tuesday. California has been signally honored over any other State with Wilbur and Hoover in the Cabinet and will surely express its appreciation.

"The State cannot afford to place itself out of harmony with the almost unanimous determination of the entire nation."

Theodore M. Stuart declared that California will vindicate the integrity of its Republicans with an overwhelming vote of confidence in the President. Hubert H. Briggs of Stockton wired that no longer was there any doubt that San Joaquin county will take its place in the Coolidge column.

Mrs. Fisher R. Clark, formerly president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, is directing the Coolidge campaign at Stockton. Tennant Harrington, a stalwart Colusa Republican leader, advised of the formation of the Colusa Coolidge Club with J. F. Campbell, president, and F. E. Buffam, secretary. Following are the vice-presidents: Mrs. J. H. Balsdon, Mrs. C. J. Morse, Mrs. Tennant Harrington, Mrs. J. F. Campbell, F. L. Scott, W. H. Ash and W. M. Harrington.

RUSSO-GERMAN CRISIS SUBSIDES

Departure of Soviet Envoy Delayed Till Tuesday

Diplomatic Immunity Claim of Bolsheviks Denied

European Capitals Eagerly Awaiting Outcome

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

BERLIN, May 4.—M. Krestinsky, the Russian Ambassador, who was to have left Berlin for Moscow last night, has postponed his departure until Tuesday. There are indications that the political confusion caused by the entry of the German police into the building of the Russian trade delegation in a search for the Communist leader Botzenhardt is subsiding.

Since the Germans expelled M. Joffre and the entire soviet diplomatic mission in October, 1918, under the charge that the mission was carrying out Communistic propaganda, there had been no such excitement in Russo-German official circles.

RIGHT ADMITTED

The Communist newspaper, Rote Fahne, (Red Flag,) says: "Poincare cannot stand to have Germany keep up relations with any power which openly opposes the Versailles treaty, as does Russia."

The Vossische Zeitung says the Germans had a right to search the mission, but that they were a bit hasty and that the police should first have consulted the German Foreign Office.

M. Krestinsky asserts that the Russian Trade Mission enjoys diplomatic immunity under the trade agreement signed before the Rapallo treaty. The German government denies this.

OUTCOME WATCHED

The soviet government also has a medical mission, a political "laboratory" and several other missions in Berlin. Consequently its extra-territoriality would be widespread throughout the German capital if it should gain its point for diplomatic immunity. European diplomats are watching the outcome of the situation with much interest because of the bearing the question may have on negotiations in London between the Russians and British and its effect on other countries which established trade relations with the Russians under the condition that no Communistic propaganda should be carried on.

Krestinsky insists that the trade mission will be kept closed indefinitely as a protest against the search. He charges that 600 police went through the records of the mission and that this clearly was more than a search for a fugitive.

TRAFFIC IN NARCOTICS DECLINING

Sharp Drop in Use and Sale Shown in Report of Division Chief

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Illegal importation, use and sale of narcotic drugs are rapidly declining, according to a report transmitted to Prohibition Commissioner Haynes by L. G. Nutt, head of the narcotics division of the prohibition unit.

Opium importations were shown to have fallen from 471,000 pounds annually for the ten years prior to 1915, when the Harrison Act became effective, to less than 136,000 pounds in 1922, with a reduction in per capita consumption of thirty-six grains to seven grains.

Reductions also were shown in the sale of the various alkaloid derivitives of opiums and importation of coca leaves from which cocaine is made.

"We are convinced," the report added, "there is no increase in the use of narcotics in the United States. Conditions are bad enough, but not so bad as some would try to depict."

A recent investigation was said to have disclosed alarming smuggling operations on both east and west coasts. Large quantities also were said to come in from Mexico and Cuba.

The report estimated there are upward of 500,000 drug addicts in the United States, 75 per cent of whom belong to the habitual criminal class.

GOOD ATTENDANCE AT REALTY BOARD MEET

FORTY CITIES REPRESENTED AT QUARTERLY PARLEY OF STATE SOCIETY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—Forty cities of California were represented at the quarterly meeting of the boards of directors of the California Real Estate Association, in session here over the week-end. At the business meeting yesterday Jesse J. Inman of Stockton resigned as regional vice-president, owing to pressure of business, and Fred R. Caldwell of Oakland was selected as his successor.

The directors discussed the establishment of a branch office of the association in San Francisco. A conference was held with the California Land Settlement Board on the topic of multiple listing of farm lands. It was decided to run a State train to the National Realtors' convention in Washington, the 28th inst. Plans also were made for the State convention at Pasadena October 8 to 11.

President Henry P. Barbour of Long Beach offered a silver scroll to the real estate board producing the best glee club.

Who can you get to live for you?

IN CHINA a man who is sentenced to die may hire someone to take his place. In this country every man must die for himself. There can be no compromise with the inevitable. Man passes, and his possessions go to others.

This confronts the prudent man with the problem of getting someone--not to die for him, but to live for him--to protect the interests of his family. Consider. Could you safely today withdraw your guidance and turn your property over to your wife and children for management or disposition? That is exactly what you will do some day, unless you make better provision.

Have your loved ones the experience necessary to conserve their inheritance? Without it the task is almost hopeless. The average estate lasts only nine years after administration, while 90% of those of over $5000.00 are dissipated within seven. St. Mark's This Time Will See Indian Ceremonies and More Dancing

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, May 4.—Another "test service" to take place next Sunday, three days before the opening of the diocesan convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church, is announced by Dr. William Norman Guthrie, rector of St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie, which has been deprived of Episcopal ministration by Bishop Manning.

As at the first "test," the Eurythmic ritual in honor of the Annunciation of the Virgin, invitations have been sent to a large number of Episcopal clergymen.

Dr. Guthrie will present in celebration of American Indian Day, a pageant including responsive readings, prayers, sons of praise, compiled from American aboriginal rites and ceremonies. This part of the service will be conducted within the church with the chancel curtains drawn. After the offertory the congregation, led by the clergy and Chief On-Ke-Non-Ton, the Running Deer of the Mohawk tribe in ceremonial garb, will pass into the east yard of the church. There seven girls will present a ceremonial dance representing the planting of the seven varieties of corn.

Amundsen Has Planes Ready for Pole Dash

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

COPENHAGEN, May 4.—Roald Amundsen, the Arctic explorer, has completed his plans for his flying trip to the North Pole, it was announced today, with indications that there will be no change before the flight starts June 1. Three hydroplanes are to be used.

The expedition will leave Pisa on June 1 or 2, proceeding to Marseilles and along the French Rivera and the Rhine to Kiel and thence to Copenhagen arriving here June 5 or 6.

From Copenhagen they will go to Christiania, remaining there a few hours before proceeding to Bergen. The last landing place is Tromaco, from which place they will jump off to Spitzergen. The distance from Tomaco to Spitzbergen is approximately the same as from Spitsbergen to the North Pole.

Women of All Faiths Will Have Full Votes

Constitutional Amendment Goes to 1926 Convention

Mrs. Ashley of Los Angeles Named Vice-President

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, May 4.—The foremost issue confronting the Young Women's Christian Association during past years was brought to a conclusion yesterday when delegates to the national convention voted by a large majority to allow women of all faiths full voting membership in the association.

The amendment to the constitution accepting this change, however, will not become effective until it has been approved by the 1926 convention.

Each local association, under the amendment, retains the right to decide whether it desires to adopt the new policy or adhere to the old, which provides that the organization's voting and office holding membership be limited to members of Protestant Evangelical churches.

Voting privileges under the amendment would be extended to "any woman or girl over 18 years of age, provided she makes the following declaration:

DECLARATION REQUIRED

"I desire to enter the Christian fellowship of the association. I will loyally endeavor to uphold its purpose in my own life and through my membership in the association."

The new regulations would require that three fourths of the members of the board, including three-fourths of the officers of the association be members of churches eligible to membership in the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. The same qualification would be required of three-fourths of the voting members of each local delegation at the national convention.

ANGELENO HONORED

The following officers were nominated without opposition: President, Mrs. C. R. Wilson of Detroit; first vice-president, Mrs. Chester C. Ashley of Los Angeles; second vice-president, Mrs. Elisabeth Skinner of Dunedin, Fla.; secretaries, Miss Bertha Pabst of Washington, D. C., and Miss Lois Kugler of Boston.

The national students' assembly elected the following officers for two years: President, Miss Rachel Dunaway, University of Texas, Austin; first vice-president, Miss Emma McAllister, Spellman Seminary, Atlanta, Ga.; second vice-president, Miss Rebecca Chalmers, Wellesley College, Wellesley, Mass.; secretary, Miss Mary Wilson, Wesleyan College, Macon, Ga.

The assembly adopted a budget of $95,000 for the year and agreed to raise $26,000 additional as a gift for foreign work.

Detroit Holds Three Wanted in Los Angeles

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Dispatches from Detroit yesterday reported the arrest of Edward Barsook, 30 years of age, and his wife, Rose, 27, who are under indictment in Federal court here on charges of fraud and concealment of assets. They were arrested Friday on behalf of credit association agents of Los Angeles and Chicago, the dispatches stated.

Also held by Detroit authorities is Maurice Plotler, 28, brother of Mrs. Barsook. The trio were held as fugitives from justice under bail of $2000 each for the men and $1000 for Mrs. Barsook. They will be arraigned in Detroit on the 24th inst.

Credit agents asserted the Barsooks and Plotler opened a grocery store in Los Angeles two years ago under the name of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Evans. Merchandise valued at $30,000 was obtained on credit, it is charged.

DIRECTORS APPOINTED FOR POLITICAL CONVENTION ACTIVITIES

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

BUFFALO (N.Y.) May 4.—The work of the National League of Women Voters at the major political conventions was planned by the league's board of directors, meeting for the last time in post-convention session yesterday.

Mrs. Richard Edwards of Peru, Ind., was appointed director of the league activities at the Republican national convention in Cleveland in June and Mrs. Solon R. Jacobs of Birmingham, Ala., was named to direct the work at the Democratic gathering in New York.

Any third party convention to be held will be attended by Miss Elisabeth J. Hauser of Girard, O.

The directors have planned to work out planks from the various legislative suggestions in the league program for possible presentation at the conventions.

Mrs. Maud Wood Park, retiring president, was named chairman of a special committee to extend the league activities among college women.

CUTTER BEAR STARTS ON ANOTHER JOURNEY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—The Coast Guard cutter Bear left San Francisco yesterday on its thirty-eighth yearly voyage to the Arctic Sea. The 50-year-old wooden vessel is on what is believed to be its last voyage to the scattered settlements north of Bering Straits. Plans are before Congress for appropriation of $925,000 to replace the Bear with a steel ship. The Bear was built in Scotland in 1874 for the British government and was bought by the United States six years later. Since 1886 it has made yearly cruises to the Arctic, going from settlement to settlement on the coast north of Nome carrying medical equipment and other supplies.

WHERE THE TRAFFIC FLOWS

It was one of those traffic blocks with which we Angelenos are so familiar. I was waiting for my car—my chauffeur always says: "Fare, please." A limousine halted quite close to where I stood, and in that brief interval I saw a drama rising to its climax.

There are limousines, and—limousines. This was of the latter sort. Long, roomy, low hung, richly upholstered within, glossy and balloon tired without, with a powerful engine that purred like a drowsy cat. There's a lot of character in cars. Some are as simple and matter of fact as a farmer's wife carrying eggs to market. Others are the aristocrats of the motor world. And then there is that rarer type, the insolent foreigner that shoulders his way through the traffic as did the army officers in Berlin that fatal spring of 1914. Such an one was this.

A woman sat at the wheel. She was large, florid; her coat was a rich brown with deep cuffs and collar of dyed ermine. In the tonneau were two children appareled as was their mother, from the exclusive shops.

Beside the woman was the huddled figure of a man; small, thin, nervous. Intently he studied a yellow sheet on which were many figures—one of the sort accountants hand the president when the day of reckoning has come. With the thumb and finger of his right hand he twisted and tortured his underlip. It was a thin hand, tremulous, delicate as a woman's.

As the woman waited for the traffic to move, her roving glance fell on the man beside her. Instantly she reached out and pulled his hand from that anguished under lip much as she might have stopped a child from sucking his thumb.

The man's hand dropped limply; he shrank closer to the window. I saw his face then, and the agony of fear in his eyes. The brows were drawn together above the clear brown eyes that stared into mine unseeingly.

I have seen the look before. It is one of desperation, touched with bewilderment. It is the look that comes when creditors are hammering at the door which customers are hurrying past, lest they be stopped and asked to settle overdue accounts. It is the look that comes when a man's notes are called at the bank.

Then the car glided forward and was swallowed by the shadows of the tunnel.

And the woman at the wheel? Did she know? I think not; few women do. But these be perilous times for the man at the wheel. Thousands of men throughout the land are studying yellow sheets covered with figures and wondering how they may weather the storm. But I think if one had questioned the woman she would have laughed and said: "Poor Arthur! He's worrying again."

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Dear Mrs. C.: You're too self-conscious about going back into business after being out of it so long. A simple one-piece silk dress of some non-clinging weave with smart collar and cuffs of washable material makes a good work dress. For the summer the noncrushable linens are excellent. You can get them in the shops from $10 up; two with the silk should last you till September. After the first months you will have fallen into the routine of the work. Don't worry about the responsibility. A mountain never seems half so steep after you start to climb.

Dear Miss G.: Our letters crossed. I think you might find a place where you could work for your room and board while taking your training in beauty-parlor work. This would save you that expense, and you should be ready for a position in three months.

Dear Ella: Why don't you lease that "old house by the side of the road," fix up the interior—you can paint and do the paper-hanging yourself—and hang out a sign telling passers-by that food may be had there. You could call it "The Dutch Oven" and specialize in delicious pot roasts, or boiled dinners. Don't try for the fancy things. Be generous; have a shining coffee pot and fill the cups when they're half empty. Don't do anything to the outside of the house; leave the garden "overgrown with golden rod" just as it is. A weatherbeaten house in a riot of weeds has a charm of its own, but make the interior spick and span. Send me an envelope and I'll give you suggestions that should bring business.

TANKER ON REEF LEFT DRY BY TIDE

With Crew Safe, Effort to Float Stranded Ship Will be Undertaken

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

MONTEREY, May 4.—The Associated Oil tanker Frank H. Buck, which piled on the rocks at Point Pinos last night, was left high and dry at low tide today, its stern pierced by a reef. The ship was believed to be in no immediate danger of breaking up and company officials arrived from San Francisco to superintend the effort to float it. The sea was calm.

The crew of forty-three all had left the vessel. Eighteen of them, in one of the tanker's boats, made their way in the night to the Associated Oil docks at Monterey. The rest were removed after daylight with a breeches buoy line.

How the accident happened had not been determined definitely today. It was reported that Third Mate George Allen was in charge at the time and that he was not familiar with Monterey Bay.

The Frank H. Buck is a companion ship of the tanker Lyman Stewart, which was wrecked in the Golden Gate and rendered a total loss more than a year ago. The Buck herself had just come from drydock, where she was sent by the loss of a rudder off Eureka. Last October the ship was endangered by hitting a Columbia River sandbar.

Denies Inference of Separation of Whitney Couple

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, May 3.—Inference in San Francisco dispatches today that Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, heir to the Whitney millions, and his wife, the former Marie Morton, had parted, setting out from that city in different directions after closing their bungalow in the Burlingame Hills, was branded as an "outrageous lie" by Mrs. Whitney's father, Sheridan S. Norton, in this city.

Ten trunks filled with finery belonging to the bride of several months, were said to have been carted from the Burlingame cottage and consigned to New York and it was said that Mrs. Whitney was following them.

"It is my other daughter, Francis," Mr. Norton said, "who left San Francisco yesterday. She is now on her way home. Marie and her husband left together for a lengthy hunting trip to Canada."

QUAKE WARMS ALASKA SURF

Japan Current Makes Autumn Bathing Possible, Says Mining Man of Nome

The truth of the old saying that "it's an ill wind that blows no good" was demonstrated once more at the time of the Japanese earthquake, in the opinion of Charles H. Milot of Nome, Alaska.

Mr. Milot, who is at the Lankershim, says the usually frigid waters off the Alaskan coast were so warm last autumn that women and children indulged in bathing until late in the year, something that had never been done before.

"At Nome we attribute this condition to the effect of the earthquake," said Mr. Milot. "As you know, our shores are washed by the Japan current, which is the only thing that saves our section from being icebound this year around. Last fall, this current was warmer than ever before and the only explanation that can be given is that the high temperature resulted from the phenomena connected with the earthquake."

Mr. Milot is interested in mining and has lived in Alaska for more than twenty years. He stated that the mining industry in the vicinity of Nome is beginning to revive after the slump caused by the war.

MINING BY DREDGES

"Mining is carried on now chiefly by means of dredges, use of which has been greatly facilitated by the new method of thawing the ground by means of streams of cold water," he said. "Formerly steam was used for this purpose but the expense of this process rendered it prohibitive."

The mineralized areas still untouched about Nome aggregate hundreds of square miles, Mr. Milot said. The returns from dredging are sufficient to render this method of mining extremely profitable and he expects it to develop into a large industry in time.

MANY REINDEER

Aside from mining, the only other industry at Nome is reindeer raising. The land is treeless and not fit for agriculture, practically the only thing produced being the moss on which the reindeer feed.

"The number of reindeer in the herds about Nome at this time exceeds 300,000," Mr. Milot said. "One large company maintains herds aggregating some 50,000. Most of the animals, which were originally introduced in the Territory by the United States government, are being cared for by the natives, who are allowed a certain percentage of the annual increase.

"The cost of maintaining a reindeer is about $1 a year and the demand for reindeer meat in the markets of the East and on the Pacific Coast far exceeds the supply. The only problem is transportation, but this has now been solved in a measure by the establishment of a line of refrigerator steamships."

MARLAND PLANS ACTIVE DRILLING

Oil Concern to Put Down Sixty-four Wells

Standard Also to Develop Kern River Field

Desert Test Among Eight Holes Spudded In

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, May 4.—Following the recent invasion of the Marland Oil Company in the Kern county oil fields comes the announcement that concern is preparing to start the drilling of sixty-four wells on the west front of the Kern River fields, four miles east of Lerdo.

The Marland company has just leased land from Peter Cauley in Section 16, 28-27, for which the owner received a $50,000 cash bonus, with $50,000 more to come from the first oil produced and to be followed with a one-ninth royalty on all oil which comes from the property. It is said that Marland will start drilling at once.

Standard Leases

In the same field, the Standard Oil Company has several pieces of land located in Sections 35 and 36, 27-27, on which leases call for drilling within sixty days. It is reported that the Standard will begin hauling material to the property at once for the drilling of several wells.

The Union Oil Company, operating on Section 11, 28-27, on the Kern River west front, is preparing to bring in its first well at a depth of 1500 feet. Approximately seventy-five derricks are to be built in this district within a short time, it is asserted.

Eight Spudded In

Eight wells were spudded in last week in Kern county fields, four being in the Midway, three in the Sunset and one about eighteen miles northeast of Mojave. The latter well is located on the desert and is purely a test. It is being drilled by George A. Parsons on Section 10, 31-24, and is many miles from production.

North American Oil Consolidated has begun drilling its No. 8 well in the Midway on Section 30, 31-24. The other Midway wells spudded in are: Bell-Evans Oil Company, Inc., No. 6, Section 32, 32-25; Brockshire Oil Company, No. 12, Section 34, 31-22; Berry & Ewing, No. 6, Section 34, 32-24.

New Sunset Wells

In the Sunset field the new wells are Midway Oil Company, No. 10, Section 28, 12-24; General Petroleum Corporation, No. 1-A, Section 20, 11-25; C. J. Berry, No. 28, Section 34, 12-24.

Of the sixteen repair jobs started in Kern county last week, eleven are on property of the Standard Oil Company. Five of these are in the Midway field, four in the Elk Hills, one in the Sunset field and one in the Kern River field, with another at Wheeler Ridge.

Large Leases Bespeak Faith in Bakersfield

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, May 4.—Looking to the future development of new oil fields in Kern county and anticipating a decided increase in petroleum production in this district, the Standard Oil Company of California has leased large acreage near here.—M.

One parcel of land comprising 960 acres has been leased from T. Cahn and David and F. Weill. The property is located about twelve miles from Lost Hills and it is stipulated in the lease that $1920 shall be paid in advance for each year of the lease.

The property is described as being all of Section 35 and the east one-half of Section 34, 26-19. The lease calls for the payment of one-sixth royalty.

Additional land has been leased by the Standard Oil Company from Andre Lazard and Georgette Lazard. It is in the Lost Hills district and the rental price is $8070. The parcel is composed of 4013 acres.

The following land is described in the lease: The south one-half of Section 29, southeast one-fourth of Section 3, all of fractional Section 31 and the west one-half of Section 32, 26-20; the west one-half of fractional Section 5, all of fractional Sections 6 and 7, and the west half of Section 8, 27-29, and all of Section 36, 26-19.

BUTTONWILLOW TEST

Two Districts Watch Hole Made by Mendocino Midway

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BUTTONWILLOW, May 4.—Development activities in the Buttonwillow and Rio Bravo districts, where there has been considerable leasing of lands during the last few weeks, will be given impetus should the Mendocino Midway Oil Company bring in its well which is being drilled on Section 6, 30-24, just south of here.

The hole is down 5000 feet, but the company is making a test back at the 3600 and 3900-foot levels with the idea of bringing the well in at one of those depths.

Core tests have been made at both depths and it is believed that a good producing well can be developed at the 3900-foot level. Lease-holders in the two districts are watching the results with eagerness.

ENLISTS CALIFORNIA INTERESTS IN MINES

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TUCSON (Ariz.) May 4.—Capt. L. W. Rucker of the Whittier Southern Oil Company, which is drilling wells near Tucson and Douglas, has enlisted California capital in the development of twenty-one mining claims in Pinal county. The property, an old one, will be known as the Peak Consolidated Mines. It lies near the Tucson-Florence Highway and is readily reached. The main ore deposit is said to be of blanket formation, more than a mile long and more than 1000 feet wide.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY, CHEMISTRY

You are politely requested to submit samples carefully wrapped and tagged, with letter accompanying, stating what tests are desired. Make sample of small size. There is no necessity for big chunks. Correspondents offering matter for analysis with card, or scrap of paper, intended to show that the stuff is from Jim Jones, for instance, with no mark of identification on samples, will hereafter receive no attention. Analyses are made free of charge.

Chiefly Calcite

AJO (Ariz.) April 17.—Question: Sample marked Valley View No. 1 carries 2.8 per cent lead. Does it contain any other mineral? Valley View No. 2 is vein matter, what is its structure? In red matter, sample No 3, what are the concentrate with lead in the pan? Is antimony or bismuth present in any specimen? M.

Answer: All of the specimens run high in lime carbonate, and carry flake ilmenite with a like variety of hemantite (micaceous iron.) There is no platinum in any sample and no reaction for bismuth was obtained from any specimen.

Sample No. 1 contains galenite, iron carbonate, blackjack and antimony in very low percentages. Valley View No. 2 reacts chemically like No. 1; it is of massive structure, with traces of acicular stibnite, cube galenite and somewhat altered acicular blackjack. No. 3 carrier quartzitic matter with pink and white calcite; iron carbonate found; lead traces; slight reactions for zinc and copper, and ilmenite noted. No sample was tested for gold or silver.

Silvery Limonite

BISHOP, April 18.—Q.: Sample marked R. Kindly tell me what it is and if possible of what use. R.

A.: The very much altered rock shows more or less limonite (hydrous iron peroxide,) with traces of muscovite (potash mica.) Sericite, (margarodite variety) a hydrous mica of silvery luster, presents mineral of somewhat doubtful commercial value. Bismuth absent.

Tungsten Absent

TUJUNGA, April 19.—Q.: Many thanks for former favors. Am sending two samples for your opinion which I certainly appreciate. No. 1, Atolia, Cal., assays gold and silver; it comes near tungsten. What is the rock? My partner thinks it is scheelite (tungsten) in crystalized form. I have a vein ten feet wide of No. 2 which is a resin-looking rock and found near Barstow. Some say it is garnet, but I can't see it! HARD-ROCK MINER.

A.: We have yet to find crystalline scheelite of Atolia. "When tungsten comes in, gold goes out" is a maxim of the mining boys of Atolia. Sample No. 1 is chiefly lime silicate, and, practically does not contain any scheelite. Iron oxides, zinc and antimony traces found. No. 2 is known among the mining boys of the hills as "Rosin Rock." It is far from garnet and is iron silicate only. Such rock is good for mineral collections.

Not Chiastolite

BISHOP, April 19.—Q.: Kindly tell me if the sample I herewith mail to you is andalusite, (sparkplug mineral.) S.

A.: Andalusite scratches glass easily, it is 7.5 in the scale of hardness. Your specimen is 6 in the scale referred to. The variety of andalusite of value is chiastolite, known also as cross-stone, for the reason that when a piece of chiastolite is ground on the edges with a grindstone, a cross appears. Chistalite varies in hardness from 2 to 7.5. On rock represented by the sample, further work is called for in quantitative analysis.

Impure Lime Carbonate

Q.: I am sending you for classification six samples. Do any of them represent commercial values. The specimens are from Palm Springs, Cal. S.

A.: Sample No. 1 contains iron and manganese. No. 2 is calcite with a little strontium and hydrous silicates of aluminum and magnesium. Fuller's earth, sparingly found. Nos. 3, 4, 5 and 6 are, chemically, like No. 3. Celestite (strantium sulphate) should be found at the locality from which the specimens were obtained.

Magnetite Traces

SANTA ANA, April 21.—Q.: The sample was taken from a large deposit in San Bernardino county. I had assay made of it and it gave me a trace of gold with one ounce silver. The ore shows a very bright luster; could it be of aluminum or any mineral of commercial value? M.

A.: The powdered rock contains from oxides including micaceous iron. (hematite.) Zinc, lime carbonate, and antimony traces found.

Chloritic Rock

SAUGUS, April 21.—Q.: I am sending in some stuff to be analyzed for oil indications. It came out of a well being dug for water at 70-foot depth on the De Joe ranch, Mint Canyon. E.

A.: Oil not indicated. The sample carries mica, iron oxides and titaniferous iron.

Uranium Absent

COVINA, April 22.—Q.: I have just returned from a prospecting tour on the desert, and I have, with other minerals, discovered some that I cannot classify, so I am sending to you under separate cover samples marked 1, 2 and 3. Nos. 1 and 2 come from a vein about 4 feet wide and over a mile long. Please tell me if any commercial value is found in any sample. C.

A.: Sample No. 1 seems to be an altered chrysolitic rock carrying altered botryoical limonite (hydrous iron peroxide.) It is not Carnotite (double vanadate of uranium and potassium.) No. 2 is one of the order of No. 1 and shows some pyroxene with glistening hematite and flaky titaniferous iron. No. 3 is a burnt-up, cellular rock; hornblende and pyroxene present; iron and manganese found with zinc traces. Titaniferous iron and hematite noted.

Free Gold Absent

RIALTO, April 23.—Q.: Herewith a sample of quartz. Will you please tell me if there is anything of value in it and oblige. G.

A.: The—in part—Serpentine rock carries a little zinc with iron oxides and more or less hornblende.

Not Gilsonite

LOS ANGELES, April 24. Q.: Supposed to be Gilsonite or oil cropping. W.

A.: The sample is far away from the valuable hydrocarbon known as Gilsonite; a variety of Utah asphalt. Soot, lime carbonate, and gypsum, found in analysis. Further on this mixture calls for quantitative work.

Free Gold Absent

LOS ANGELES, April 24. Q.: Inclosed please find some sand found in a stream in Orange county, in the mountains. We drew off the "black sand" with a large magnet. Will you kindly tell me if it contains any mineral of value, I have been reading your interesting page for several years.

A.: The concentrates from the magnetite show yellow mica somewhat resembling native gold. Quartz, Hematite, ilmenite, and bronzite found under the microscope. The "sand" is probably of no commercial value.

Copper Trace

LONG BEACH, April 24. Q.: I herewith inclose sample of surface cropping from the country surrounding Saugus, Cal. I will be extremely obliged to have same tested for copper, gold, and silver, if any. M.

A.: The sample carries more or less iron oxides and chromite. Free gold is absent, and, for other values in gold and silver kindly consult assayers.

ORE PLANT WORKING

Nevada Mining Concern Starts New Milling Production

The Manhattan Consolidated Mines Company of Nevada has completed its milling plant and started production, treating gold ore which has been blocked out during the many years the plant has been developing.

There are many interesting facets regarding this property which is made up of five patented claims in the Manhattan mining district of Nevada. They were located twenty-five years ago and many rich strikes were made in the first 200 feet sunk.

A reorganization was effected in 1913, and a new shaft was sunk to sixty feet below the 500-foot level, and up to the present time over 7000 feet of levels are blocked out, with 75,000 tons of free milling and concentrating ore reported to be averaging around $15 per ton.

DATA GIVEN ON COAST'S USE OF OIL

Interesting Statistics Compiled for 1914 to 1923 on Crude Consumption

Carl J. Von Bibra, local petroleum statistician, has compiled some interesting figures relating to production and consumption of crude oil in this State. It appears that in 1914 Pacific Coast territory (including California, Oregon, Washington, Arizona, portions of Nevada, Alaska, Hawaii and part of British Columbia) consumed 260,000 barrels daily as an average for the year. In 1915 only 245,000 barrels a day formed the average.

With irregular increases consumption in 1921 had increased to 310,000 barrels daily average, but the depression of 1921 caused a drop to 285,000 barrels daily average. The mean average increase in consumption for six years from 1915 to 1921 was 8000 barrels annually. During the last five years California's expansion has brought a corresponding expansion in consumption of petroleum products until in 1923 the daily average for the year was 394,000 barrels, as nearly as may be computed from such data as are at hand. During the 1922-1923 production boom statistics of distribution of the output have been rather vague until recently, but are now at a stage where reasonable accuracy can be arrived at.

Basing 1924 probabilities on consumption upon the applied statistics from 1914 to 1923, it is fair to conclude, says Mr. Von Bibra, that the average daily consumption of petroleum products in 1924, embracing the areas mentioned above, will be approximately

ANOTHER GAIN AT SIGNAL HILL

Five New Wells Add 3000 Barrels Daily

Total Per Diem Average Last Week 173,000

Old Flowers Join Pumpers in Great Numbers

LONG BEACH, May 4. — With four new wells completed and on production and another well flowing at a 500-barrel rate during swabbing operations, the Signal Hill Field reached the end of last week with an added daily production amounting to about 3000 barrels. Total daily average production of the field at the end of the seven-day period was 173,000 barrels. Every day of the past week witnessed old-flowing wells joining the ever-increasing list of pumpers.

WEEK'S NEW WELLS

New wells during the week were:

The Shell Company's Patton-Kilson No. 1, which showed an initial yield of 700 barrels per day from about 4700 feet.

The A. T. Jergins Trust's Jergins-City No. 8, on municipal land, completed at 4350 feet and doing about 400 barrels on the pump.

The Lang Wall No. 3, completed at 4635 feet and doing about 100 barrels a day on the pump.

The Marine Oil Corporation's Marine No. 24, drilled to 4909 feet and showing an initial yield of approximately 1200 barrels.

In addition to the above, the Cari Maier No. 1, completed at 3350 feet, showed a flow estimated at 500 barrels a day during swabbing operations. Operators are confident that the Maier will be on production within the next day or two.

DELAYED IN MISHAP

An accident at Pan-American Petroleum Company's Stone well, an important test hole on the south slope of Signal Hill, will delay completion of operations there, it is asserted. The hole was drilled 5495 feet deep and was then backed up to the 4910-foot level. The drilling crew yesterday faced a long and tedious fishing job, the result of having dropped the tubing. The well is a Doheny property and is located on Catalina street.

Included among the wells that are expected to join the producing list during the next few days are the Flower State on Reservoir Hill, now drilling-in at 4900 feet; the San Martinez Oil Company's Booth No. 1, swabbing at 5100 feet; the Ramsey B-3 of the W. B. Ramsey interests, another Reservoir Hill well, and the Marine Oil Company's Aspex No. 14. The latter cemented its oil string Tuesday and was drilled to the 4620-foot level. The hole is located near Willow street on Orange avenue.

Perhaps the most promising activity at the close of the week centered around the Ramsey interests on Reservoir Hill, where four wells are trying for production. The Ramsey-McNaughton No. 1 drilling at 4221 feet, will be drilled close to 5000 feet, it is said. Ramsey-Morrison No. 1, now at 4400 feet, will also go down to 5000 feet. Both of these and the Flower State No. 1 as well as the Ramsey B-3 are said to be in good oil sand at their respective depths.

SAND FIND HINTS OF PROFIT

Better Prospect for General Petroleum No. 1 in Dominguez Field; 9400 Average Last Week

Prospects for profitable development of the northern section of the Dominguez field were materially improved last week with the discovery in the General Petroleum Corporation's White No. 1 of an oil sand at 4864 feet.

Prior to that discovery many operators doubted that the General Petroleum's holdings were worth the price paid for them, but the development in the White is now taken as an indication that the Gardena and White leases may prove profitable, at least in the southern parts.

The Gardena, White and Austin wells have been drilled along the south line of the three leases bearing those names. The sand in the Gardena and Austin wells was found at about the same depth, while the Austin sand was found at 5465 feet, 600 feet lower. According to geologists, this condition indicates that the general trend of the structure is almost west, with the Gardena and White wells apparently on the north dip at practically the same contour. The Austin well is on the western plunge.

In this connection it is noted that the Union Oil Company's Gardena, No. 1, which is almost in a line with the General Petroleum wells and about one mile farther west, is drilling at 5700 feet without a showing. This now is the deepest hole in the field.

It is considered probable that even if the General Petroleum succeeds in putting its Austin well on production no other project can be drilled successfully on the Austin lease due to the trend of the anticline, but it is thought likely that production can still be attained some distance north of the White and Gardena wells.

The General Petroleum is preparing to run casing and cement the Austin well. The White now is standing cemented. The Shell Company's Childs, No. 1, the outpost hole on the east, is standing cemented with an oil sand at about 3800 feet.

The total production for the field last week was about 9400 barrels a day, of which the Union Oil Company was getting 3600 barrels from four wells. The Carson, No. 1, and Callender, No. 2, together are making about 6000 barrels a day. The Shell's Reyes No. 1 and the General Petroleum Gardena, No. 1, are the only other two producers.

There is no prospect of an immediate increase in the production at Dominguez. The Childs, White and Austin wells are the only ones in oil sand and it probably will be several weeks before they are placed on production.

OIL STRUCK IN SHALLOW BEACH ZONE

General Petroleum Hits 650-Barrel Producer in Huntington Field

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

HUNTINGTON BEACH, May 4. The General Petroleum Corporation's Dabney No. 1 has been brought in, flowing 650 barrels of 25 gravity oil. The initial flow was 675 barrels a day, but it settled down to 650 barrels entirely clear of water and emulsion. It is 3025 feet deep and contains an oil string of 180 feet of slotted casing.

This well is of unusual interest in that it is in the shallow zone and looks as though it may be a long-lived producer. The gas pressure at the casing head is 415 pounds. The company reports that another well will be started on the property within a few weeks.

The second well to come into production last week was J. P. Newman's Bragg No. 1, which was first placed on production by the Talbert Oil Company October 18, 1921, from a depth of 2391 feet, causing considerable excitement then because of its terrific gas pressure. Several blowouts happened in the early history of the well. Sand trouble developed and only 100 barrels daily were pumped for a short time.

The well was taken over by J. P. Newman, who drilled it to 2718 feet and set the oil string. The well is now on the pump and is producing 100 barrels of 19 gravity oil with a gas pressure of 150 pounds at the casing head.

Much leasing activity is being shown on the east side of the field at present. The Pan-American Petroleum Company is acquiring considerable property. After obtaining a lease on the ten-acre Johnson tract it had an oil rig on the ground the day after the papers were signed.

This new rig makes 473, of which seventy-seven are drilling, 320 are on production and seventy-four are incomplete. The average yield per well in this field is 157 barrels.

OIL EXPORT GOES UP IN PAST WEEK

Harbor Shipments Jump Nearly 500,000 Barrels to 2,504,200 Total

Petroleum exports from Los Angeles Harbor during the past week made another upward jump, increasing from 2,022,050 barrels for the week ending April 25, to 2,504,200 barrels for the week ending May 2, a total increase of nearly 500,000 barrels.

Thirty-six tankers carried the oil from Los Angeles, fourteen being destined for Atlantic Coast ports, and fourteen for Pacific Coast points. Six vessels were destined for foreign ports, noteworthy among them being the Foldensfjord for London, carrying 82,000 barrels of gasoline. The other foreign-bound ships sailed for Vancouver, Tokuyama, Taku Bar, China, and two for Iquique.

FIELD MERGER IS IN PROSPECT

Standard Lease Indicates Action Near Whittier

Large Tract Said to be Taken by Company

Active Campaign Likely if Tests Show Well

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA FE SPRINGS, May 4.—Possibility that the Rideout field northwest of Whittier may be linked with the Santa Fe Springs field is seen in the recent action of the Standard Oil Company which is reported to have leased more than 400 acres of prospective oil land between Rideout Heights and the old producing field south of Los Nietos.

It is understood that this new lease is to be given a real test. The Standard is reported to have agreed to start drilling several wells within ninety days, which will be followed by an active campaign if the first tests are commercial producers.

This information, together with the fact that several geologists connected with the larger operating companies have advanced the opinion that a deeper producing sand probably underlies the Meyer zone at Santa Fe Springs, will go far toward giving impetus to interest in this section.

The exact geological connection of the Meyer sand at 4600 feet, producing 35 degree gravity oil, and the new O'Donnell sand at Whittier, yielding from 4200 feet with oil which tests 32 degrees gravity, has not been given out.

The George F. Getty organization in the Santa Fe Springs field has placed its No. 16 on production with a flow of 200 barrels. This well was drilled 4655 feet deep. It is believed that it later will be placed on the pump. Drillers say the flow may thus be increased.

NEARING PRODUCTION

Several wells drilled by the Union Oil Company are in the sand and should be ready for production soon. The Union's Farwell No. 3 is standing idle at 3900 feet in the sand. The No. 5 well on that lease is a rig and will be spudded in soon. The Meyer No. 11 well has been drilled 4620 feet deep and is standing in the oil sand ready for production tests. Bell No. 4 is down 4660 feet and in the oil sand. It will be placed on production shortly. The No. 10 well on that lease is fishing at 4700 feet and No. 26 is a rig to be spudded in within the next few days.

The General Petroleum Corporation added another producer to this field when its No. 10 was placed on production a few days ago with a flow of 120 barrels. This hole was drilled 4680 feet deep. The No. 78 well is cemented at 3950 feet and is pumping water, while the No. 37-A is swabbing at 3690 feet. The No. 86-A is standing cemented at 3960 feet.

The Standard Oil Company, which is the largest operator in the Santa Fe Springs area, is making preparations to place the Santa Gertrude No. 9 on production, having drilled the hole to 4500 feet. The No. 10 to be drilled on that lease by the Standard Oil Company is a rig, and No. 2 on the O. A. Houghton lease is being rigged for drilling with a rotary, while Orr No. 4 and Jordon No. 6 are rigs. The L. W. Houghton No. 1 has been drilled 4788 feet deep and is being bailed with no commercial showing thus far.

WESTERN EXTENSION

In the western extension the wells are progressing at a fair rate. The Oakridge Oil Company has recemented the Rossi No. 1 well and it is standing ready to be drilled out within the next ten days. Its Gage No. 1 is down 3840 feet and is drilling in shale while its K-B No. 1, started at the same time as the Gage, has reached 3600 feet and is in hard sand.

These wells follow practically the same log and their records to date are about the same as the log of the first well drilled in that section by Oakridge. Officials of the company take this as an indictation that all of the holes will be within the area of production. It has started Ogden No. 1 which has reached 500 feet and is still in the upper sands.

The Burbank Oil Company, which is drilling a test well closer to the producing area of the field than those drilled by the Oakridge Company, is taking a core at 4900 feet.

Reports from the Cal-Petro wells in the Bellflower district have not been encouraging lately. These wells have been taken over by the Superior Oil Company, and the No. 2 on the Barnes lease is drilling at 4400 feet in shale, while the casing is being pulled in the No. 1, which has been standing idle for some time.

WORKING IN SHALE

The Petroleum Midway Company is working in shale in the Neal No. 1, which is being drilled in the Norwalk district as a test. The hole is down 4100 feet and since 2800 feet no showings of an encouraging nature have been made. The Flox No. 3 well, which is being drilled by this company on the old Flox lease in the center of the Santa Fe Springs field, is down 3300 feet in hard sand. It is probable that a well will be obtained in this test at the Bell sand depth or in the Flox sand, which is a trifle shallower. The Mattern No. 1-2 is bailing at 4650 feet and the No. 1-4, No. 3-1 and 2-4 are to be redrilled and deepened. The Foster interests are planning to redrill the No. 50 well, which has been on production.

SCORE NEW WELLS ARE COMPLETED

Torrance Gets More Than Half of Producers for Local Oil Fields

The Los Angeles Basin oil fields completed twenty-three new producing wells during the week which ended Saturday. The Torrance field gets credit for fifteen of them, although most of them are small producers. The Long Beach field completed five wells of comparatively small size for that area, while Santa Fe Springs finished two and the Huntington Beach field finished one. The completions were as follows:

Fortuna to Set Casing in Well at El Segundo

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

EL SEGUNDO, May 4.—Considerable speculation has been aroused here by the preparations of the Fortuna Oil Company to set casing in its wildcat in the southeast section of the city. According to information given out by R. W. Edens, head of the company, eight-and-one-quarter-inch casing will be set at 4500 feet. The crew yesterday was completing the reaming of the hole for the pipe.

Previous to his departure for Taft about ten days ago, Mr. Edens is reported to have said that he did not intend to set any casing unless he found a showing warranting that expense. Last Sunday he was called back from his 160-acre lease in the Hovey Hills to inspect the El Segundo hole. From Sunday until last Wednesday the hole was cored constantly and on Thursday orders were given to set casing.

Since starting the Fortuna well at El Segundo, Mr. Edens has obtained holdings in the Hovey Hills district which was brought into prominence recently by the bringing in of a 250-barrel well at 2600 feet by the Kendon Petroleum Corporation.

Reports from the Pan-American's El Segundo wildcat are to the effect that the hole is down approximately 3800 feet. There is now about 125 feet of open hole below the shoe. The Standard's wildcat a mile north of the Pan-American's well is reported to be drilling at about 3600 feet.

TAR SAND IS FOUND NEAR TOP

Unusual Showing Located at 400-Foot Depth Near Rideout Heights

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

RIDEOUT HEIGHTS, May 4.—A sand about sixty feet thick and yielding a sort of tar oil, accompanied by gas, has been reached in several wells drilling here. The sand was found at 300 to 400 feet and is a radical departure from the usual formations located at that depth in other wells drilled near here.

The first showing of this sort was located in a well drilled by the Monjo-Johnson interests on the Clarke-Hotine lease and in the well which is being drilled on the California Royalties Company tract at the intersection of Lemon Road and Workman Mill Road.

Leases in this section have been changing hands rapidly of late. Companies have paid as high as $2000 per acre for oil rights, giving in addition a one-fourth royalty. Among the companies owning acreage now are the Petroleum Midway, Standard, Associated, Mohawk and Pan-American.

Three of the James O'Donnell wells are drilling at this time and two are on production. The No. 5 well, which was drilled on the Rideout tract, is making about 180 barrels of 20-degree gravity oil from a depth of 2800 feet. The No. 6 well, which is the deep sand discovery well, continues to flow at the rate of about 300 barrels daily.

This hole is still "barefooted," and is producing from about 4250 feet. The oil tests 32 degrees gravity.

The O'Donnell No. 8 well is deepening at 2100 feet, while the No. 1 well on the Strong lease is deepening from 3200 feet after having been on production from that depth for several months. The well on the United lease is to be deepened from 3200 feet within a short time, it is reported.

The well drilled by the Petroleum Midway Oil Company on leases owned by James O'Donnell, are making rapid progress. The Hamburg-Rideout lease well is at 2400 feet, the Witte-Vining No. 1 is drilling at 1800 feet, the Pellister No. 1 well is drilling at 2400 feet, and the Seward-Rideout No. 7 hole is down to 2350 feet.

The Standard Oil Company is taking a core in the Patten No. 1 well, which is down 2700 feet. Rigging is being completed by the Mohawk Oil Company, which is drilling the Dehny No. 1 well. The Pan-American Petroleum Company is rigging the Jearum No. 1, and the Taylor interests have reached 2700 feet in the hole on the land owned by the California Royalties Company. The Monjo-Johnson interests have reached 500 feet in the Clark well, and the well on the Crabtree lease is now a location with lumber on the ground for the rig.

Oil Is Found in Adamana Well Near Holbrook

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

HOLBROOK (Ariz.) May 4.—From the Adamana well, south of here comes definite information to the effect that oil has been found at a depth of 3365 feet. The company's managing director, C. W. Cook, tells of drilling through water sand, through three feet of hard gray lime and four feet of blue shale and into a thin stratum of dolomite, containing paraffin, and from these into oil sand.

Work was immediately stopped, as the management did not wish to tap oil while a column of 2800 feet of salt water was standing in the hole. This water is to be cemented off at once and drilling will then be resumed.

The Taylor-Fuller well, according to Dr. S. Earl Taylor, is proceeding slowly and carefully, to secure a water shut-off at 3465 feet. The well is said to be in favorable formation of the character expected by geologists, who think that the productive oil sand will be out within 300 feet.

SILVER LEAD SHIPMENT

High Grade Ore Sent to El Paso by Crow Mining Company

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

GLOBE (Ariz.) May 4.—A shipment of 360 tons of high-grade silver-lead ore has been made to El Paso by the Crow Mining Company which has five claims a short distance north of Radium Station on the Arizona Eastern Railroad.

From Rice has been dispatched the first carload shipment of high-grade asbestos from the property of the San Carlos Asbestos Mining Company, of which Charles A. Johnson is manager. The company's mines embrace thirty-seven claims near Lakeside, about thirty-five miles north of Rice. The product is of exceptional quality and carries a premium of 20 per cent above the market price of asbestos from Canada and Africa.

Plans Reported for Reopening Old Silver King

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SUPERIOR (Ariz.) May 4.—Report has been received that the old Silver King mine, just across a hill from Superior, again is to be worked. It has been in many hands during the past twenty years and at times has been a producer from ore seams on the upper levels. Most of the mine is under water that has come mainly from surface channels. The ore chimney that produced millions of dollars in silver bottomed at about 1000 feet, apparently in a slip that has not been traced. It is said that the lower levels show some change toward copper, as is usual in Arizona silver mines.

The Magma Copper Company this year is expected to show a substantial profit, which probably will be used in part payment of $5,000,000 or more spent in the erection of new reduction works and construction of a broad-guage railroad. During 1923 the company's report showed a net loss of $514,480, compared with a net loss of $701,762 in 1922. In each year these figures include depreciation charges.

When Great Oil Interests Bet Their Money—

YOU are in good company—wise company—when you acquire a lease in the great new oil field, THE SAN JUAN BASIN, NEW MEXICO.

YOU are assured of responsible, experienced neighbors when you become the owner of property near the scene where the great oil companies determine to own and operate.

THE SAFEST METHOD in making an oil lease speculation for BIG PROFIT and QUICK ACTION is to BUY ON THE JUDGMENT OF THE BIG COMPANIES—To go ahead of them, if possible and if not, to go along with them WHEN THEY START.

IN SAN JUAN BASIN a tremendous campaign of LEASING AND DEVELOPMENT is UNDER WAY. The great oil companies are there—ALL OF THEM. Derricks are sprouting. Enough wells are producing high gravity oil to speed the drilling of scores of other wells. The drive for fortune in this new oil field is on in earnest.

YOU CAN JOIN IN THE DRIVE AND CLAIM YOUR SHARE IN ITS RESULTS

Long before the great oil companies determined to spend vast sums in searching the SAN JUAN BASIN for oil, L. A. GILLETTE, former state engineer of New Mexico and a geologist of experience and repute, chose for me and my associates a considerable area of leases, well distributed throughout the basin. IN ALL THE SAN JUAN BASIN THERE ARE NO BETTER OPPORTUNITIES FOR THE INVESTOR THAN THESE LEASES AFFORD. They can be had for a time at a moderate price. They permit complete independence of ownership with all the vast speculative possibilities of a great new oil field where the great oil companies of the world believe they have found a new source of untold wealth. An oil lease is always a speculation. To those who cannot afford the small investment required, I say, leave these—and all other oil leases alone. To those who CAN AFFORD TO TAKE A CHANCE I say that these leases offer as great AND AS SURE a promise of quick, huge profit as was ever available in any oil field in the history of the industry.

If you want to take a chance nearby and on equal terms with the great, experienced, winning oil concerns of the world, see me without delay.

Activities In The Big Petroleum Fields

OUTPUT GAINS IN TORRANCE FIELD

Fifteen New Wells Brought in During Week

Additional Daily Production About 3000 Barrels

Hole on Del Amo Lease Now Center of Interest

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TORRANCE, May 4.—The completion of fifteen new producers during the past week boosted the field's daily production about 3000 barrels. The total output of the new wells is approximately 6000 barrels. The pipe line estimate on the total production for the field yesterday was 60,860 barrels. The run for the week was 57,000 barrels per day. This production is coming from 268 wells, 150 of which are flowing and 118 pumping. There are sixty-eight producers, in addition to these which are temporarily idle. The average output per well is slightly better than 225 barrels.

There is considerable guessing among the operators on the southwest side of the field as to what kind of a producer the Chanslor-Canfield Midway Oil Company's Del Amo No. 12 will be. This well, and its offset, the Standard Oil Company's Ellinwood No. 1, are the farthest west of the drilling wells on the old Redondo road which marks the south boundary of the big Del Amo lease extending from the east edge of Redondo to the western limits of Torrance. The road also marks the north boundary of the Standard's Ellinwood lease which extends as far west as the Del Amo lease but only about half as far east.

BETTER LOCATED

Three-quarters of a mile north of the Standard and Chanslor-Canfield Midway wells, production runs as far west as the city limits of Redondo, but the wells are all small pumpers. The two new wells are believed to be better located on the structure and should indicate what can be expected in production from approximatly 1000 acres of unproven land in the far southwest section of the field.

Chanslor-Canfield's Del Amo No. 12 is coring below 3600 feet. Drilling is expected to be stopped in a few days. The company's field men expect to be able to test the well for production by the end of this week. They report that the indirections are fairly good.

TEST FOR SHUTOFF

A half-mile east and slightly north of the Southland Petroleum Company's Oakley No. 1, which is the outpost producer on the east, the Southland company is testing for a water shutoff in its Winship No. 1, on the east side of Harbor Boulevard. Oil and gas showings are reported in this well at 3620 feet. The company thinks that the wildcat will be a producer.

Roller skates made in this country may be used by children in Chile soon, if a dealer there carries out his plans to import them.

TO TEST WELL WITH PUMP

Southwest Company Drilling in New Mexico Field Finds Oil at Unexpected Depth

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

FARMINGTON (N. M.) May 4.—The Southwest Oil Company, drilling on Boundary Butte, eighty miles west of this place, encountered oil at a much shallower depth than had been anticipated and has decided to put the well on the pump at once and test out the producing capacity of the well before drilling farther.

The oil from this well is to be used for fuel by other operators drilling in the same vicinity. These companies are preparing to start drilling on other government permits to test the extent of the producing area. This is the largest structure that has yet been discovered in the Boundary Butte section, and if it proves to be a producer it should make a great field. Operators plan to put down at least one well to test the Pennsylvania sands of this structure.

The Santa Fe Company has moved its standard rig to the site of its well No. 3 and has started to erect it. R. D. Compton has moved his rig on the Hogback Dome to the site for his well No. 2, and has the rig nearly up. The drill on the Table Mesa well is down about 1800 feet in well No. 1, and is still drilling. The L. B. Seidler interests were busy last week arranging to drill a well on four sections which they control in township 24 Range 11. A string of casing for the Leidecker well, to control caving, has been ordered, and should be at the well the first of the week, it is reported. This will be five and three-eighths-inch stuff and will be run to the bottom of the hole.

Gas and oil were both encountered Saturday in the H. L. Williams well, six miles northwest of here.

Taft Wildcat Spouts Above Derrick's Top

The Southwest Petroleum Corporation's wildcat well in Kern county, three miles northwest of Taft, spouted over the derrick several times during a production test Friday night, according to W. W. Stabler, president and general manager of the company.

Due to trouble with sand in the well, it was not placed on production and no estimate of the possible flow was made. It is reported officially that there was an abundance of gas pressure. When the hole is cleaned out, the company expects to get about a 1000-barrel well.

Mr. Stabler has taken personal charge of operations at the well. He reports that a definite idea of the production should be possible by the middle of this week.

The southwest project extends along the Midway field more than a mile to the northeast. The well was started last winter. It encountered considerable trouble, a total of nearly 6500 feet of hole having been drilled in order to penetrate to the sand at 4950 feet. It is said to be one of the deepest holes in Kern county. It carries a specially made string of eight-inch casing, which is reported to be the heaviest ever landed in Kern county.

PLANS LAID TO GET OUT COOLIDGE VOTE

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

REDLANDS, May 4.—Mayor A. E. Brock, chairman of the Redlands' Coolidge-for-President Club, and also a member of the county committee, stated today that as a result of the conference held in San Bernardino yesterday, plans for the primaries on Tuesday are well made. "All over the county Coolidge organizations will be at work to get out the vote," said Mayor Brock. The Mayor says that the organization in Redlands is in smooth running order. The big rally that was held during the week by the Coolidge Club here was the only one of the campaign and it indicated the temper of the people, Mr. Brock says.

TRIO TO OPPOSE DRY AGENT'S COURT MOVE

FRESNO, May 4.—Affidavits of Charles Margrave, E. L. Hougham, former Mayor of Bakersfield, and R. M. Graffius of Bakersfield will be presented in Federal Court tomorrow to oppose a move by Thomas J. Dist.-Atty. Paul F. Garber of Kern county, who will appear here to oppose the motion to transfer. The affidavits, it is understood, will deny that Niceley was performing his duties when Margrave was struck by him.

RESULT OF TEST WELL INTERESTS

Companies in Taft Oil Field Await Outcome on Fortuna Lease

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, May 4.—Officials of a half dozen or more companies in the oil fields near Taft will await with considerable anxiety the results of a test well to be put down by the Fortuna Oil Company on Sec. 28, 31-22, west of Taft, as upon the success or failure of the project will depend the future policy of these companies.

The Fortuna Company plans to thoroughly test its Section 28 property to learn whether or not the Jimmie Grant, Zed Phelps or Kenneth Wallace anticlines extend along the line of hills south of Twenty-five Hill, or are to be found only on Sections 35 and 36, 32-23, where the Formax Oil Company, the Vivian B Oil Company and the Kendon Petroleum Company have found oil-producing sands during the past few months.

The property to be drilled by the Fortuna Oil Company is held on a prospecting permit recently taken up by Ralph Lavin of the Midway Drug Company at Taft. The drilling proposition was figured out by "Tuck" Eden of Los Angeles, who was brought to the field by Guy Dow and Harry Avery, who are interested in seeing a thorough test made.

Lumber for the derrick for Fortuna No. 1 is now being hauled to the site over new roads. Boilers are being installed and all preliminary work should be completed within a few days.

The drilling of this hole to a considerable depth should prove of great value to the Coast Range Oil Company, the Orville Midway Oil Company, Taft-Midway Oil Company, Editors' Petroleum Company and others on Section 22, 32-23, which is near by.

The application for a permit to drill on the Sani Kramer land, Section 24-2-9, southeast of the Brea Olinda field, issued to S. H. Keoughan, trustee, and H. H. Jones, agent, is for the Mutual Oil Company of Denver, Colo., and the Consolidated Royalties Company and the Western Exploration Company of Casper, Wyo. Mr. Keoughan is chairman of the board of the Mutual Oil Company which was consolidated recently with the Continental Oil Company of Denver. He visits California occasionally in connection with corporation interests. The three companies are drilling a test well in Colusa county, west of the Sacramento River. W. H. Geis of Denver, who is geologist for the three companies, spent a month or so in California recently, working out structures, and the application to drill is to test what he thinks appears to be one of the best structures in Southern California. The location is not far from the Standard's Kramer well.

J. M. Sands, an executive of the Phillips Petroleum Corporation of Bartlesville, Okla., is spending a few days in California, investigating the situation, although his corporation is not planning oil explorations here. Mr. Sands for a time was connected with the East Coast Oil Company (Southern Pacific) in Mexican development, but for some years has confined his activities to the Midcontinent fields, including the Rocky Mountain territory, thinking well of that great area for individual and medium-strength corporation development. Mr. Sands is inclined to believe that a little too much crude oil is in sight to encourage hope for higher prices here.

W. S. Farish, president of the Humble Oil and Refining Company, Houston, Tex. (a subsidiary of Standard Oil Company of New Jersey) met A. C. Bedford and his party in Los Angeles to accompany them to Oklahoma and Texas on their tour of oil fields. Walter C. Teagle, president of the New Jersey corporation, met the party in Oklahoma. Inasmuch as the Standard of New Jersey buys most of its crude supply for its Atlantic Coast refineries under contract from many United States fields and Mexico, it has a vital interest in all fields from which crude comes. The object of this tour is to gain dependable data relating to crude oil production in areas where Standard's annual contracts run. Some reductions in daily deliveries from California contracts already have been adjusted and other adjustments probably will be made before the end of 1924.

The death of Samuel Gamble Bayne in New York removes another one of the pioneers of the petroleum industry in the United States. Arriving in this country in 1869 from Ireland, ten years after Col. Drake drilled the first commercial oil well at Titusville, Pa., Mr. Bayne bought in the second well completed after the Drake well, and was continuously interested to the time of his death in the petroleum industry. He was chairman of the board of the Seaboard National Bank of New York at the time of his death, having organized it as its president. The Seaboard was for years known as the Standard Oil bank. Mr. Bayne having been one of thirty-one men who owned more than half of the Standard Oil stock and assets at the time of its dissolution in 1911. From the oil well supply firm of Bayne, Wilson & Pratt, the National Supply Company was formed, Mr. Bayne, from his practical experience in drilling and producing, having designed several of the concern's specialties. He also consolidated interesting oil-country sketches into a volume that was popular with oil men. Messrs. Wilson and Pratt, Mr. Bayne's early associates, died some years ago and his Standard Oil associates—Rogers, Archbold, O'Day and o'hers—preceded him, leaving John D. Rockefeller, 96 years of age, as about the only survivor of the noted pioneer oil operators and organizers, John Eaton and Louis Sands, Oil Well Supply Company organizers and for many years the only competitors of Mr. Bayne and the National, died several years ago. Lyman Stewart and John Stewart, who died recently, began their oil experience at Titusville, where Mr. Bayne began his.

NEW BEARDSLEY RIG

Los Angeles Company Will Drill Well Near Phoenix

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHOENIX, May 4.—The Local Company of Los Angeles, has erected a derrick in the Beardsley section, about thirty miles northwest of Phoenix and is to spud in its well there within a few days. The rig and squipment are entirely new and the project is not connected with the Tannehill enterprise, which has its derrick about one-half mile distant.

The Tannehill log is reported to show oil sand at three points, with the bottom of the bore in favorable ground. Abandonment of the work is reported to have been due mainly to the fact that necessary casing against water had brought the bottom of the well down to only four inches diameter, a bore that was unfavorable for further deepening in that territory.

NO LOSS TO DEPOSITORS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

DES MOINES, May 4.—Depositors and creditors of the Bank of Collins, Iowa will sustain no loss through the closing of the institution, C. S. Hall, assignee, said. Valuable property has been turned over to him for settlement, it was said. The deposits amounted to about $250,000.

"Everybody and His Dog"
"I Said"
"Should Bite into this Pie"

After the most severe scrutinization of my project that any Corporation was ever subjected to, the Committee's report showed the following:

"First"——That every unit of shares sold by us for $100, is today actually worth $116.

"Second"—That our money had been honestly spent and that our work was well done.

"Third"——That I personally, had rendered my services to my Corporation since its inception, without one dollar compensation in any way, shape or form.

"Fourth"—That I personally, had from time to time advanced money to my Company to the extent of over a million dollars.

And I am asking you, the people I am inviting to join me in this great enterprise, what stronger recommendation of me, and the proposition I am asking you to invest in, could be submitted to you. You all know the returns from the oil industry in this State, providing the operations are efficiently managed, and the policy carried out is an honest one.

I feel you will grant that I have demonstrated that these two features are the foundation of my Corporation, and if you do grant me this, my enterprise is worthy of an investment by the most conservative citizen.

Time and again I have been advised by know-it-all people not to waste my time endeavoring to finance my project in California, but to step into the Eastern money market, and raise my capital, but they have not made me believe that the people of this State will not support an enterprise that is as sure a winner as I am submitting, on top of being 100 per cent a California Baby.

As I have already advised you, this is one time in your young lives that your response has to be forthcoming in a hurry, because this is one time in my life that I cannot afford to wait very long for you to take advantage of my offer.

Remember it is 2 shares of Preferred and 1 1-2 shares of Common for each $100 you see fit to invest.

If you are unable to run in and allow us to place before you the thousand and one reasons why you should take advantage of this opportunity, just mail your check for the amount you care to invest, and accept my promise in the future as in the past, that I will always give you the best I have.

CHANGE IN BANK RATE BELITTLED

Trading and Exchange Not Perceptibly Affected

Movement Held to Follow General Dealing Trend

Business May be Delayed Until After Election

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, May 4.—A change in the bank rate always has been in event of interest to the financial markets—sometimes of very vital interest. The idea has become widespread that any change in the bank rate is bound to affect the financial markets and the financial situation. But this is an inference quite unwarranted by experience.

There were no less than seven changes in the Bank of England rate in so uneventful a year as 1909 and ten in the equally quiet year, 1910. All of those changes actually reflected nothing but the seasonal expansion or contraction in demand for credit; none of them had any perceptible influence on trade or the stock exchange; they were described at the time as "keeping the bank in touch with the money market."

NOT A CAUSE

It may be doubted if any other description would apply to the reduction of the New York bank rate from 4 1-2 to 4 in June, 1922, or the advance to 4 1-2 in February, 1923, or last Wednesday's reduction to 4. Each change in the rate, did, it is true, follow a rise or fall in the bank's reserve ratio; but that was itself a consequence of the trade movement and the demand for credit, not a cause.

Last week's reduction of the New York rate had been foreshadowed so plainly by the decreasing of credit and the decline in open market money rates, that it is difficult to picture it as injecting a new influence into the general situation. Nevertheless a change in the bank rate, being a formal action, which sets all the markets talking, is likely enough to have some effect on financial sentiment; if only bringing reconsideration of the financial outlook.

OUTLOOK PUZZLING

That outlook is curiously puzzling. It has not been cleared up, even by the recent unmistakable signs of reduced industrial production. Last week's estimates of a 20 per cent curtailment of the country's steel output from the high point of March were accompanied by estimates that home consumption of steel in April had continued within 5 or 6 per cent of its recent maximum.

In measuring other industries, visibly decreased export demand and cut some figure; but the weekly loadings of railway freight, although considerably less than a year ago, continued far in excess of the season's higher record in any previous year, and very large distribution of merchandise necessarily means very large home consumption. The mere fact that production lately had been increased beyond consumption, so that merchants and middlemen could safely limit their orders to immediate requirement, has, of course, obscured the actual position.

ABEYANCE SEEN

It is probable enough that business plans will be held more or less in abeyance until the Presidential tickets are actually in the field; for, in spite of the singularly unanimous testimony of the primaries that the people are not demanding "radical candidates," the minds of business men are still haunted by the talk of a third party and a nerve-racking campaign. The Presidential year 1912 was a period of real prosperity, and in its later stages, the electoral contest had no unsettling effect whatever on the financial or industrial markets. Nevertheless, a distinct halt in business activities occurred in May and June, the evident mistrust arising from the possibility, that with the wide-open split in the Republican party already a certainty, everything hinged on the character of the Democratic nominee. When Mr. Wilson had been nominated, the suspended trade activity was resumed almost automatically.

Whether the present hesitation in business has a similar cause, or whether there are other reasons for it, the action of the stock market would appear to reflect a parallel condition.

OLD HOLE BAILED FOR TEST

Athens No. 1 of Potter Company May Prove to be Discovery Well of Rosencrans Field

Yesterday afternoon and last night the Union Oil Company was bailing for a production test in the Athens No. 1 (old Potter Oil Company hole) in the Rosecrans district.

This hole, which was started long ago and which the Potter organization left standing idle, may yet prove to be the discovery well of the Rosecrans field.

It found some sand, at about 3700 feet, which the Rosecrans picked up, and in the event that it develops no hard luck it may be completed ahead of the Rosecrans, although the latter is regarded as the discovery well because it was first to bring up oil.

In the Athens No. 1, which is located at One Hundred and Thirtieth and Figueroa streets, the Union picked up a slight showing at 4938 feet, cemented the eight and one-quarter-inch casing and then drilled down forty feet to verify the color in the formation. At 4971 a rich oil sand was encountered, and the hole, which swabbed wet on the first cement job, was recemented.

The Union will shortly commence drilling five new Rosecrans wells, rigs for which are now being built. All five are on small parcels of land directly east of the Rosecrans derrick. They are on the Chandler, Gray, Padleford, Hursey and Zins leases.

OPTIMISM PREVAILS ON STEEL

Business Drops in April But Better is Predicted by Judge Gary

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, May 4.—Two events which ordinarily provide strong stimulus in one direction or another, were received in financial and business circles during the past week with comparative indifference. These are the Steel Corporation's quarterly earning statement, and dividend action, and the reduction in the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

The Steel Corporation's first quarter earnings were considered excellent, particularly in view of the fact that the installation of the eight-hour day had been completed. The net was the best recorded since 1918 and that for the month of March was exceptionally good. Those in close touch with the corporation's affairs were confident, furthermore, that the results of the second quarter, while smaller than those for the first, will be distinctly good.

Nevertheless the markets were disposed to pay more attention to the current reports from the steel industry and to Chairman Gary's remarks regarding the outlook. Steel production, which declined gradually during the early part of April, fell more rapidly during the last week of that month. The present rate of activity for the industry as a whole is about 20 per cent below the March peak. Steel prices are holding to the lower levels recently established and pig iron prices have suffered fresh declines.

Mr. Gary, while optimistic in his remarks after the declaration of the extra dividend of 50 cents, stated that the volume of new business is falling off. He regarded this as a natural consequence of the remarkable rate of activity attained early in the year, and expressed his conviction that business would revive by fall. At that time he expects business to be much better than at present.

Mr. Gary, in other words, was entirely confident of good business during the next two years, but admitted a temporary recession. Meanwhile he reiterated the corporation's adherence to its policy of stable prices, but hinted that competitors would not find the corporation indifferent to price cutting on their part.

The generally accepted explanation of the reduction in the Federal Reserve Bank's rediscount rate is that it was made to bring the official rate more closely in line with the open market. It was stated that open-market rates have declined, and that the official rate merely is following them. Actually, the change had little effect on the market, an easing in acceptance rates being the only distinguishable result.

RESERVE MOVE IS BOND TONIC

Prices Rally Sharply to Rediscount Cut

Heavier Financing in 1924 Believed Certain

Dutch Become Borrowers in $40,000,000 Loan

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, May 4.—Reduction of the New York Federal Reserve Bank's rediscount rate last week had a tonic effect on the bond market. Responding to the change to 4 per cent, prices of United States government obligations rallied sharply to the highest levels of the year and a broadening inquiry for other standard investment issues brought about general improvement in the market's tone.

Many conflicting views were broadcast as to the ultimate effect of the lower rate on bond trading, with the consensus favoring the theory that the initial advance in prices would be accentuated by the release of additional funds for investment purposes. The return of call money to 3 1-2 per cent was regarded as significant, although it was recognized that the bank rate really followed the general money market down instead of taking the leadership in fixing lower quotations.

OFFERINGS HIGH

Realignment of interest yields on high-grade securities, bond circles agreed, would pave the way for a heavier volume of financing in 1924. Certain banking authorities even suggested that the flood of new bond issues foreshadowed by the prevalence of easy money might become so great that it would be found desirable to check the borrowing. A return to the 4 1-2 per cent rediscount rate, it was asserted, then might be adopted as a conservative measure.

Coincident with the favorable shift in the money situation, the total of the week's new bond offerings mounted to more than $125,000,000, the highest since the second week in February. Sale of $150,000,000 Japanese loan at that time brought the week's aggregate to $172,625,000.

DUTCH BORROWERS

One of the first foreign financial operations to reach the offering stage was the $40,000,000 loan for the Kingdom of the Netherlands. Sale of the bonds was announced early in the week. The transaction marked the Dutch government's first external borrowing on a dollar basis, and was doubly interesting because Holland's accustomed role in international finance has been that of lender rather than of borrower. The volume of industrial financing was increased by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation's $30,000,000 bond offering.

Strength of Bolivian 8s last week gave rise to reports of impending new financing by that government. The price rose to within 2 points of the figure which bankers are said to have fixed for the $10,000,000 loan.

The financial district was inclined to discredit Washington reports that Japanese would attempt to float another $150,000,000 loan here within a year. Proceeds from sale of the last loan took care of refunding and reconstruction needs. If additional funds are required, it was suggested, the government undoubtedly would resort to internal borrowing.

BREAK SEEN FOR ANGORA AND VATICAN

Ordered Removal of Crucifix from Schools in Turkey is Cause

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ROME, May 4.—A rupture between Angora and the Vatican has been caused by the ordered removal of the crucifix and other religious emblems from the schools of Turkey. The Catholic institutes rather than undergo this imposition have closed their most flourishing schools in Constantinople. The Holy See strongly remonstrated, requesting the Turkish government to cancel the ordinance, which is against the Lausanne Treaty, which allows religious schools.

Angora artfully pretends that it is not imposing the closure, but the removal of all religious signs. Under these circumstances Vatican quarters think a rupture unavoidable, notwithstanding the friendship existing between the Vatican and Turkey. After the war a statue was erected in Constantinople in memory of Benedict XV. Regular diplomatic relations do not exist between the Vatican and Turkey, but the Holy See had during the war an apostalic delegate, Mgr. Dolci, in Constantinople, in touch with the Turkish authorities to protect the interests of all Catholics. He will be recalled if the Republic of Angora does not change its policy toward the Holy See.

PAIR SENTENCED AS CHILDREN BEATERS

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

SANTA ANA, May 4.—Branded by the court as a "shame to womanhood," and "lacking an atom of manhood," respectively, Mrs. Bertha Phares and Floyd E. Hatch today were led from the courtroom here, both laughing and talking, to the County Jail where the woman began a two-year and the man an eighteen-month sentence for their admitted beating and starving of Hatch's children. Thus was the curtain drawn on the so-called "story-book stepmother case" in which officers rescued Alta May, 8 years of age, and Clyde Ernest, 6.

A Tasteless Confection

A little girl whose sister was about to be married was handed a package of confetti, but she was rather too young to understand its proper use. Ten minutes later she came to her father with tears in her eyes. "It isn't good at all, daddy," she said, "it hasn't a bit of

Coast and Geodetic Survey

Tides. Los Angeles Harbor.

Note—The following tabulation of the tides is compiled from the Pacific Coast Tide Tables of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey. The tides are arranged in the order of their occurrence, beginning with the first tide after midnight in the left-hand column. There are usually four tides, two high and two low, each day; but occasionally what would be the fourth tide occurs after midnight and thus becomes the first tide of the next day. The columns of heights give the elevation of each tide above the plane of reference of the Coast and Geodetic Survey chart soundings, except where the numbers are preceded by the minus sign, or dash, when heights are below the plane. The tabulations are furnished by the Field Station of the Survey, Customhouse, San Francisco, Cal.

Sunrise and sunset are computed for Los Angeles Harbor. Moonrise and moonset for Los Angeles.

FILM HOUSE ATTENDANCE SHOWS GAIN

Theater Admissions for March Reach Total of 20,380,000

Attendance at motion-picture theaters and other places of amusement in Southern California increased from 17,228,000 in March, 1923, to 20,380,000 in March, 1924, a report of amusement taxes collected last month indicates. The collections were on the March business and amounted to $352,710, as compared with $252,209 collected during the corresponding month of last year.

According to the revenue collector, the taxes paid represent a total of $4,227,000 spent for amusements in March of this year, as compared with $3,002,000 spent in March, 1923. The gain in receipts by the amusement places was $1,225,000.

Records of the revenue office disclose the amount of whisky withdrawn from government storehouses by druggists in Southern California during April was 1000 cases, or four times the normal monthly withdrawals. The increase apparently was due to the fact that the Easter holiday was in April, according to the revenue collector. Withdrawal of liquor from storage, to be dispensed through drug stores, is always above normal in those months containing holidays, the records show.

NOTICIAS MUNDIALES DE ULTIMA HORA

En obsequio a nuestros numerosos amigos que habla española, y para beneficio de los lectores americanos de "The Times" que estudien esa lengua, publicamos diariamente esta columna en castellano, con un extracto de las más importantes noticias de última hora.

Buena parte del futuro progreso de Los Angeles, que es la metrópoli de los Estados Unidos que más cercana se halla a territorio latino-americano, habrá de depender de las relaciones que logremos establecer con nuestras hermanas, las repúblicas del sur. Para que lleguen a ser enteramente cordiales, no hay nada tan importante como que nuestros ciudadanos se familiaricen con la lengua castellana. Tan se dan cuenta de este hecho nuestros habitantes, que hay al presente más de 25,000 personas que estudian español en Los Angeles. A ellas les conviene leer todos los días esta columna, en la que encontrarán español correcto y enteramente moderno.

NOTAS TELEGRAFICAS

Atentan sus Enemigos contra el Presidente

WASHINGTON, Mayo 4.—No habiendo podido tocar al Presidente en toda esta campaña de escándalos, los republicanos insurgentes y los demócratas se están preparando para crearle posibles embarazos, adoptando legislación radical, que el supremo funcionario tendría que rechazar con su veto. La mayor parte de ella es legislación de clases, que se presenta con un tinte de progresiva.

Ayer trató de demostrar el señor Coolidge de una manera efectiva que no teme el encuentro, y ejerció el veto contra el proyecto de ley de Bursum sobre pensiones. Se adjustó en esto de manera estricta al más reciente de sus discursos de Nueva York en pro de la economía. El proyecto de ley citado habría costado $242,000,000 los primeros cinco años, y $415,000,000 los primeros diez años.

Ahora tiene enfrente el Presidente el proyecto de ley del plus del soldado, contra el cual opondrá su veto. Como claramente lo ha manifestado ya, y probablemente antes de fine de semana será conocida su resolución. El Congreso puede votar de nuevo el proyecto, pasando por sobre el veto presidencial; pero entonces la responsabilidad pesará ya sobre el Capitolio y no sobre la Casa Blanca.

Los Franceses Refutan a un Periódico Inglés

PARIS, Mayo 3.—El Ministerio de Relaciones francés publicó hoy un enfático mentís contra la noticia dada ayer por el Daily Telegraph de Londres, de que los peritos americanos sobre reparaciones habían recomendado el empréstito de Morgan a Francia, bajo la condición de que Francia aceptara la restauración de la completa libertad económica y financiera en el Ruhr y la Renania. El Quai d'Orsay sostiene con calor que la historia del Daily Telegraph es de una falsedad absoluta. La prensa oficosa declara que la versón del Telegraph es particularmente injuriosa, en vista de la circunstancia de que los peritos americanos se mantuvieron estrictamente fuera de la política durante su estanda en París.

El "Tempa," periódico semioficial, publica hoy una carta escrita por el señor Robineau, presidente del Banco de Francia, a los banqueros americanos, presentando los terminos en los cuales puede aceptar Francia los créditos de Morgan. El señor Robineau, previa conferencia con el gobierno, dice que Francia no ha recurrido al crédito sino para consolidar sus deudas flotantes, y que no concertará empréstitos de gobierno, ni para la reconstrucción de las regiones devastadas, sino hasta tanto que haya mejorado la situación financiera.

NOTAS LOCALES

Camarera Violentada por un Sátiro

Muerta de fatiga, con el cuerpo magullado y arañado, y la ropa hecha jirones, Edna Sanford, bella camarera de 19 años, fue llevada ayer mañana a la comisaría central, donde refirió a los detectives que había sido atacada por un desconocido que le ofreció llevarala a su casa en automóvil.

Manifestó la muchacha a la policía que había echado a andar del establecimiento "Peacock Grill," calle Tercera Oeste, 322, donde trabaja, hacia su casa sita en la avenida Potter Park, 922, cuando un individuo cuyo nombre ignora pasaba en un cupé Ford y le ofrecía llevarla a casa. La muchacha aceptó la cortesía, y el hombre, en vez de llevarla a la avenida Potter Park, la condujo a las goteras de la ciudad donde, según ella manifiesta, trató de hacerle el amor. Hizo la muchacha esfuerzos por desprenderse de los brazos del hombre, y fue, agrega, cuando se le desgarró el vestido. Logró por fin escaparse del coche y se dio a la fuga a campo traviesa, hasta que, al romper el día, pudo dirigirse a la casa de H. H. Kinman, avenida Segunda, 3817, donde pidió auxilio. El señor Kinman la trajo a la comisaría central, donde ha presentado la asalada su denuncia. Transportada a la Casa de Socorro, fue examinada por el doctor Saverein, cirujano de policía, quien declaró que no había sido violada.

La muchacha dijo a la policía que podía identificar a su asaltante, y anunció que tenía la intención de proceder contra él si fuere aprehendido.

Accidentes de Tráfico

Como resultado de accidentes de tráfico ocurridos en las cercanias de Los Angeles, murieron ayer dos hombres y un muchacho, y quedaron lesionados otros dos hombres y una mujer.

Jesse White fue atropellado por un automóvil que guiaba M. J. Stark, de Torrance, en los momentos en que trataba de atravesar la vía pública enfrente de su casa sita en el citado bulevar Torrance, a eso de las 6:30 p.m. del sábado.

Recktenwald recibió las lesiones que le produjeron la muerte al chocar el auto en que viajaba con un camión que conducía V. Dabs, de Lomita, según refiere este ultimo. El lesionado falleció en el hospital de Redondo-Hermosa.

También la muerte de McHugh fue ocasionada por choque de automóviles.

HARDWARE MAN BRAVES OCEAN WITHOUT FEAR

THE DAVIS, HUNT, COLLISTER CO.
(Wholesale and retail hardware dealers)
Cleveland, Ohio
Feb. 22, 1924

Mr. S. E. Strong,
Care Strong, Cobb & Company,
Cleveland, Ohio.
Dear Mr. Strong:—

Your Noburn is certainly a marvelous product. Mrs. Davis and I have used it for the past three or four years, both on summer and winter vacations. We both burn very badly from the sun and wind but since we have used Noburn our troubles from that source are a thing of the past.

I know no place where one burns so badly as ocean fishing on the Florida coast, yet last winter on several occasions I was out on the ocean all day in an open motorboat with a cloudless sky and suffered no inconvenience from sunburn, having, of course, applied Noburn to my face before starting.

Yours very truly,
EDWARD L. DAVIS,
Vice-President.

Just a few drops of "Noburn" applied before each exposure and you are sunburn proof. You get the tan, but not the burn. An invisible, odorless, harmless liquid, quickly applied, easily washed off.

Made and guaranteed by Strong Cobb Co. of Cleveland, who have been in business for ninety years. "Noburn" sold at all good drug stores.—[Advertisement.

Eat And Grow Thin

Everybody knows that a starvation diet will remove excess fat, but it usually comes right back as soon as normal habits of living are resumed. Better remain over-stout than to deny your body the nourishment it needs.

If you want to get rid of superfluous fat for good, you must correct the organic weakness which permits the abnormal growth of fatty tissues. This may be accomplished safely and pleasantly by taking Vitans Obesity Tablets before meals. These harmless tablets invigorate the dormant, sluggish gland which controls fat. When this organ regains its normal activity, your system should gradually throw off all useless fat until your weight is just right for your height.

The use of Vitans Obesity Tablets calls for no fasting, dieting, exercises or weakening baths. Eat and drink what you wish while reduction is taking place. Vitans Obesity Tablets, with full directions, can be obtained at the Owl and Sun Drug Stores or any good drug store. Price $1 per bottle. A. E. Schmidt Co., San Francisco, Mfrs.—[Advertisement.

Neuritis the Nerve-Wrecker

Those who have experienced the agony of a well-developed case of neuritis know its baneful influence upon the entire nervous system. Many sufferers, tortured in mind and body and driven to despair by the ravages of this insidious disease, have finally sought relief through self-destruction.

The first indication of neuritis is usually a sharp, cutting pain in the shoulder, neck, forearm, thigh or leg, sometimes accompanied by soreness in the muscles, stiffness in the joints or numbness in the hands or feet.

If you suffer from neuritis, don't experiment! Take Eopa Neuritis Tablets—a treatment that has proven its merit in hundreds of stubborn cases. Endorsed by many leading physicians. Guaranteed to be free from narcotics and coal tar products. Price $1.00. Sold in Los Angeles by the Owl and Sun Drug Stores, and all other leading druggists. Boericke & Runyon Co., Mfrs. ALHAMBRA, May 4.—With an increase of almost 100 per cent over the registration of four years ago, the present list of voters in Alhambra numbers 6,000, it is announced by E. W. Fisher, vice-chairman of the congressional district. Registration in the city outnumber the votes cast almost four to one, according to the announcement. It is estimated that the total registration will approximately 90 per cent of the voting population.

Importance of National, County and City Issues Stressed in Survey of Ballot

FACTS ABOUT ELECTION

Polls open at 6 a.m.; close at 7 p.m.

County voters will receive Presidential primary and flood-control bond issue ballots.

City voters will receive Presidential primary, county flood-control bond issue and municipal ballot on which will appear twelve propositions, six of which are bond issues.

Number of city precincts, 991.

Number of registered voters in the city, 291,000.

Number of city-county registered voters, 523,427.

Number of registered voters in State, 1,499,595.

Estimate of the number of votes to be cast in the city, 90,000.

Estimate of the number of votes to be cast in city and county, 200,000.

Estimate of number of votes to be cast in State, 600,000.

Tomorrow is Presidential primary election day in California, and voters will flock to the polls to register their wishes as to what delegates shall be sent to the Republican National Convention to be held at Cleveland on June 10. Coolidge leaders in the State predict that the President will carry California tomorrow over Hiram Johnson by between 75,000 and 100,000. Johnson men say they are equally sanguine of victory. Both sides urge a big vote but it is believed that the heavier the balloting the better will be Coolidge's chances.

Democrats tomorrow will have their choice between a delegation pledged to the Presidential candidacy of William G. McAdoo and an unpledged delegation, which is being supported by the Hearst forces. The Democratic battle is close, with the odds in favor of McAdoo in this State.

LOCAL ISSUES

In Los Angeles city and county tomorrow, the voters will also mark ballots on the $35,300,000 county flood-control bonds, which require only a majority vote to carry, and twelve city propositions, six of which are bond issues totaling $32,600,000. Each municipal bond issue requires a two-thirds favorable vote of the total cast on each issue to carry. The city bond issues are $8,000,000 water, $4,000,000 power, $1,600,000 police equipment, $400,000 fire boat, $1,000,000 for repair of unsafe bridges and $600,000 for rubbish incinerators. The other six city propositions are the Power Bureau's two "gas grab" ordinances as a foundation for a future $30,000,000 bond issue, the ordinance increasing the truck load limit on city streets, the Power Bureau's "straw vote" on Boulder Canyon dam, the new charter and the alternative charter provision providing district representation in the City Council.

The "gas brab" ordinances require a simple majority favorable vote on each to be adopted; the truck-load limit ordinance requires a simple majority "No" vote to be defeated, and the "straw vote" on Boulder Canyon dam is of no legal effect, regardless of whether the majority of ballots cast on the Proposition (No. 12) is in favor or against the proposition. The charter (Proposition No. 1) requires a simple majority vote to be approved, while the alternative district representation charter proviso (Proposition No. 2) must receive more "Yes" votes than the charter receives "Yes" votes in order to incorporate in the charter the district representation plan for electing Councilmen as a substitute for the new charter provision providing for the election of eleven Councilmen-at-Large.

The polls in Los Angeles city and county open tomorrow morning at 6 o'clock and close at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening. It was estimated that between 35 per cent and 40 per cent of the registered city and county vote would be cast.

BIG REGISTRATION

The total California vote registered for tomorrow's election, according to Secretary of State Jordon, is 1,499,595, which exceeds all former registrations except that of 1922., A 40 per cent vote tomorrow would give a State vote of about 600,000.

All previous registrations were wiped out on December 31, and the vote tomorrow will be cast from a new registration which started on January 1 and closed on April 5. The city registered vote for tomorrow's election is 291,000, which is the heaviest registration ever recorded in the city and indicates a tremendous registration for the August county-State primaries and for the November general election. The number of voters registered for the city election last June was but 285,000.

City Clerk Dominguez yesterday estimated that in the city about 35 per cent of the registered voters will go to the polls tomorrow, which would give a total vote in the city of about 88,000. The highest estimates of tomorrow's total city vote did not exceed 90,000.

The total vote cast at the city election last June was 86,590.

The total city-county vote registered for tomorrow's election is 523,427 of which 291,000 is in the city and the remaining 232,000 in the county precincts including Pasadena, Long Beach and other nearby cities. This total registration of 523,427 is 102,000 greater than

TWO NEW CHURCHES DEDICATED

Catholic and Baptist Congregations Conduct Opening Services

Two new churches, one a Catholic and the other a Baptist, were dedicated in Los Angeles yesterday morning. They are the Church of the Precious Blood, Catholic, on Third street, between Coronado and Carondolet avenues, and The Immanuel Baptist Church, at Forty-eighth street and First avenue.

Bishop John J. Cantwell of Los Angeles and Monterey, conducted the dedication ceremonies at the Church of the Precious Blood at 10:30 a.m. The pastor of the church will be Father Michael O'Halloran. Special mission services will be conducted this week, morning and evening, by Father Marmsauke Seymour.

The church was recently completed at a cost of more than $10,000. It has a seating capacity of 400 and the architecture is of the Gothic style.

Rev. Frank Durham, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church, conducted the dedication services at the new $25,000 building at 11 a.m. He was assisted by Dr. W. F. Harper, executive secretary of the Southern California Baptist Convention.

The church is a two-story stucco structure, contains an auditorium with a seating capacity of 500 and with Sunday-school rooms capable of accommodating 700 students. The Sunday-school enrollment now is more than 500, not including the cradle roll of 100. The church membership is 222.

Beginning with community night tomorrow, a dedication week will be conducted at the Immanuel Baptist Church with addresses by pastors of various other depominations.

MILLIONS OWED FOR POWER

Emptiness of Bureau's Claims to Pay Its Own Way Shown; Taxpayers Are Liable

Councilman W. C. Mushet, chairman of the City Council's Finance committee and former City Auditor, in the following statement, has shown that the $21,000,000 power bonds to be voted upon at tomorrow's election are a direct obligation upon the taxpayers of Los Angeles. The statement, which is in the form of questions asked by Councilman Mushet and answered by him, was as follows:

By Councilman W. C. Mushet

Possibly the only question left in doubt up in the minds of voters is: Will the $21,000,000 power bonds increase taxation? Are told they will not. Others say:

The Bureau of Power and Light is at present paying the interest and sinking funds." Q.: Is the statement of Auditor Myers correct?

A.: It is true that the Bureau of Power and Light paid all the interest and sinking fund charges outstanding power and light bonds for the year, July 1, 1922, to June 30, 1923. Prior to this the taxpayers paid carrying charges on these bonds amounting to $1,000,000.

It is also true that on June 30, 1923, the Bureau owed as follows: To the Bureau department, $697,846.07. To Cal. Edison Co., $276,699.75. Accrued interest bearing, $697,-

Other accounts current, $996,-

Accrued pay rolls, $114,158.03; $3,782,559.29.

Deducting in this there are the following liabilities:

$1,340,417. Reserves for depreciation, $981,-

A total of $1,981,941.94.

From it follows that whilst it is true that the Bureau has on hand the largest and sinking funds on outstanding bonds it has to use of money it should not in credit.

On March 30, 1920, did the Electrical Engineer Scattergood of the Power Bureau, "The State law requires the Bureau not only to pay interest on its bonds, but in addition to this a power bond sinking fund each year specified amounts based upon the term of years after the bonds are issued."

Q.: Did he correctly state the law? A.: Yes.

Q.: Has the law been changed? A.: No.

Q.: Is the Power Bureau promising to pay all interest and sinking fund charges on the $21,000,000 power bonds? A.: Yes.

Q.: Is there any provision in the State Bonding Act, the city charter or in the $21,000,000 power-bond election ordinances to compel the Power Bureau to keep this promise? A.: No.

Q.: Is there any provision in the law permitting a Power Bureau promise to take the place of cash in the City Treasury. A.: No.

TWO BATHERS ARE DROWNED

Five Others Near Death at Beaches Are Rescued

Boy Swept Out to Sea When Rip-Tide Catches Him

Man Becomes Exhausted and Sinks Off Palisades

Two bathers were drowned and five others experienced narrow escapes yesterday at Los Angeles county beaches. One of the victims lost his life in an unusually strong rip-tide that harassed bathers at Long Beach; the other became exhausted and sank while swimming several hundred feet out from the Pacific Palisades near Santa Monica. Neither body had been recovered late last night although police and life guards of Long Beach and Sawtelle were searching.

The Long Beach victim is believed to have been Andrew Schlicker, 16 years of age, of 216 Olive street, Long Beach, while the other drowned bather was L. Andres, 24, of Los Angeles.

CARRIED TO SEA

The youth believed to be Schlicker was in bathing at the foot of Elm avenue when he was caught by the tide and carried to sea. Cries for help brought life guards who swam to within 200 feet of the stricken youth when he disappeared. The belief that Schlicker was the victim was expressed by Mrs. Ida Schlicker, his mother. She said she was watching her son in bathing and saw him disappear. Her fears were believed to be confirmed by her son's failure to return home last night, she said.

Andres and Robert Petterson of 27 Marne avenue, Los Angeles, and Petterson's grown daughter made up a party of bathers. Andrew ventured too far out and became exhausted. Efforts of Petterson and life guards to reach him were unavailing. Petterson's daughter, whose name was not learned, is said to have narrowly escaped a similar fate.

OTHERS RESCUED

Those rescued at Long Beach were Mrs. G. G. Reynolds, 634 1-2 East Twenty-first street, Los Angeles; J. Michaels and J. H. Zuba of 515 Olive avenue, Long Beach, and Roy Carleson of Pasadena.

Mrs. Reynolds was pulled from the surf at the foot of Cherry avenue by four life guards after a battle with the tide lasting nearly twenty minutes. Michaels and Zuba were saved by life guards at the foot of Alamitos avenue, while friends of Carleson pulled him from the water at the foot of Ontario street in the Harbor District west of Long Beach.

The police department at Long Beach rushed the lung-motor to the aid of the rescued bathers but they had been revived by life guards and others.

Mission Play Actors Leave for Bay City

While a special train waited on the side track at San Gabriel last evening for the passengers who were scheduled to go aboard, the largest crowd that ever sought admittance to the playhouse at San Gabriel witnessed the closing performance of La Golondrina, John Steven McGroarty's latest California drama.

The special train was there to take the players to San Francisco where the Mission Play will open this evening at the Columbia Theater.

Business men of the bay city have urged Mr. McGroarty to bring his California classic to that city, but it was not until this spring that he was able to grant their request.

A series of welcome banquets is being planned for the poet and playwright in San Francisco, among them being those tendered by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, the San Francisco Advertising Club, the Kiwanis Club, the Press Club and more than a dozen others.

The Mission Play will remain in San Francisco from four to six weeks.

SEA GULL AS WISE AS OWL

Bird Falls on Deck of Manchuria After Injury and Hobbles Direct to Liner's Hospital

A wise bird is the sea-gull, declare passengers of the Panama-Pacific liner Manchuria, which arrived Saturday from New York and Havana. Here is why:

While the Manchuria was steaming northward from the canal three days ago and in a bit of heavy weather a sea-gull struck one of the mainmast backstays and fell to the deck, its wing apparently broken. Numerous kind-hearted passengers ran to the aid of the injured bird.

The gull, however, refused assistance and hobbled direct to the ship's sick bay, presided over by Dr. Edgar H. Earl, ship's surgeon. Dr. Earl bathed the injured pinion with liniment, made other necessary repairs to the feathered victim of the storm and placed it in a basket.

The following morning, when Dr. Earl appeared on duty, the gull hopped out of the basket, walked through the door and flew away, cured.

THRONG WORSHIPS IN PARK

Large Assemblage Hears Pastor of Sacred Heart at Catholic Event; Notables are Present

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, May 4.—Fifteen thousand persons gathered at Tournament Park this morning to witness the military field mass conducted by officers of the California State Council, Knights of Columbus. The event officially opened the twenty-second annual State convention, which convenes in this ity for five days.

From the improvised altar erected in the center of the old football field Father George Donohue, pastor of the Sacred Heart, Los Angeles, delivered the sermon. His words were broadcast by microphones so that every person on the field and in the stands was able to hear.

The congregation on the Tournament Park field represented probably the greatest assemblage of Catholics ever gathered in the West. Nearly 5000 Knights of Columbus, attired in full regalia, surrounded the flower-bedecked altar, with their drawn swords glistening in the sunlight. Hundreds of Sisters of the Holy Name were seated near by and a crack drill team from the Los Angeles Council, clad in white robes, added color in the impressive picture.

Taking official part in the ceremony were a number of prominent Catholics and officers of the State Council, Frank E. Michels, Jr., of Sacramento, State Deputy and heal of the affair; Thomas A. Murphy, Joseph Scott, Thomas P. White, master of the fourth degree; Daniel P. Maher, San Francisco, State Warden; David A. Supple, Supreme Warden, and B. J. Leonard, District Deputy, were grouped in front of the altar steps. Bishop J. J. Cantwell and Judge Paul M. McCormick also attended. Monsignor M. McCarthy assisted Father Donohue in the consecration ritual. A firing squad from the California Institute of Technology participated in this ceremony.

Sacred music was provided by an orchestra and the entire assemblage took part in singing of hymns. A number of fourth degree Knights who had marched several miles in the parade which proceeded the mass fainted during the sermon and were carried from the field.

Earlier in the day 1000 sailors from the harbor gathered at Central Park and led the impressive parade in which approximately 7000 Catholics marched. Following the sailors there were 400 Knights in uniform and top hats. Bands from various councils and from the Los Angeles High School were included.

The Los Angeles drill team was another feature of the parade which followed a course through the business streets of the city, finally halting on the park grounds. Many councils in Southern California were represented with delegations in the parade. Glendale was represented with a battalion of men attired in straw hats and white trousers. Thousands of Pasadenans lined both sides of the street along the line of march.

Luncheon was served to the sailors and official delegates of the convention at Tournament Park. Later in the afternoon the exemplification of major degrees was conducted in the Knights of Columbus Hall in Pasadena. At the same time a baseball game was played between teams from Hollywood and Glendale. Busch Gardens and other points of interest were visited by many of the Knights.

Official headquarters of the convention is at the Hotel Maryland where the majority of the delegates are guests. Sessions of the convention will be in the Knights of Columbus Hall.

RECEIVER FOR CIRCUS

Los Angeles Woman Files Claim Against Golden Brothers

The Golden Brothers circus, incorporated in California, was thrown into a receivership Saturday by a chancery court at Little Rock, Ark., according to a dispatch received here yesterday. Herbert Duval was appointed receiver. The action came through a petition filed by Mrs. Margaret Golden of Los Angeles. She charged she loaned the circus $30,000 without security during the past three years and although she made repeated demands no part of the amount has been repaid.

BANDITS ROB MEN GUESTS AT FUNCTION

Pair Hold Up Hollywood Party and Obtain $292; Women's Gems Spared

Boldly intruding on a Hollywood party, two youthful bandits entered the home of Norman H. Kelley, prominent fruit packer of 4550 Melbourne avenue, early yesterday morning, and, after lining up everyone present, proceeded to rob the men of their money. The women were spared their jewelry after Mr. Kelly's mother, who was acting as hostess in her son's absence, pleaded with the hold-up men not to take a treasured engagement ring from her finger. The victims included ten guests, all relatives of the Kelleys. The hold-up was reported to the Hollywood police yesterday.

According to Officers Dehrendt and Young, who were called to the scene of the hold-up, the ban-

DEATH CLAIMS "TIMES" WRITER

Dr. Harry E. Brook Succumbs; Years at Desk

One of Final Messages on Presses When He Died

Spent Life Trying to Give Health to Humanity

While the huge Times presses whirled forth one of his final messages to the public, Dr. Harry Ellington Brook, N.D., for thirty-eight years a member of The Times editorial staff and known to thousands of readers the nation over through his column "Care of the Body," quietly wrote his "thirty" Saturday night at 11:30 o'clock at his home, 2139 Elsinore, after nearly a half century of brilliant and useful labor at an editorial desk.

Death resulted from a nervous breakdown from overwork several months ago and came at the end of three weeks' confinement to his bed. He died as he had lived—peacefully, unostentatiously, with his family around him.

True to the instincts and training of his profession, Dr. Brook, weakened and unable to speak above a whisper, dictated some of his work to his daughter a few days before he died.

BORN IN LONDON

Dr. Brook was born in St. John's Wood, London, March 21, 1849. His father, a descendant of the hardy Norsemen who established settlements in Suffolk on the east coast of England, was a merchant; his mother's gentlewoman.

As an infant, Dr. Brook was poisoned by inoculation against smallpox, losing permanently the hearing of one ear and the use of a finger and being reduced from a robust vitality to a weakly frame. To this affliction Dr. Brook attributed the interest in bodily health which brought him fame in later years. At the age of twelve he began to study health, especially diet, and took up long-distance walking, with a result that before he was out of his teens he had overcome the handicap of his infancy.

At the age of 17 he made his first trip to Europe and for the ensuing ten years he spent much of his time tramping about Switzerland, Italy and France with a knapsack on his back, studying nature cures and preparing himself for his career.

CAME OVER IN 1877

In 1877 he came to America and immediately pointed for California. Five years he spent in San Francisco, during which time he edited The Wasp. Five more years he spent in the mountains of California and in Arizona. In the mining camps of Arizona he edited and published several newspapers during the golden era of that State, and in 1884, at Tucson, he married Mrs. Agnes Plath, a widow with four children.

Two years later Dr. Brook came to Los Angeles and became a member of The Times editorial staff. Since 1886 he has been a constant contributor to The Times with the exception of five years, from 1912 to 1917, when he published and edited a health magazine, Brain and Brawn.

In November, 1921, Dr. Brook received a special degree conferred on him by the American School of Naturopathy in recog-

AUTO CRASHES KILL THREE

Boy and Two Men Meet Death in Traffic; One of Trio Injured Also May Succumb

Two men and a boy are dead and two other men and a woman are injured as the result of week-end traffic accidents in the vicinity of Los Angeles.

The dead are Jesse W. White, 13 years of age, who lived on Torrance Boulevard about a mile east of Redondo; Garrett McHugh, 14216 East Sherman Way, Van Nuys, and William H. Recktenwald, 225 Sixth street, Hermosa Beach.

H. F. Rogers, 662 West Sixty-third street; Fred Kuhn, 356 West Sixty-second street, and Miss Louise Karpe, 25 Wavecrest avenue, Venice, are the injured. None is injured seriously.

Jesse White was struck down by an automobile driven by M. J. Stark of Torrance as he tried to cross the road in front of his home on the Torrance Boulevard about 6:30 p.m. Saturday, according to a report to the Redondo police.

COULDN'T STOP

The boy apparently did not see the approaching car and the driver had no time to stop, according to witnesses of the accident, police declared. White was taken to the Redondo-Hermosa Hospital, where he died early yesterday morning of a basal skull fracture. Stark was not held by the police.

White was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto White, who live in a bungalow court on Torrance Boulevard. The body of the boy is at the Cate undertaking parlors, Redondo.

A second accident occurring on the Torrance Boulevard earlier Saturday resulted in the death of William H. Recktenwald, 235 Sixth street, Hermosa Beach, according to reports reaching the Sheriff's office Saturday night.

Recktenwald was hurt when a machine in which he was riding collided with a truck driven by V. Dabbs, 417 Marrabona avenue, Lomita, according to the accident report made by Dabbs.

The injured man died Saturday night at the Redondo-Hermosa Hospital. His mother, Mrs. J. A. Recktenwald, 825 West Twenty-third street, has been notified of her son's death by the Sheriff's office.

A collision between two cars on the San Fernando Road at Roberts street about 2:30 a.m. yesterday resulted in the death of Garrett McHugh, 1421-6 East Sherman Way, Van Nuys, and in the injury of two Los Angeles men and a girl living in Venice, according to a report of the accident made to the Glendale police.

CRASH IN FOG

McHugh was driving north on San Fernando Road in a speedster, registered to L. A. Larsen, living at the same address in Van Nuys, when the accident occurred, police declared. P. F. Rogers, Fred Kuhn, and Miss Louise Karpe are said to have been driving south in a rented touring car.

In their report of the accident, Lieutenants Nunn and Hedrick of the Glendale police, declared the driver of each car apparently did not see the other machine approaching, due to a heavy fog. The two officers said the accident probably was unavoidable. No one was held.

McHugh was taken to the Cottage Hospital at Burbank by passing autoists, but died within a few minutes of his arrival there, it is said. His body was taken to the

Wanders Through Fields After Her Escape

Clothing Torn to Shreds and Body Bruised

Near exhaustion, her body bruised and scratched and with her clothing torn in shreds, Edna Stanford, pretty 19-year-old waitress, was brought into Central Station early yesterday morning to tell detectives her story of an asserted attempted attack by a strange man who had offered to take her home in an automobile.

The girl told police she had started to walk from the Peacock Grill, 322 West Third street, where she worked, to her home at 922 Potter Park avenue when the man whose name she could not give, passed in a Ford coupe and offered to take her home. Instead of taking her to her home, the girl declared, the man drove to the outskirts of the city where, she charged, the man tried to force his attentions on her. In her struggle to break away, the girl told police, her clothing was torn. Escaping from the car the girl wandered through fields until, at the break of dawn, she found her way to the home of E. H. Kinman, 3317 Second avenue, where she appealed for help. Mr. Kinman brought her to Central Station where she made her charges. Taken to the Receiving Hospital the girl was examined by Police Surgeon Saveretn who declared she had not been injured.

The girl told police she could identify her asserted assailant and announced her intention of prosecuting him should he be apprehended.

Ruling Clears Up Question of 'Visible Injury'

The language of accident and health insurance company policies requiring "external and visible signs of injuries" as proof for compensation should not be construed literally in bona fide cases, Atty.-Gen. Webb declared Saturday in an opinion rendered at the request of George D. Squires, California Insurance Commissioner.

The opinion was sought, Commissioner Squires said, because of several claims filed by insurance policy holders with the department against accident and health insurance companies in which the question was raised.

Injured ribs, vertebrae, ankles and other internal injuries which leave no visible sign on the surface of the body may be the basis for an accident injury claim, the Attorney General held.

It was his opinion that the clause in question is usually included in policies as a protective measure to the company against fraudulent claims. Where examinations establish proof of internal injuries, however, insurance companies may be held liable for compensation, he said.

STRAW HAT CARGO DUE HERE TODAY

Central American Liner to Arrive With 20,000 of Summery Headgear

Another big day in foreign passenger trade will be experienced by Los Angeles Harbor today. At daylight, the President Van Buren, last of the Dollar globe-circling fleet of seven sister ships, will arrive from New York on its way around the world. At sunset, there will come in from New York and Central America the Pacific Mail's crack liner, Ecuador, with 125 passengers and an unusual cargo.

The Ecuador has 30,000 straw hats in its holds for Los Angeles in readiness for the season's opening ten days away, 3080 bags of coffee from Salvador and 2000 bunches of bananas from Guatemala.

Promisent among the passengers are Senora Jolje Melendez, mother of the President of Salvador; A. H. S. Vaughan, coffee king of Nicaragua, and his wife; M. S. Kaiser, a planter of Guatemala; Benjamin Bloom, Central American banker; John Kendall, mining engineer, and George H. Wilson of New Bedford.

Peter B. Kyne, originator of Cappy Ricks, is coming on the President Van Buren, en route around the world to glean material for a new series of sea-faring yarns. Mr. Kyne is accompanied by his wife and secretary, Miss Ruth Chilson.

Other Los Angeles passengers of note who will disembark from the President Van Buren include Rev. and Mrs. R. W. Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Sherman and J. W. Gaffney.

COOLIDGE OIL BOARD DUE TODAY

Will Make Headquarters Here While Investigating Naval Reserves

Dr. George Otis Smith, Admiral Hillary Jones and R. D. Bush, members of the President's Commission on Oil Reserves, are scheduled to arrive today in Los Angeles for an inspection of Navy Petroleum Reserves Nos. 1 and 2. They will have their headquarters at the Van Nuys Hotel.

Dr. Smith is director of the Geological Survey and also head of the Commission on Oil Reserves. He represents the Interior Department on the commission. Admiral Jones represents the Navy Department, and Mr. Bush represents the State of California. It is understood the commission will go from here to the Teapot Dome reserve in Wyoming.

Appointment of the commission followed the Teapot Dome disclosures regarding leases of Petroleum Reserves Nos. 1 and 3, which leases are now before the United States District Court in California and Wyoming on receivership proceedings. Reserve No. 1 is in the Elk Hills section of Kern county, and Reserve No. 2, adjoining it on the south, is in the Buena Vista Hills. Each of the two reserves is approximately thirteen miles long and eight miles wide.

When the Commission on Oil Reserves was appointed recently, it was announced that whatever the outcome of pending litigation, the commission would base its immediate recommendations for administrative action on the broad principle of preserving for the Navy as much as possible of the Navy's oil reserves until the Navy's need is most urgent. Many difficult questions must be studied relating both to the government's requirements and to the adequacy of present reserves, the President announced.

MONEY MANIA IS LANZIT DEFENSE

Insanity Indicated as Plea at Murder Trial

Hearing Friday on Charge of Wife Slaying Plot

State Will Try to Prove Aim to Inherit Fortune

Whether or not a mad mania for money, together with a depressive insanity, forced Joseph J. Lanzit, local business man, to attempt to kill his wife, her mother and brother, by the use of dynamite, is a question that will be decided in Judge Reeve's court when the case comes to trial on Friday, Dep. Dist.-Atty. Van Cott, who will prosecute the case, asserts that Lanzit merely wished to kill his wife in order to get her estate of about $300,000, and that he also planned to eliminate her mother and brother as possible heirs.

Joseph L. Lanzit.

MURDER ATTEMPT

Lanzit is accused of attempt to murder his wife, Mrs. Josephine Lanzit, after asserted careful preparations to blow up her barbecue place at Washington Boulevard and Burbank street, near Venice, on March 13, last.

Lanzit is said to have communicated his plans to Frederick Tate Woodhead, a Yorkshire explosive expert and World War veteran, and to have promised to pay Woodhead $2000 or more for his assistance. Woodhead notified the Sheriff's office and deputies waited while Woodhead placed a dynamite bomb under the building, together with a time clock to set off the explosive.

MIND EXAMINED

According to Woodhead, he had been told by the defendant that Mrs. Lanzit possessed a large fortune and Lanzit wanted it. At one time, Lanzit is said to have planned to place a dynamite bomb in the large brick oven of the barbecue place.

Alienists have examined Lanzit as to his sanity. It was indicated by the defense attorney that he intends to rely upon a plea of insanity. The prosecution, however, asserts that Lanzit is and was sane.

dits obtained $292 which they took from four of the men guests. The heaviest loser was Dee McKee of 1907 Santa Ynez street, who reported to the police that he was relieved of $200 which he carried in a wallet. L. M. Fife of 537 Palm avenue, Burbank, lost $80; M. O. Young of the same address, $5, and R. E. Fife of 501 Daker avenue, $10, according to their reports.

According to R. E. Fife, some late guests were expected when the doorbell rang. He went to the door and was confronted by the muzzles of two guns held in the hands of one of the intruders. A second stranger stood close behind.

Donning black masks the gunmen forced their way into the house and commanded everyone to back up against a wall. The guests quietly obeyed under the menace of two flashing automatic revolvers while the second bandit went through the pockets of the men present. Following the example of Mrs. Kelley the women begged for their jewelry.

Apparently satisfied with the money, the bandits hurriedly left. Complete descriptions of the two men were given to the police by Mr. McKee.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelley were absent during the hold-up, according to the police report. Mr. Kelley is the secretary-treasurer of Baker, Kelley & McLaughton, Inc., fruit packers of 406 South Main street.

UNABLE TO VERIFY TALE OF ATTACK

Police Investigate Girl's Story Only to Find She Has Disappeared

Hollywood police were working all day yesterday on a story told by Miss Frances Emerson, film extra, that she had been the victim of an attack by several men at a house on Highland avenue, but were unable to verify it, and made no arrests. Late in the day they were searching for Miss Emerson, but were unable to find her at the address she gave, 749 El Centro street, or anywhere else.

The call to the police station came from Miss Emerson, and Sergeants Gilpin and Behrendt answered it. They went to the Highland-avenue house and found Miss Emerson there. She named several men she said had attacked her. She worked at Universal City on Saturday and on her way home from the studio stopped at the Highland-avenue house, but the man who accompanied her from Universal City did not enter. The asserted attack took place late Saturday night, according to her story.

Detective Lieutenants Trosper and Taylor investigated the story and questioned the men she named. When they came to check up with Miss Emerson, however, they were unable to find her.

Sprotte is to sing the role of Waskema and Lucy Dumas that of Narcissa.

On Saturday evening of last week, representatives of a number of neighborhood communities interested in the musical development of Southern California were guests of Ben F. Heads of many of the district organizations were present.

Concerts are being given every evening at Westlake Park, with many well-known artists on the program. This series will continue through the week omitting Wednesday evening.

CLAIM BATTLE WON BY CAREY

Land Office Rules Ranch is Not Oil Prospect

Proof of Patent Accepted by Register Here

Actor Builds $40,000 Home on $16 Tract

Land in the San Francisquito Canyon, Ventura county, is valuable only for agricultural purposes, and no reasonably prudent person would spend much money drilling there with the hope of finding oil, in the opinion of Receiver Smith and Register Valentine of the Federal Land Office in Los Angeles. The opinion of the government officers with respect to this land is set forth in a decision upholding Harry Carey, motion-picture star, in his efforts to obtain an unrestricted patent on his 160-acre ranch located three miles west of Saugus.

Harry Carey.

The cowboy hero of the screen, whose true name is Henry D. Carey, filed his homestead application on the 160 acres in 1918, and submitted his commutation proof of ownership in 1920 after fourteen months continuous residence on the land. At that time a mineral examiner of the general land office at Washington reported the land was valuable for oil and gas whereupon the land office gave Carey the privilege of receiving a restricted patent on the quarter-section thus reserving for the government the right of possession in whatever oil and gas might be under the property.

Carey declined to accept a restricted patent, and the case went to contest. At a hearing in November, last, before the receiver and register eminent geologists, including Roy Meade for Carey, and Leroy A. Farmer for the government, testified at great length concerning the likelihood of there being oil and gas in commercial quantities on the property in question. The discussion of the subject was the most complete ever heard before the local land officers.

The showing on behalf of Carey was that he had consistently abided by the homestead law in proving up on his claim and that his expenditures for buildings and other improvements had amounted to approximately $40,000. It was testified oil prospectors frequently had visited the property and that Carey finally followed the advice of an official formerly in the local land office and took out an oil and gas permit for the purpose of keeping the prospectors off the ranch.

The receiver and register decided the government failed to establish a prima facia showing of the asserted mineral value of the land. On the other hand, they held that in view of the extensive oil operations of recent years, the land would have been drilled long before Carey filed his claim had there been reasonable prospects of obtaining oil thereon. The evidence as to oil drilling operations went to show that the Occidental Oil Company had abandoned a 3100-foot well about one mile west of the Carey entry, and that numerous wells drilled by others during the last twenty years in territory extending from the Casraic Canyon easterly had all been abandoned.

It was recommended by the receiver and register that Carey be given a patent without reservations or restrictions. The officials say his compliance with the homestead law has been precisely what the government desires in such cases. Mrs. Carey, it is said, has been in active charge of the ranch inasmuch as Carey's time is taken up largely in the making of pictures. The cost of filing on the 160 acres was $16. The land will cost the owner an additional $200 in event the decision of the receiver and register is affirmed by the commissioner of the general land office.

No Trace Found of Lumberman, Week Missing

No trace of Arthur M. Goodhue, manager of the Long Beach branch of the San Pedro Lumber Company, who was reported mysteriously missing from his home and office for more than a week, has yet been received, officials of the lumber company stated last night.

Rumors that the missing man had been indisposed for several days before his disappearance, and that he might have gone to a sanitarium to recuperate, were current in Long Beach yesterday, but could not be verified.

T. L. Ely, general manager of the San Pedro Lumber Company, who resides in Los Angeles, declared that Goodhue had left no word of his intended departure. Following the disappearance, a check of the company's books is being made, according to Ely, but this action was taken merely as a precautionary measure, there being no evidence of irregularities in the books yet uncovered. Goodhue had been in the company's employ for thirty years.

EX-POLICEMAN ARRESTED

Herbert Vaughn of 244 South Olive street, former police officer, was lodged in the City Jail last night, charged with violating the Wright Act. He was arrested at Fourth and Main streets by Officers Murphy, Boice and Barnes of the police reserves, who reported that they found two pints of whisky in his automobile.

FINDS BODY OF MAN AT CLIFF BASE

Boy Fisherman Discovers Corpse Near Redondo; No Identification Marks

The body of a man about 50 years of age, believed to have been dead several weeks was discovered yesterday afternoon in a cove about six miles from Redondo by a boy returning from a fishing trip.

Raymond Liernan, 16 years of age, made the report to the Redondo police, and Chief J. W. Henry investigated. He found the body beside a dead campfire at the foot of a cliff and about 100 feet from the shore-line. Decomposition was in such an advanced stage that it was impossible to tell whether there had been foul play or whether death had resulted from natural causes.

Chief Henry declared the man had thick gray hair and a moustache. The body was clothed in a blue cotton shirt, khaki trousers and brown shoes. A hat bearing the name of a Los Angeles clothier was found near by. No marks of identification were found in the clothing or on the body.

Due to the impossibility of taking the body up the cliff, it will not be moved until today when Redondo police will go after it in a boat, Chief Henry said.

HELD AS BURGLAR

Suspect Arrested in Connection With Clothing Theft

A charge of burglary was made yesterday by Detective Lieutenants Finn, Steinriede and Shannon against W. J. Chenard, whom they arrested at 6412 Monterey Road. The arrest was made after they had traced forty-six suits of clothes worth $2500 which they say were stolen the night of March 17 from the store of Norton Brothers and Morris at 833 South Los Angeles street.

The clothing was found at the home of Mrs. Lillian Partin, divorced wife of Charles Partin, a police officer, at 800 East Vernon avenue, the detectives said. They declared Mrs. Partin said Chenard had left the clothing with her for safekeeping. In his divorce suit Partin named Chenard, according to the officers.

THE BIGGEST LOAD

A huge ship staggered into our harbor the other day under a burden of 6,350,000 feet of lumber. This is said to be the greatest timber cargo a vessel ever carried. On this single ship there was material enough to stock half a dozen good-sized lumber yards. More lumber and oil pass in or out of our harbor than any other port in the world and this was merely an unusually interesting exhibit.

THE PRUNE MARKET

Commercial letters from the East report a much freer movement of California prunes in New York. This will be a fine thing for the metropolis. Epidemics and evils may have their sway, but the California prune is always in the offing and ever safe and sane. Getting full of prunes is about the best thing that can happen to a New Yorker and we look for a fine business up to and including the Democratic convention.

THE MONEY MAKER

On a capital stock of some $17,000,000 the Ford Company has a general surplus around $440,000,000. The cash, bills receivable and other items equivalent to ready money aggregate $270,000,000. Henry never knows within $10,000,000 or $20,000,000 of how much actual dough he has in his jeans. All he knows is that he has the best little money-maker the world has ever known. This marks him the wizard who makes the wheels go 'round.

THE BOND HABIT

By merely making a gesture of complaisance the Power Bureau expects to lure public indorsement for a bond issue of $21,000,000 without making any definite statement of the uses to which the vast sum will be spent. We are only advised that by working nights and Sundays and using a steam shovel they will be able to shoot the money somewhere. Aside from paying the principal and interest the voters are not supposed to be particularly concerned.

OFF AGAIN, ON AGAIN

They moved an eight-story building in Chicago without mussing up the place a bit. While the structure was being rolled to its new moorings the elevators were running and the water, gas and electric connections were as usual. They must have taken the cellar and the sewer right along with the building. But modern achievement can move almost anything without much splurge about it. Our engineers could balance the pyramids of Egypt on the tower of the Woolworth Building if the inducement were sufficient.

NATIONAL ROAD RULES

Standardized traffic regulations for all States is one of the crying needs of the day. Local conditions will sometimes make an appeal for special interpretation, but it may be accepted as a fact that what is wisest and best for the handling of the traffic in New York or Hickory Corners is also good in Los Angeles and Yuma. When cross-country touring has become the pastime of seven-elevenths of our people a complete interchange of signals, rules and highway customs should prevail. The automobile clubs are doing much to bring about this coveted condition, but there is still much to be accomplished.

THE PEON PROBLEM

Dr. Frank Bohn has been making a survey of economic conditions in Mexico and he writes of them in a series of articles for the New York Times. The result of his findings does not encourage Americans to hope for a speedy improvement in the life of the masses in that country. The fault does not lie with the government, but with the peons themselves, and little can be done until some method of arousing them from their inertia is found. When they can be taught, as Dr. Bohn puts it, "to know more, desire more, produce more and enjoy more," our southern neighbor can then take her place alongside of other nations.

It will take generations of education to accomplish this result, and Dr. Bohn is appalled at the task that confronts the Mexican government in devising some system of training that will arouse the people from their physical and mental lethargy. Even the most ignorant population can be modernized when its members have a desire to learn and improve themselves, but the peons are content to continue as they are, and quite disinterested in modern methods, as well as hygiene.

How difficult they are to improve is shown in one case where an American engineer built sixty two-room cabins for his workers in an effort to improve their living conditions and teach them sanitation. In one year they had "sold doors, windows, locks and hinges and destroyed the floors by building fires in the middle." Out of such discouraging material as this the Mexican government must build an agricultural class to produce on the ground she has allotted the peons after breaking up the former great estates. Unless they can be won away from the squalor and ghastly poverty in which they live, by implanting in them the desire for better things, peace will be short-lived in Mexico. No European country, with the most illiterate peasantry, has half so serious a problem with which to cope.

A FORWARD-LOOKING PROGRAM

If Los Angeles is to continue to progress and thrive it must maintain a great constructive, forward-looking program. If this city is to build commensurately with its population its ambitions and its industrial and trade responsibilities it must provide adequate facilities.

On the eve of an election in which many local issues are at stake The Times desires to emphasize the wisdom and the necessity of looking to the future as well as to the present. Los Angeles must not hesitate to bond itself to provide necessary utilities and extensions if it is to go ahead. In this respect the city should pursue a courageous course, being mindful that there are many sound civic enterprises which need to be financed and which ought to be financed and that there is no money to spare for any wasteful, unnecessary, political schemes.

The Times, therefore, unhesitatingly recommends an affirmative vote on county flood control bonds and municipal propositions numbered 1, 3, 5, 6, 7 and 8 as contributing to our great constructive program of growth. Just as unhesitatingly The Times urges the defeat of Propositions 4, 9 and 10 proposed by the political Power Bureau. These three propositions are destructive rather than constructive. They would divert money needed for other purposes into the hands of a bureau which has a malodorous history of waste and mismanagement. In the view of competent engineers no such sum as $21,000,000 is required even for legitimate power expansion. To vote it on the ancient, threadbare and never-kept promise of the Power Bureau that it "will not cost anything" will be to commit the city to a program demanding uncounted more millions from the taxpayers in the not-distant future.

County flood control bonds should be authorized because they provide means to accomplish the double purpose of conserving much-needed water and of preventing disastrous floods.

The first of the municipal propositions is the new city charter. The charter under which Los Angeles is now operating is a badly patched, antiquated document. While the new charter leaves some things to be desired, it is notably better than the old charter and should be adopted.

The second proposition should be defeated because it involves a return to the obsolete ward system of electing Councilmen.

Proposition No. 3 is vitally important and is entitled to the support of all forward-looking citizens. It provides for additional reservoir capacity and extensions of water mains and laterals. It is an essential portion of Chief Engineer Mulholland's great Aqueduct program.

The $21,000,000 power bond proposition (No. 4 on the ballot) should be defeated, as were the $35,000,000 power bonds last June. The political Power Bureau's record of broken promises, failure and inefficiency make a $21,000,000 vote of public confidence ridiculous.

Proposition No. 5 provides money to establish eleven new police substations and to reduce the appalling crime loss. Los Angeles is assailed by a great army of criminals. To protect life and property the police department must be adequately equipped.

Proposition No. 6 is to provide a fire boat to protect the Los Angeles water front for the development of which the people have spent many millions of dollars. This fire protection should be given.

One million dollars is asked for in Proposition No. 7 to reconstruct and repair unsafe bridges. The recent collapse of the Avenue 26 bridge with accompanying loss of life should point a lesson strong enough to carry this measure overwhelmingly.

Incinerator bonds as provided by Proposition No. 8 are meritorious and should carry as they will solve the important question of keeping streets clean.

Propositions Nos. 9 and 10 are the Power Bureau gas-grab ordinances and should be defeated, as they authorize the first step of a program that will involve many millions of dollars in future expenditure, the only result of which will be to add new burdens to the taxpayers.

Proposition No. 11 should be defeated to save the city streets from undue wear and premature destruction. This ordinance would increase the truck-weight limit from 22,000 pounds to 26,000 pounds, which is beyond the limits of safety.

Proposition No. 12 is the Power Bureau's Boulder Canyon Dam straw vote and, in the opinion of The Times, is out of place on the ballot. There is no question as to the wisdom of Colorado River control, but this straw vote is beside the point. The Federal Power Commission has clearly declared that the dam should be built, not by the government, but by private capital under government regulation. No. 12 presupposes that the government itself will build the dam. The proposition means nothing and can safely be ignored.

WHAT AMERICA OVERLOOKED

Even the Senate, in its saner moments, considers something worth while. Despairing of securing the passage of any controversial legislation, however much it may be needed by the country, Senator Lodge, the majority leader, has turned his attention to art. He has offered an amendment to the so-called second deficiency bill, which provides for an appropriation of $2,000,000 to enable the Smithsonian Institution to begin the construction of a national art building.

America has great artists, but no home for great art. A collection of masterpieces representing possibly $5,000,000 has been gathered at Washington. But these treasures, according to the New York Times, "we are boarding out in quarters called by courtesy 'National Art Gallery' and forming part of the National History Building of the Smithsonian group on the Mall."

It is proposed that the total cost of the National Art Building shall be not more than $7,000,000, a considerable sum for a single community, but infinitesimal when considering that it embraces the nation as a whole. America has been building for the immediate future for the last 125 years. So many millions of people have come to our shores and so many millions of acres of new territory have been opened to intensive cultivation that there has not been much time to consider what may be termed the finer things of life.

We have protected our liberties, the most important consideration for any people; we have developed our natural resources and have made money. Necessities came first, and the necessities were not overlooked. But the time has arrived when the river of foreign immigration is reduced to a rivulet. We have pushed production in many lines to a point where it has outrun consumption. We have reached a point where we can take a breathing space and look about us to see what, in our haste, has been overlooked.

First of these is a proper recognition of art. We speak by courtesy of a National Art Gallery. There are eighteen nations in Europe that have national art collections worth from five to fifty times that possessed by "we the people" of the United States. We speak of the Balkan states as the abode of "backward peoples;" but there is not one of them that does not possess a national collection worth many times our own and a national gallery in which it is housed.

The Louvre and Luxembourg galleries of France are world-famous. The art treasures of Italy are one of its great national assets. England is celebrating this year the first centenary of the National Gallery. We scoff at German "kultur;" but, while it did a great deal of harm to Germany and to the world, it gave to Germany national and state galleries before which those in this country are derisory in comparison.

Perhaps the present Congress will make a beginning. It is possible that, unknowing, the members may take a highly important step in the cultural development of the country. America has some of the most noted collectors in the world. They would be pleased to contribute masterpieces to a national gallery if they could be suitably housed. The gift collections received by the National Gallery of England are worth many times the building and the land it occupies. From a purely material standpoint a national art building would be a very profitable investment.

As the New York Times very truthfully observes: "Art helps a people to finer vision and freer interests, and convenient access to great art is far more necessary today, when all countries may have daily access to the mediocre art of all the world, than it was when belittling contact with the mediocre and vulgar was more restricted and difficult."

STINGLESS BEES

E. J. Campbell of Olympia, Wash., has accomplished a scientific achievement which moves him right up in the Luther Burbank class. From the industrious but peevish bee commonly found in apiaries he has developed a stingless bee that will not attack a person even under the strongest provocation. In fact, it cannot attack, since it has no stinger or offensive equipment of any sort. It has heavier and speedier wings than its armed cousins and depends upon these in times of danger.

The bee is of the Adel strain and already a heavy demand for it has gone up all over the country. Thurston county bee men are using it almost exclusively and as a result of the new model type of bee the popular prejudice against the indefatigable little toiler should disappear in the near future. It should be an especial boon to residents of Southern California, where nature kindly provides all the necessary sustenance for the bees and honey and hot biscuits can be enjoyed by home owners with no thought of the high cost of living.

USE OF POWER

Cabinet members, Senators and lesser statesmen after having been in office seem to naturally find themselves in the business of pushing claims against the government. There is no inherent wrong in it, but the average citizen is likely to make a mental protest against a former public servant utilizing his special knowledge or acquaintance on behalf of clients who have demands upon the national treasury. Secretary Weeks furnishes a list of former officials who have thus appeared before the War Department. There are the names of William Gibbs McAdoo, A. Mitchell Palmer and a number of other retired Cabinet members, some of whom came as representing claimants before their seats were cold. This was legal and probably justifiable—but . . .

AMONG THE WRANGLERS

The Senators sustained Secretary Mellon to the extent of approving his plan for a board of tax appeals in connection with the income-tax measure. There was no percentage to argue about in this case and it seemed to create a few new jobs. But as a general proposition anything suggested by Secretary Mellon has hard traveling through Senatorial halls.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

Proof Readers Fill Important Post

Newspaper proof readers have formed a society in New York with the object of bringing to the attention of publishers the importance of their craft, which has been neglected to a certain extent, they charge. There is little doubt as to the importance of the proof reader's vocation. He is the final arbiter between the newspaper and the public. He must be equipped with an inexhaustible fund of knowledge of the widest possible range and it must be available at an instant's notice. He works under constant pressure, for the time element enters into every department of the modern newspaper. There seems to be a tendency in different places to lessen the importance of the proof reader's work. That is a wholly wrong conception. A list of averted libel suits, embarrassing situations and ridiculous mistakes saved by the watchfulness of the all-seeing eye of the proof reader in any given office would soon convert the publishers to the necessity of preventing the degeneration of so honorable and efficient group of craftsmen.

Cupid Conquers Red War Chief

The news is out at last. For months correspondents have been guessing at the real reason for the withdrawal of Leon Trotsky, War Minister of Russia, from actual participation in the soviet government. It was said he was charged with treason. People were led to believe that he had cancer of the stomach, but the truth is out at last. Leon was in love and still is. He wanted to marry a very beautiful Tartar lady. She was willing, but demanded that Leon leave the country and live the rest of his life with her on the shores of some Italian or Swiss lake. Leon agreed and he tried to get in communication with Czarist adherents to obtain passports and credentials that would leave him undisturbed from the international police. His little scheme included handing over some valuable Russian army secrets to the Czarists. The plan leaked out. Leon is banished to the Caucasus and his lady-love is in the hands of the cheka.

RIPPLING RHYMES

DOING THINGS RIGHT

I care not what my neighbors say nor heed the stories they may tell; serene, unmoved, I go my way, intent on doing all things well; I saw my wood and bale my hay and paint the shack wherein I dwell.
No doubt the neighbors criticise my daily deeds in bitter terms, no doubt they say I'm far from wise to fish for trout with angle worms, dislike the way I swat the flies and chloroform the deadly germs. Time was when I was much distraught by what the villagers might think; I feared to labor lest they thought my works were badly on the blink, and every day some gossip brought a tale that made my spirit shrink.
But years bring wisdom as they scoot, they brought a little slice to me; I do my chores and care no hoot how many critics there may be; a man is but a cheap galoot who fears what neighbors may decree. So that he does the best he can and keeps his fence in proper trim and is as fair to every man as he would have men be to him, it boots not if the neighbors plan to yap at him with bow-wow vim. However well a man may steer his bateau down the stream of time, there always are some alecks near to say his steering is a crime; and he is wise to give no ear, to fix his eyes on stars sublime.

PLEASE, MR. PREACHER!

By the Foothill Philosopher

My intimate friends have never accused me of being religious and my fellow-workers on the greatest newspaper in the world would probably be willing to "tell the world" that I am not wise, but many who know me well enough to pity me have told me that I am emotional. Therefore, I was not surprised at myself when, upon hearing a band of Christian soldiers at the entrance to a Main-street mission singing a hymn that stirred my heart in the long ago in a little church in the wildwood, I took off my hat, stepped within the portal and joined heartily in the song.

It was a beautiful service—until the preacher spoiled it for me. He was a good man, I did not doubt, but I could not quite like his preaching to save me—and that was evidently what he wanted to do. He told how formerly he had been a very bad man, which was all well enough, I suppose—that is, for him to confess it. Then he told how he had been brought to the light of truth and the beauty of holiness by accepting the great Master as an example for thought and conduct. That was still better and my heart said "Amen."

However, when he told of the endless torture that he said the good God has reserved for all those who find it difficult to believe the special brand of theology with which his soul had been branded I began to grow a little chilly. And when he launched out into a tirade against moving pictures in general and against many other forms of innocent amusement with which humans try to while away an occasional hour of recreation I grew colder still.

The preacher was all right and I'm strong for the good work he is doing, but I couldn't enjoy all of his preaching, not to save me. The organist had a face like an angel and the women singers were beautiful with the light of inspiration in their eyes. I am sure that not one of them would have said the kind of things that the preacher said, but I did not wait to test the truth of my opinion about them.

I left the mission, for I did not like the preaching. I pitied the preacher because of what seemed to me his fanaticism, just as some of my friends pity me because of the embarrassments that come to me because of my emotional nature. I could have wished—and did wish—that in future he might be less condemnatory of those institutions that help to make humanity smile.

My street preacher is not alone in his attitude toward the world. In some of our best pulpits there are clever and eloquent—yes, and good men who seem so zealous in their desire to separate the church and the world that they censure almost everything that is not said and done under the dome of a consecrated temple. I could wish—and I do wish—that they wouldn't do that. I wonder if they realize that if they take the church too far away from the world the world will have little chance of getting the light which the church honestly is seeking to shed upon it and that the church itself might suffer as a consequence? The world cannot be redeemed either by ignoring it or condemning it. If the world cannot be saved by love, then the world will, indeed, be lost and love will be forever lonely.

There is another class of preachers that I could wish—and do wish—would change their tactics a trifle. They are among the very best, most earnest preachers in Los Angeles, too. But it seems to me that their methods are less effective than they would be if these ministers were not so negative in their attitude toward people, things and institutions.

These clergymen assume an attitude of criticism in affairs social, governmental and even ecclesiastical. Doubtless they mean well—and doubtless, also, a little plain talk from the pulpit often has a wholesome effect—but, generally speaking, it is the positive word, the constructive message that counts most. For instance, is it not better to say that more church members should try harder to demonstrate the spirit of love than to say "The trouble with the is that church members do one another"?

Is it not better for a speak and work for cleaner pictures than to condemn tire cinematographic not better to tell of the work of the daily press gest to the editors that more constructive articles preach a sermon on ness of Modern Journal

Is it not better to greet bless you!" to all who, ever name or institution, deavoring to bring heart physical healing to the to criticise the messages ods of certain teachers as un-Christian and "unsc The Master, we are not always speak and act duct His healing meetings ing to the times and scribed by the established of His day.)

Auto Bandits Beg Ride Then Hold Up Driver

In a daylight hold-up on the highway near El Monte yesterday, automobile bandits robbed C. O. McKinney of Covina of $15, according to his report to Deputy Sheriff Moodie.

McKinney said that he stopped his automobile when he saw another car parked at the side of the road and the three occupants waving to him to stop. One of the trio begged for a ride to the nearest gasoline station, stating that their car was out of gas. McKinney agreed to help them and one of them climbed into his car, pulling a revolver from his pocket and holding him up as soon as he started, he told the deputy.

Two robbers entered the Shell station at Santa Fe and Sacramento streets and took $7 from L. Ward, the attendant.

Man Says Trio Seen Abducting Woman in Car

Police yesterday were investigating the report of E. W. Dunson, 1027 West Seventh street, that he saw three youths spirit a young woman away in a large touring car early in the morning. According to Duncanson, the young woman was forced into the machine at Seventh and Bixel streets. She was fighting and screaming as the trio sped away with their asserted capture, he said.

While calling the roll at the beginning of the term, one of the teachers at Tech came across the name of Carl Sandburg.

"Do you know," she said, looking at the small boy who answered to the name, "that there is a well-known modern poet whose name is Carl Sandburg?"

"I ain't him," assured the youth.—Indianapolis News.

Popular music is familiar music.

This principle laid down by Theodore Thomas is gradually boring its way through the walls of prejudice and a day not far distant will find it resting solidly on the immovable foundation of truth. This process of penetration has been aided materially by such programs as were broadcast from KHJ last night. Educational, inspiring and stimulating, it presented a colorful program of melody. Claire Forbes Crane, pianist-composer; Juliette de La Grazia, dramatic soprano, and Sol Cohen, violinist-composer, were the artists.

FIRST BROADCASTING

Broadcasting for the first time, two of the greatest violin sonatas, Sol Cohe rendered the masterpiece of Lekue, the young Belgian who composed the sonata when only 22 years of age. His death two years later dealt the musical world a severe blow, particularly the French school by which he was considered its most brilliant member. Insurgent passion, vaulting ambition, somber intensity and seraphic nobility characterizes the sonata, and Sol Cohen's bowing formed a spray of conflicting emotions. Several minor but exquisite numbers constituted Sol Cohen's other contributions.

Claire Forbes Crane with that indefinable and still definite quality selected two of Mendelssohn's songs without words and rendered them on the Sohmer. The horns of Dilland faintly blowing echoed and re-echoed in the ears of the imaginative. Schuman's Novelette in D Minor was included in Miss Crane's program.

WELL-PLACED TONES

The boundless amplitude of Weber's Die Freischutz found no confinements in the well-placed tones of Juliette de La Grazia. Those dramatic analysis of the patterned figure, compassed the composer's innermost meaning. Her German diction gave evidence of intensive study of her art. Un bel Di (One Fine Day) from the Butterfly and La Tosca's famous prayer, Vissi D'Arte, were added to her recital.

Appearing through the courtesy of the Fitzgerald Music Company, Raymond Harmon, tenor, sang another group of selections which are being used in the music memory contest.

At 10 a.m., Rev. Daniel T. Thomas, pastor of the Grace Congregational Church. From 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., the entire religious services and organ recital from the First Methodist Episcopal Church. Rev. Elmer E. Helms, pastor, and Arthur Blakely, organist.

MAN OF FAITH IS WORLD MASTER, PASTOR SAYS

Glorious Future in Store for All Who Place Their Trust in God, Radio Preacher Shows

Declaring that a glorious future is in store for men of vision and confidence, Rev. Daniel T. Thomas, pastor of Grace Congregational Church, preached an eloquent sermon on "Faith" yesterday morning from The Times broadcasting station. Mr. Thomas spoke in part as follows:

"The child, lying at night in its little crib by its mother's side, cries out because of the darkness its eyes cannot penetrate, and wants to get up. The mother says 'lie still and wait until morning, child.' And the little one asks, 'when will the morning come?' The mother says, 'it won't be long, and, taking the tiny hand in her own, the restless child soon falls to sleep, perfectly confident that daylight will soon come and that then she can get up. So with God's grown-up children. Amid the gloom of our limited knowledge, we grow restless and uneasy, because we cannot see Him face to face; but by faith, putting our hands in His, we may confidently expect the day-dawn.

BASIS OF SUCCESS

"Faith is concerned with an attitude toward life; an attitude positive, reasonable and constructive. Without faith it is not only impossible to please, as the writer of Hebrews says, but without some kind of vital faith it is impossible to achieve anything worth while. The man of faith believes in the reasonableness of the universe; in the divine possibilities in his brother-man, and in the opportunity of himself accomplishing results for God, in the use of his own little life. Faith, in one aspect or another, is fundamental to all worth while endeavor.

"The inventor believes in the solution of the problems with which his inventions have to do. The explorer believes in the accessibility of the new territory, and the value of its investigation at the risk of comfort and safety. The man of commerce believes that he can build up mutually profitable relationships with peoples whom he has never seen, and extend credits to fellow-traders across the sea. The traveler intrusts himself to the engineer, confident that he can go to sleep in Buffalo, and awake in Chicago. All of us have our friends whose preciousness to us is based on faith in qualities unseen, but nevertheless esteemed as true.

SUPREME MOTIVE

"It is in Christ that faith finds its supreme motive, and at the same time its highest justification. Christ is real; His story is known; the record of the outcome of His faith and teachings is acceptable. Once plainly heard or intelligently read, His gospel lays hold on the soul of man, with a moral appeal that must be accepted with vital faith; or ignored, because of fundamental unbelief. It is the mightiest challenge to faith humanity has even received. If accepted and followed out, as it has been by an innumerable multitude, it reveals possibilities in life unexpected by even the most venturesome of faiths. Yet, it begins with the very simplest propositions; just like His own betrayal and death on the cross. His own treatment was the worst case of injustice on record; yet He triumphed more gloriously there than in the earlier days of His popularity.

ALWAYS REWARDED

"True faith is always rewarded. The first great reward is the joy of the faith itself, the experience of walking in the light of unseen glory. As to the actual outcome of faith, we know that the heroes of faith made human life as good as it is today. They won out. The future belongs always to the men who can see it. What they are confident of, comes to pass, soon or late. Christ assures us that it is always so. 'Fear not, little flock, for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom.' Heroes of faith receive a hundredfold in spiritual verities in this world and in the world to come."

GIVES REASONS FOR ANGLO-SAXON POWER

"Cowardice and Courage" is the subject of a sermon preached yesterday by Dr. Bruce Brown, pastor of the South Park Christian Church. In part Dr. Brown said:

"The predominance of the white race is due to the fact that it can never be coerced by threats. It is dominated by passions higher than fear. While other peoples cower before threats and the show of force, these only arouse the Anglo-Saxon to renewed efforts. Mohammedism with its final appeal to the sword was destined to defeat when it faced the white races. The whole weakness of the Kaiser's program was due to the assumption that other nation's would submit to frightfulness. When the Germans were cornered they immediately surrendered. The battle has only begun when brave men see their country devastated and the families massacred. The religion that depends on force and threats and fear for its advancement faces the Kaiser's fate when it fronts free men."

TILROE DISCUSSES "CHEAP GOODNESS"

In a sermon preached yesterday at the First Methodist Church of Glendale, Dr. W. E. Tilroe had the following to say concerning "Cheap Goodness:"

"The reason the world is no better is the small price it pays to be good. Virtue is not had at the bargain counter. One gets quite a little under the sun he does not earn, but he does not so get religion. Religion comes at its cost or does not come. That men get so little out of their supposed religion is that it is a fake. They tried to get something for nothing. As they deserved, they were bitten. Religion is a natural law and keeps books. Has one not paid to be good, it shows on him and shows early."

SAYS GREAT MEN ARE ALWAYS KIND

"The Basis of Prosperity" is the subject of a sermon preached yesterday by Rev. William C. Isett at Amanda Chapel. Mr. Isett said in part:

"Joy is spiritual prosperity. That motto above your desk—'Smile!' How did that ever get into so many business offices? Does a smile help business? Try it. Joy makes the face shine, and he that hath a merry heart hath a continual feast. The man who starts the day with a song in his heart is pretty sure to make good. Peace is prosperity. Quietness, evenness of temper, calmness in the midst of the storm, ability to think when all around is confusion; not disturbed or thrown off the track. You have observed that the prosperous man is likely to be that kind, have you not? But that is soul-prosperity. Long-suffering is soul-prosperity. Not easily angered; not hasty in judgment; patient. Many a man has been 'made' by this one trait of forbearance. Kindness! The big man, who is really big, is kind. It is a trait that will be prominent in heaven. We shall be better for more of it here. You see I am talking about the prosperity of the soul, but it has a very every-day sound to it. Simple goodness belongs to soul-prosperity, that kind of prosperity which lasts forever. That is a homely word. I guess it begins at home, with one's wife and children and the dog. There is no praise much higher than just to say, 'He is a good man.'"

ART RELATION TO RELIGION SHOWN

Dr. H. C. Culbertson, pastor of Plymouth Congregational Church, preached yesterday on "David, the Sweet Psalmist of Israel." He spoke in part as follows:

"While critics disagree regarding the particular psalms which were actually written by King David, and which are merely described as Davidic, there can be no question that one of the greatest achievements of that many-sided genius was the introduction of psalms or hymns into the worship of the Hebrew people. David was not only a warrior and statesman, but he was supremely an artist, and while he was pouring out his soul in music he also was dreaming and planning for the stately temple which was afterward realized in the reign of Solomon, his son. In later time it is devotion to Christ that has inspired the loftiest artistic impulses of our civilization. In His name the cathedrals of St. Peter in Rome, St. Mark in Venice, St. Paul's in London, Notre Dame at Paris, the Duomo in Florence, and the majestic spires of Milan, Cologne, Canterbury, Durham and Westminster Abbey have been lifted toward the sky. The master-painters have always chosen religious subjects for their most sublime achievements: Raphael's 'Transfiguration' and 'The Dear Madonnas,' Michaelangelo's 'Last Judgment,' Fra Angelico's angels, and the finest works of Titian, Da Vinci, Del Sarto, Veronese, Hoffman, Tissot and Dore. The masters of music in all the ages have soared upon the wings of religious emotion, as in Handel's 'Messiah,' Haydn's 'Creation,' Mendelssohn's 'Elijah' and Bach's passion music. In literature we think of Milton's 'Paradise Lost,' Dante's Divine Comedy, Tennyson's 'In Memoriam,' and the thrilling spiritual messages of Browning, Longfellow and Whittier. Every truly eloquent oration of the great statesmen of modern times has found its climax in religious appeal and its loftiest moment in calling upon the name of God. Thus we express our most sacred feelings not only in seeking for truth, and in living for ideals of goodness, but also in terms of the beautiful."

SAYS CHRISTIANITY TOUCHES ALL LIFE

Dr. Ray C. Harker, pastor of the West Adams Methodist Church, preached yesterday on "Be Strong in the Lord." He spoke in part as follows:

"We are to be strong in the Lord and in the power of his might. There are two ways of dealing with frailty. One is to have divine mercy bend to meet it, and the other is for divine grace to supplant the frailty with new strength and power. Someone says the wind is not tempered to the shorn lamb, the lamb develops a thicker fleece. God says to Paul: 'My grace is sufficient,' and Paul answers: 'I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me.' There comes a divine inflow of power and spiritual invigoration. The touch of the Spirit of God upon our spirits is to make our souls of heroic mold, and of celestial temper. The strength we receive and develop must be used for the service of man. This must be done here and now. It is reported that a judge of the Supreme Court said in a public address that the doctor deals with men's bodies, the lawyer with material interests, but the preacher with the life to come. That reveals a fractional conception of the Gospel. Christianity's message touches every domain of life."

TELLS WHY BIBLE IS GREATEST BOOK

Preaching on "Religion's Literature," at the First Christian Church yesterday, Rev. Edgar Fay Daugherty declared the Holy Bible to be the greatest literary treasure of the human race. Mr. Daugherty said in part:

"All books that have helped in attaining higher levels of human living, prove in that fact, and to that extent, that they are part of the message of God to the world. The character and results of writings afford the only conclusive test of their inspiration. Taking the New Testament writings and the influence they have had on the world, or taking the Bible as a whole on this basis, it rises to a level of worth above any other collection of writings the centuries of human experience have produced. The authority of the Bible, incomparably more urgent than that of any other book, lies, not in any rules for behavior or commands to obedience, but in the self-evidencing truths, taught and enforced by holy men and by Christ. The rebound of Protestants from the dogma of an infallible ecclesiastic predisposed them to the claim of infallibility for the book. Infallibility belongs to God alone, as the light, life and truth of the world. The Bible's authority rests in the truth it conveys, not in its title, its sequence of revelations or the translations it may be given in different languages. In his heart of hearts, the honest man of any age or place, fronting the ideals of Jesus, feels and acknowledges in himself: 'Here is the attitude and ideal supremely desirable.' Faithful hearts too often fear the Book needs defense; when all it needs by stumbling, fumbling humanity is appropriation in life and in conduct."

STRESSES NEED OF ORIGINAL THINKING

Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher preached at the Temple Baptist Church yesterday on the topic "Simon Says Wig-wag." He said in part:

"The world is divided into these two classes, the leaders and the followers. All life seems to be a sort of game of 'follow the leader.' There is a game that the young people used to play called 'Simon Says Wig-wag' or 'Simon Says Thumbs Up.' You are not supposed to do anything that Simon does not tell you to do. If you 'wig-wag' or 'thumb up' when Simon does not say so, you will have to pay a forfeit. You may not think so, but this is the most universally played game in America today. Baseball and various other games are popular but none of them is so universal 'Simon Says Wig-wag.' We are all more or less in the game. Human life is so bound together by social, commercial, political and religious ties that we all influence one another. A few become leaders and the rest of us follow. There is no more autocratic demagogue in all the world than the influence that dominates our lives. I have called this domineering power 'Simon.' Whenever this 'Simon' lays down certain rules or regulations for directing and controlling our activities, most of us accept the dictum as law. There is no place where a man or a woman should exercise independence so much as in their religious convictions and decisions. Why are you a Baptist, a Methodist, a Presbyterian? Is it because you have been influenced by family or friendly association? Do you really know why you are what you are? You cannot get to Heaven on your father's and mother's religion. Believe on Jesus Christ for yourself. Publicly confess Him for yourself. Live your own Christian life, and owe allegiance to no one but Christ."

Old adages are dangerous. They are accepted as verities whereas many of them are as false as a mining town store front. (THE $21,000,000.00 POWER BONDS)

Read This Official Statement from the City Auditor's Office

"The Excess of Proposed Bond Issues Over the Bonding Capacity of the City is $53,532,000!"

Commenting upon the entire statement, the Los Angeles Evening Express says:—

"This statement brings out the very interesting fact that increased taxes are always necessary to make bonds legally possible, because increases in taxable property are absolutely necessary to make additional bonds legal after the bonding capacity of the city has been exhausted.

"SO THE CLAIM SO OFTEN REPEATED THAT $21,000,000 OF POWER BONDS WILL NOT ADD TO THE TAXES OF THE CITY IS MOST INACCURATE AND MISLEADING."

We have given the Power Bureau THREE Bond Issues.
The FIRST cost taxpayers $2,275,812.50.
The SECOND cost taxpayers $3,054,248.75.
The THIRD cost taxpayers $1,137,375.00.

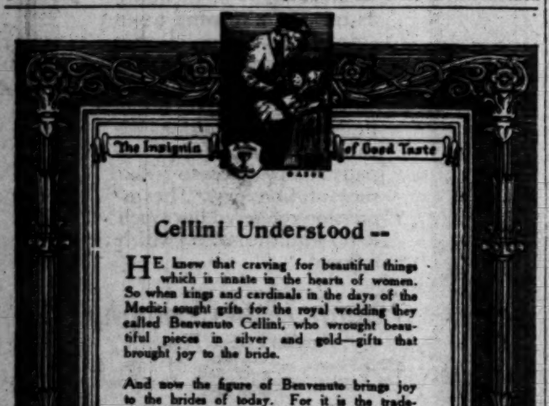
Dainty Luncheon

Mrs. Charles J. Lehman entertained with a beautifully appointed luncheon at the Wilshire Country Club recently, honoring her niece, Mrs. John Van Pelt, one of the brides of the season. A beautiful basket filled with spring flowers formed the centerpiece and the guests included Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Perkins, Mrs. William Barnet Lindsey, Mrs. S. Steele Sandberg, Mrs. Frank E. Ewins, Mrs. Stokes Anthony Bennett, Mrs. F. E. Short, Mrs. D. de Moulin, Mrs. Edmond Pugh, Mrs. Frederick Hahn, Mrs. Harley Hoyt, Mrs. Harold Creighton, Mrs. A. Carmen Smith, Mrs. Edward de Moulin, Mrs. George Brown, Mrs. Charles A. Fellows, Mrs. E. Gillette, Mrs. Martin Neuner, Mrs. John Gillespie Bullock and Mrs. Frederick S. Hughes.



Cellini Understood—

HE knew that craving for beautiful things which is innate in the hearts of women. So when kings and cardinals in the days of the Medici sought gifts for the royal wedding they called Benvenuto Cellini, who wrought beautiful pieces in silver and gold—gifts that brought joy to the bride.

And now the figure of Benvenuto brings joy to the brides of today. For it is the trademark of the Schmidt Collection, where gifts of rare beauty are on display and where trained connoisseurs help you choose the appropriate thing.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

ORANGES VS. MILK

Can oranges take the place of milk in the child's diet? No, they cannot.

I want to make this very emphatic, because recently in a group of undernourished children, who were given lunches at school in the morning to increase their weight, it was found that those who were given a lunch consisting of one orange and two graham crackers, gained more weight than those who were given milk. Because of these findings an erroneous impression may be given that oranges can take the place of milk.

But in these series of cases, why did the oranges give better results than milk? Most likely it was because they stimulated the appetites so that more food, perhaps including milk, was taken at home. Oranges are very high in antineuritic or vitamin B, and that vitamin seems to have more to do with the stimulation of the normal digestion and appetite than the other vitamins do. One of the reasons for the lack of appetite in the undernourished children is a lack of this vitamin.

The group of children who were given these lunches were from homes where the economic status permitted adequate food, so states Margaret Cheney, in the American Journal of Diseases of Children, and it is quite probable that the children were getting sufficient milk in the homes.

Oranges, of course, aside from their vitamins and mineral salts, have the fruit sugar which is a valuable energy food. A big orange contains 100 calories of energy food.

Now, if oranges are good energy foods and contain more of the valuable vitamin B. than milk does, why can they not take the place of milk? For this reason: Oranges contain very little protein and the little they do contain is not a complete protein—that is, it does not contain all of the elements necessary for growth of muscles and tissues. Milk, on the other hand, has the best and most complete protein of all foods. Milk is also very high in calcium and phosphorus salts, which are so vital for the bones and teeth.

Give your child oranges and other fruits (up to a cupful or more a day,) but know that they cannot take the place of milk.

Now that you know that oranges cannot take the place of milk, let me tell you a little more about the value of oranges. They are not only high in the antineuritic vitamins, but they are very high in the antiscurvy vitamins. Babies should have orange juice for this reason. It can be begun as early as the third month, between the morning feedings. It is best to begin with five to ten drops, diluted well with water, and increase the amount by five or ten drops every day or so until at least two full tablespoonfuls are taken.

It is sometimes found that babies will suffer from scurvy even when they are getting orange juice, if it is not given in sufficient amounts. I remember in particular one case I had. A 7-months-old baby, developing scurvy, was brought to me. It was apparently on an adequate diet, including one tablespoonful of orange juice a day. The only thing I did to change the diet was to increase the orange juice gradually to three tablespoonfuls. The child rapidly recovered.

There are other fruits and vegetables which can take the place of orange juice. Tomato juice, cooked or raw, raw turnip or cabbage juice, all have been found effective. It is best to give the orange juice, however, if you can get it. In case you use the canned tomatoes, they should be boiled first. It is found that the vitamins in acid solutions, such as tomatoes or oranges, are not destroyed by heat to the extent that they are in nonacid foods.

Now, let me repeat: Oranges, while very wholesome and effective foods, cannot take the place of milk, because they are lacking in complete protein and calcium and the high content growth vitamins found in the cream of the milk.

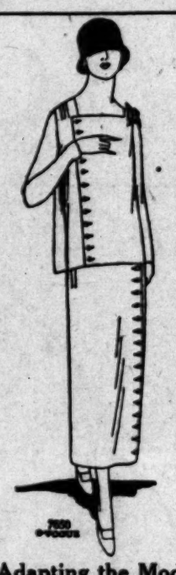
Daily Fashion Hints From

VOGUE



Adapting the Mode

Many wise women prefer to suggest the prevalent mode rather than to follow it without compromise. While the severely tailored suit is sweeping America this spring, it is possible for one to have an adaptation of it that is no less smart and is, if anything, a bit more distinctive.

No. 7480, a decidedly chic street dress, is a variation of the latest tailored mode. Moreover, it has an additional advantage not to be lightly overlooked in that it is so much easier of satisfactory accomplishment for the home dressmaker. Of navy or beige covert, rep, or alpaca, it consists of a simple blouse with a chic cape-back hanging free from the shoulders and a straight wrap-around skirt.

Four to be Tried Today in Killing of Officer Bond

Charged with murder and attempted robbery, four men, who are alleged to have shot and killed Patrolman Glen E. Bond during an attempt to hold up the Seventh and Hoover-street agency of the Merchants' National Bank are scheduled to go on trial today before Superior Judge Keetch.

The accused men are Louis and Oscar Perry, Edward Montijou and Tom Bailey. The case will be prosecuted by Chief Trial Deputy District Attorney Fitts and Dep. Dist.-Attys. Howell, Richardson and Helm. Fitts said yesterday he would move for a separate trial of Oscar Perry on the ground that a subsequent indictment had been returned accusing the man of several robberies alleged to have taken place since and prior to the shooting of Bond, last February. Fitts also stated the prosecution would ask the death penalty for each of the accused men.

Efforts Made To Poll Big Vote Tuesday on Vital Issues

PEERING BEHIND POWER SCHEME

Mayor's Committee Fails to Impress Alien Born

Strong Drive to Win Over Los Angeles Papers

Many Committees, But No Framework Appears

Disguised under the name of the national group to which it seeks to appeal, the Mayor's power committee stands convicted of sharp political practices, according to evidence presented yesterday by publishers of foreign-language newspapers in Los Angeles.

A score of committees, without membership, officers, business address or any sign of entity, are being put forth as dummy organizations to beg votes by false appeals directed at foreign-born American citizens and taxpayers of Los Angeles.

The men and women who emigrated to America, renounced their national sovereignty and swore allegiance to the Constitution and the flag of this nation apparently are being exploited by an organization whose extra-legal existence is possible only by using the name of the city's chief executive.

If one asks: When is a committee not a committee? the answer is: When it is the Mayor's power committee.

USED BY ONLY SIX

The Mayor's power committee has flirted with everybody. It has impressed a few groups, it has been repudiated by others. All told, of the twenty-one foreign-language papers published in Los Angeles, it has prevailed on six print its appeal.

The "copy" sent out by the Mayor's committee, on yellow paper, left a blank for the committee name, thus: "———— American Municipal Ownership Committee." If the "copy" were for publication in an Italian newspaper, the blank was filled in so as to read, "Italian-American," and so on through the list of nations having language newspapers here. No address was given, no personnel mentioned.

The text of the advertising makes a mercenary appeal: "Do you want Los Angeles to prosper, to make jobs for you, your sons and your daughters when they grow up . . . and, do not believe those who say they are not well managed."

It is defensive advertising but—it is paid for by the Mayor's power committee. Checks are sent, signed: "Mayor's Power and Water Committee; John Joseph Hamilton, secretary, and O. M. Souden, treasurer." Hamilton is a hired secretary, Souden is president of the United States National Bank and his signature is necessary to make checks worth money.

COMPATRIOT GUISE

These artful dodgers on the Mayor's power committee have won over papers printed by Jewish Italian, Swedish, German, French and Polish publishers.

These quick-change artists, able to change their costume to fit any foreign environment, appeal to voters under the guise of compatriots.

The real fact is that the foreign-born American citizens are urging their compatriots to vote against the power bonds because they mean more taxes, municipal extravagance and a waste of the taxpayers' money.

One publisher said: "We sent their check back to them. Their promises were false, their name was a subterfuge, their identity was veiled, their argument was absurd. It is odd that the Mayor of this great city should lend his name in an attempt to deceive the foreign-born American citizens of Los Angeles. Most of them have an education; most of them have native shrewdness enough to enable them to see the falsity of this attempt to sway them. They have left their native countries to escape public ownership, militarism and kindred evils. They do not want them here."

FORGET POLITICS AND RESERVE YOUR VOTE FOR SCHOOL BONDS

BY DANA R. WELLER,
Chairman, Citizens' Bond Committee

Forget politics!
Save the city's credit for school bonds.
They come last for votes but first in popular affection.
They are not on the May 6 ballot, but—
They are vitally important!
Other projects have political preference.
Do the children come last?
Must the present needs of thousands be neglected because the Power Bureau wants all the money it possibly can spend for the next three years?
The city's credit can only reach so far.
Children need school rooms.
Political power, backed by your money, is demanded to regulate electric power.
Vote "No" on 4, 9, 10 and 12 and Put 20,000 children back in school.

DRY GOODS MEN URGED TO VOTE NO

Power Bond Question Voiced in Letter From Head of Wholesalers

The Wholesale Dry Goods Association of Los Angeles, through its president, F. B. McComas, has issued a special letter to all members urging a negative vote on the $21,000,000 power bonds.

President McComas, in his letter, explains that the reason for it may be seen in the false report of the chamber meeting which he attended and at which he spoke. His communication dated the 2nd inst. follows:

"A meeting was recently held at the Chamber of Commerce to discuss the proposed bond issues to be voted on at the coming election.

"A local paper, in reporting this meeting, made it appear that the Wholesale Dry Goods Association indorsed the proposed power bond issue.

"On the contrary, I personally attended the meeting and spoke against the power bonds.

"The purpose of this letter is, first to set myself right, and second, to ask you in the event of your being opposed to the power bond issue, to work among your employees and educate them as to the danger of the situation."

The executive members of the association are: D. J. Brownstein, M. G. Cooper, A. J. Goldwater, Lemuel Goldwater, Walter W. Grether and Wakefield Phinney, president; E. B. Myers, vice-president; W. E. Palmer, treasurer; J. L. Webster, assistant treasurer; Eugene A. Holmes, attorney, and Morton A. Holmes, director credit department.

APPEALS TO VOTERS FOR BRIDGE FUND

Board of Public Works Also Asks Support of Incinerator Bonds

Members of the Board of Public Works issued a signed statement yesterday to the voters, bespeaking support of bonds for new bridges and for the construction of a rubbish and garbage incinerator.

The citizens of Los Angeles, the statement points out, always have been most generous in voting for good roads, but most roads might as well not exist if it were not for the bridges connecting them. Failure of the Arroyo Seco bridge at Avenue Twenty-six was widely commented upon, but perhaps, says the statement, "it is not so well known that another bridge of the same type, located at the crossing of the San Fernando Boulevard over the Pacoima Wash, also broke down under traffic."

As for the incinerator, the board says that it is at a loss to known what shall be done with refuse, when growing population compels the abandonment of dumping places, as they become offensive.

POWER FOLK PASS HAT IN BOND FIGHT

Department Employees Asked to Donate Day's Pay to Campaign

The Municipal Power Bureau, having received $23,500,000 in bonds from the people and more than $6,000,000 in addition for interest and sinking-fund charges on these bonds, and then $500,000 more as a loan from tax funds with millions more paid by consumers for electric current, has started in to "pass the hat" among its several thousand employees for political campaign expenses, it became known yesterday.

Not satisfied with the political work the employees were doing night and day, through fear of losing their jobs if they did not attend power bond "mass" meetings, petitions were circulated among the department employees last week asking that each donate one day's pay for the cause of political ownership. The average day's pay of the employee is $5, so that from 3000 public service department workers if they all "came through," the political campaign chest of the Power Bureau would thus be enriched $15,000.

It was reported yesterday, at nightly power-bond meetings held in all parts of the city, the speakers for the bonds bring their own crowds with them to applaud the Power Bureau. At one meeting last Friday night, fifteen public service department city-owned automobiles, propelled by municipal gasoline were counted on the street outside of the building in which the meeting was held. At a meeting on Friday evening at Cienega school on West Adams street, Secretary John W. Crawford of the Citizens' Bond Committee denounced this use of city employees' time and city property for campaigning as a violation of the law. A "crowd" of public service department employees who were present to applaud did not deny the truth of Secretary Crawford's charge.

SCOTT SAYS FIRE BONDS WILL PASS

Chief at Harbor States Many Organizations Have Approved Measure

Having received the indorsement of scores of organizations and individuals for the $400,000 fire-boat bond issue, Fire Chief Scott stated yesterday that he anticipates the passage of this measure, which is Proposition No. 6 on the ballot, at tomorrow's election. Among the organizations that have indorsed this measure as one of the most important before the public are the Chamber of Commerce, the Safety Council, the Municipal League, the Central Labor Council, Greater Harbor Committee of 200, Citizens' Committee of 10,000, the World Traders, San Pedro Chamber of Commerce and the Washington and Pico Heights Tax Payers' Association.

C. J. Colden, president of the harbor commission, Walter Kays, president of the fire commission, and E. F. Bogardus of the Board of Public Utilities, are among the many officials of the city who are urging the voters not to forget this bond issue. Women all over the city, representing club, city and home activities, have indorsed the measure. The indorsement of the ministers of the city was expressed yesterday from more than 100 pulpits.

"If you have no other interest in the election than to protect the city from fire, go to the polls tomorrow," said Chief Scott, "and vote 'Yes' on No. 6."

The Times has perfected arrangements for completely covering the election in all its contests — Presidential, county and city issues—as rapidly as the votes are counted in each precinct of Los Angeles city, Los Angeles county and the State at large.

DAVIS APPROVES DAM PLAN

Famous Engineer Says San Gabriel Canyon Project is Feasible; Cites Need to Curb Floods

Approval of Los Angeles county's huge San Gabriel Canyon dam and reservoir, contained in the $35,300,000 flood-control and water-conservation bond issue to be voted on Tuesday, was given yesterday by A. P. Davis, world famous engineer.

Davis, former head of the United States Reclamation Service and builder of the Roosevelt, Arrowrock, Elephant Butte and other great dams, passed the proposed structure as perfectly feasible under the present plans, with the exception that he recommended that the county impound 250,000 acre feet of water in the reservoir rather than 240,000, as proposed.

HIS SECOND VISIT

The Board of Supervisors prevailed on Davis, who was in San Francisco, to return to Los Angeles and go over the plans with James W. Reagan, chief engineer of the county flood control district. His inspection of the site itself was his second visit to the San Gabriel Canyon.

The former government engineer was particularly interested in the foundation for the dam, borings having been recently completed which showed an average depth of about forty feet to a solid bed of granite. In 1920, when Davis first inspected the site, the foundation problem was one of the chief aspects of the plan. At that time he predicted that granite would be found at about sixty feet.

The San Gabriel dam would be the largest in the world and, because of its great height, 435 feet above the stream bed, the supervisors and Engineer Reagan were anxious for the builder of the largest dams now in existance to go over the plans in detail.

FOR MOUNTAIN DAMS

"Los Angeles county is to be complimented if they undertake this great improvement," Davis said yesterday. "It is a certainty that the only method by which this district can control its floods will be construction of dams in the mountains. There the water can be held back during flood periods and later released gradually so it might percolate into the ground and replenish the underground gravel bed reservoirs. It is from these reservoirs that water is now drawn for both domestic and agricultural purposes.

"The plans have been carefully prepared by your chief engineer and the county should realize that the plan for this great structure is perfectly feasible. The San Gabriel dam can be cuilt so that it would impound 250,000 acre feet of water at one time."

Davis is the consulting engineer for the flood control district and, as such, probably will be called into active duty when construction of the San Gabriel and other dams embodied in the bond issue is undertaken.

POLICE BONDS WIN FAVOR

Leading Citizens Join Civic Bodies in Approving Issue for Safety of City's Homes

Summing up the campaign which has been made for greater community protection through vitally needed police equipment, the Association for Better Police Equipment issued the following statement yesterday:

No electorial proposition that ever has come before the voters of Los Angeles has been more unqualifiedly indorsed than has the proposed bond issue of $1,600,000 to provide Los Angeles with vitally needed police stations in the outlying districts and to equip them to combat the criminal element.

Indorsements have included the Ministerial Association, the Central Labor Council, Federated Colored Women's Club and the wives of negro pastors in Los Angeles, Southwest Chamber of Commerce, the Citizens' Committee of Ten Thousand, City Employees' Benevolent and Protective Association, Southern California Chapter of the Associated General Contractors of America, Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, Purchasing Agents' Association, Los Angeles Crime Commission, Los Angeles City Council and all improvement associations. In addition, there have been editorial indorsements in the Los Angeles newspapers.

CITIZENS SPEAK

Many prominent citizens have been working actively for the success of the campaign and a few of them are quoted as follows:

Marco H. Hellman, banker: "Every law-abiding citizen must do his duty Tuesday and cast a vote for No. 5 on the ballot if we are to safeguard our loved ones and protect our property."

Mrs. Susan B. Dorsey, Superintendent of City Schools. "The police are the protective guardians of the school children. They have practically solved the problem of making life safe for the school children, so now let us supply them with necessary equipment to make life and property safe for the whole community."

Fire Chief R. J. Scott: "If the Los Angeles Fire Department were as inadequately equipped as is the police department, Los Angeles would be wiped off the map in thirty days:"

Rev. Bruce Brown, minister of South Park Christian Church: "Police protection is one of the essential things we so sadly lack in Los Angeles."

MUST COVER CITY

Frank J. Turk, vice-president of California Title Insurance Company: "The sensible and safe thing to do is to divide, decentralize the police force so that every community can be properly taken care of. This can be done only by a bond issue to provide the necessary funds."

John G. Mott, prominent attorney: "The proposed police bond issue is a matter affecting the welfare of every human being in this city. A vote for the bonds is a vote for yourself. It insures the personal protection of every citizen."

John F. Horn, secretary of Central Labor Council: "Labor is in favor of the police equipment bond issue."

Harold L. Arnold, automobile dealer: "The police bonds should be voted without question. Chief of Police Vollmer, the best police chief this city has ever had, should receive the whole-hearted and loyal support of the people."

Dist.-Atty. Keyes: "As District Attorney I cannot but view with alarm the result to this community if its law-abiding citizens vote down the police bond issue."

'GET OUT VOTE,' IS BATTLE CRY

the city-county registration for the primaries of August, 1922, and 76,000 greater than the city-county registration of November, 1922.

Registrar of Voters Lyons is of the opinion that 40 per cent of the registered voters will go to the polls tomorrow, which if correct, will give a total city-county vote of 209,000. A 35 per cent vote tomorrow would give a total of 183,000 votes in the city-county precincts.

The growth of the city is shown by the fact that at the June election last year there were 854 precincts while tomorrow voters will cast their ballots at 991 precincts. During the past year there have been a number of districts annexed including the cities of Eagle Rock, Hyde Park and Lankershim.

THREE BALLOTS

City voters at tomorrow's election will be handed three ballots—the party Presidential nominating ballot, the county flood control ballot and the municipal ballot on which will appear the twelve city propositions, including the six bond issues. The precinct officers will bring the municipal ballots to the City Hall tomorrow night where they will be expeditiously and efficiently handled and the results tabulated by City Clerk Dominguez and he will issue tabulations every fifteen minutes during the night showing the up-to-the-minute results on the city propositions. The Presidential primary and flood control bond issue ballots will be received and tabulated at the Courthouse by Registrar of Voters Lyons.

Charges Wife Won by Mail Took His All

The matrimonial experience of Edward Williams, 76-year-old seeker for divorce, cost him $2250 and several postage stamps, he told Judge Summerfield, who granted his prayer and severed him from Elizabeth Jane Williams. He used the stamps in his courting, having become acquainted with her through the agency of a matrimonial bureau, and she took the $2250 as soon as she could get her hands on it after their marriage, and left him, Williams testified. It was all the money he had, he said, and he later sued her for it.

POWER BUREAU FALSITY TOLD

for the assertion that rates will be lowered, the real fact is that the lighting rate is higher under municipal ownership than it was under the Edison Company.

"The Power Bureau has been spending the money entrusted to it by the people for jazz bands, jaunts of officials and other gilt and tinsel propaganda until recently the courts halted such expenditures.

EXCESSIVE REQUEST

"The proposed bond issue of $21,000,000 is excessive, in the opinion of this committee. Competent engineers report that the program as outlined by the Power Bureau can be duplicated for much less than the amount asked.

"The city is rapidly approaching the limit of its bonded indebtedness. A safe margin should be provided for bonds that are vitally necessary, such as school bonds."

On the question of bonded indebtedness, Former Judge Weller pointed out that bonds voted immediately will become a part of the city's indebtedness, no matter when issued, and that the City Auditor's figures prove the city will be $53,000,000 in excess of its limit if all the bonds carry.

"This being so the school bonds to be voted next month will be unsalable," he said. "There is no doubt of this in the minds of financial authorities. John R. Jardine, president of the Investment Banker's Association, explained this in a statement.

"Representatives of the Power Bureau are resorting to extremely misleading and erroneous statements."

PASSENGERS TO BE FETED

Passengers aboard the Dollar line 'round-the-world steamship President Van Buren, which comes into the port of Los Angeles today, will be guests at the Hollywood Egyptian Theater tonight. Among them is Peter B. Kyne, novelist and playwright. Hugh McKenzie, general passenger agent for the line, will escort the tourists about the city.

DE ROCHE BACK TO WORK

After an illness of two weeks, Charles De Roche, screen actor, is improved enough to report for work today at University studio, it was learned yesterday. De Roche has been suffering from a sore throat, aggravated by a bad cold. A production in which he is working, is said to have been held up several days pending his recovery.

CITY FIRST OF STATE IN WEALTH

Inheritance Tax Attorney Says Lead in Payments is Taken from Bay City

In the first four months of 1924 Los Angeles has jumped into the lead as the wealthiest city in California and is destined to hold the position, Ralph W. Smith, State inheritance tax attorney, declared Saturday.

Mr. Smith, who is in Los Angeles on business from the Sacramento office, said that the department's collections during 1924 show that Los Angeles, for the first time, is paying a higher total of inheritance taxes than San Francisco. It was the opinion of the attorney that the business of the tax office is a competent indication of a community's wealth as well as indicating the community's growth.

"It is an unusual condition," he said, "that the newer districts in Los Angeles which have had to take care of the rapid growth of the city should show a greater wealth than San Francisco which is generally an older and longer established city."

As an indication of the city's growth Mr. Smith produced figures of inheritance-tax collections made during the last nine years.

For the six months from December, 1915, to May, 1916, the local office collected $124,529, the figures show. For a similar period in 1917-1918, $256,031 was taken in. Between May and December, 1920, $837,655 was collected, while the same period last year shows a total of $1,476,140.

PICK OREGON ORATOR FOR 'TIMES' TEST

Benoit McCroskey, Salem High School Student, to Speak in Los Angeles

Oregon's representative in the Pacific Coast finals of the National Oratorical Contest will be Benoit McCroskey of Salem (Or.) High School. The finals will be conducted in Los Angeles on the 16th inst. under the auspices of The Times. McCloskey was picked Saturday night from a field of nine at a contest in Jefferson High School, Portland, and was virtually the unanimous choice of eleven judges. His subject was "The Constitution."

McCroskey is president of the student body of his school and recently won first honors in a Statewide contest for extemporaneous speakers. The Oregon contest was conducted under auspices of the Portland Telegram.

As alternate, the judges selected John Galey of Ashland, Or., and third honors were won by Roland Hanson of Portland. Other competitors were John Cox of Ontario, Elaine Carver of Princeville, Velton Read of Athena, Betty Clark of Riverdale, Delphia Greenberg of Astoria and Emily Williams of Portland. John McCourt, associate justice of the Oregon Supreme Court, was head of the judges.

Council to Get Valley Protest on Burial Area

A petition expected to contain the names of approximately 3000 residents of the upper San Fernando Valley will be presented to the City Council Wednesday as a protest against granting the Oakwood Cemetery Syndicate a permit to establish a cemetery near Chatsworth Park, it was announced yesterday by circulators of the petition. The ordinance, which, if adopted, will grant the permit, is due to come up for final action Wednesday.

Towns represented in the protest include Chatsworth Park, Owensmouth, Girard, Zelzah, Van Nuys, Receda, Lankershim and others. Leaders against the establishment of the cemetery are Dr. W. H. Gudrum, health officer of Owensmouth and president of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of the San Fernando Valley; O. J. Renfrew, secretary of the chambers; Mrs. V. I. Renick, Owensmouth, and others.

Protestants assert there is no need for a cemetery and declare 95 per cent of the residents of Chatsworth Park are opposed to it. They assert it was understood that the purchasers of the property were to create a real estate subdivision.

LLOYD SPEEDS AGAIN

BEST OF RECENT COMEDIES IS "GIRL SHY"

By Edwin Schallert

The time has come for all good picture-goers to laugh again. They'll laugh loud, long and famously this time. For even a person with a lifelong grouch would have a hard time resisting Harold Lloyd's "Girl Shy." It is his best comedy, without any qualifications whatsoever, since he made "Grandma's Boy," which was and still is his classic.

I have long ago stopped going to Harold's comedies, merely as a matter of business. Even if I didn't have to review them, I would go anyway, to be sure not to keep out of a good time.

I could not wax so enthusiastic over the somewhat studied situations in "Doctor Jack," of course, nor the occasionally forced humor of "Why Worry." These did not run so smoothly, although "Why Worry" was very good because of the giant. But with "Girl Shy" everything is spontaneous once again; it's a prize feature for gags and stunts, and sometimes also for thrills.

If I were extremely English in my viewpoint, I should want to know at the close of the picture, just what happened to all the people Harold bowled over with his motorcycle, the street car, and the dirt-hauling wagon that he drives in the final chase climax. You never find out, but you take it they let Harold off easy if he went to jail.

The chase is one of the wildest affairs that has ever shown up in a Lloyd comedy. One of the funniest spots of all is where the comedianne—or was it the stunt man?—is supposed to drive a motorcycle through a trench where men are laying some gas pipe, and you behold all the workmen scrambling out of the hole to avoid being run down.

Harold breaks all the well-known traffic laws and a few that were never heard of before. I would hate to think that reckless motorists were going to try to follow his example. The streets would be in a riot, and as for the effect when a speedster like himself dashes through a tunnel, well the screen offers the best evidence that I know of the results. The expressions on the faces of those who scattered from his pathway are a scream.

I have no doubt that this was an extremely difficult comedy to make. The locations for some of the most thrilling stunts are familiar to anybody who knows Los Angeles. Even a downtown street is shown in the tunnel episode.

All the strenuous efforts that Harold made are really justified, too, by a very amusing story. He plays a young would-be author, who tries to typewrite his methods of vamping women. As Harold is supposed to be a boy that stutters, the things he imagines himself doing, and those he actually does, until the right girl comes along, are a contrast. The stuttering is really nine-tenths of the fun in the show after all.

The most charming note is, of course, Jobyna Ralston. Her peacherino prettiness, and her very fetching expressions enhance the many scenes in which she appears. Harold is probably going to have trouble retaining this girl as a comedy lead, for they'll probably want to feature her in the films are long.

A lot of other people help to make the show good, not the least being the Lloyd technical assistants, and director Fred Neumyer. It's a show that everybody will want to see.

The additional entertainment, besides the very satisfactory musical program, includes a dramatic short-reeler, directed by Will Nigh, laid in Russia, that has a neat twist at the finish.

WRITERS' CLUB SHOW FULL OF NOVELTIES

The Provincetown Players, The Grand Guignol and other really efficient highbrow institutions for the presentation of plays will have to compete soon with the Writers' Club in Hollywood. The screen writers have been outdoing themselves and the latest program seems by all odds the best. I don't know that any of the sketches could excel a Ferenc Molnar playlet, recently presented, but several of them were very unusual and the bill was exceedingly diversified.

The playlets were presented last Friday and Saturday evening.

Everybody enjoyed the humor of "Another Way Out," by Lawrence Langner, the sophisticated Greenwich Village sketch, with dialogue rivaling that of a French farce; "The Experiment," was a gasping dynamic affair, really from the foreign thriller workshop. It might not have been wholly approved, but at least the technique was marvelous.

Grant Carpenter's "The Dragon's Claws," appeared the most generally appreciated, because of its oriental highlights, and the very dramatic denouement. It is a case in this where the drama keeps right on going in the audience's mind beyond the fall of the curtain, which makes for an exceptional play.

"When Caesar Ran a Newspaper" was broad burlesque that made everybody feel genial once again, after the spectral thriller, "The Experiment."

The performance of Warner Oland, Gladys Hulette, Warner Baxter and Edward Peil in "The Dragon's Claws" together made a finely wrought dramatic picture.

Olive Pape sparkled in "Another Way Out," while Roland Bottomley did an amusing character. David Butler swept in some of the larger honors with broad comedy. June Elvidge pleased and Lucy Brown added a flavor to the comedy.

A nice upsetting of conventional values is obtained in this playlet, which sketches a free-love unfon that eventually is turned into a marriage, so that the husband and the wife may seek romance with the other woman and the other man, these latter showing themselves indisposed to interfere with any match that it not legally ratified.

In "The Experiment" the finest character drawing was by Jean Hersholt. The playlet relates an attempt by a doctor to bring his dead daughter back to life through electric stimulation of the heart. The father was played by Josef Swickard, and I would credit him with emotional zeal in the part if naught else. At the finale the hand of the dead girl, who seems about to reawaken into life, clasps him about the throat and strangles him.

The playlet was adapted from the French of Andre de Lorde and Alfred Binet by Charles E. Whittaker. Lawson Butt, Martha Franklin and Rose Burdick did exceeding creditable work.

Waldemar Young, who collaborated with William Jacobs on the travesty, "When Caesar Ran a Newspaper," himself appeared as Marc Antony, press agent for Cleopatra. The best character drawing was by Raymond Hatton as Caesar. Victor Potel was amusing. Julanne Johnston did a very alluring dance as Cleopatra. Frances Hatton was Mrs. Caesar.

HUGHES PICTURE SLIPS UP A BIT

BY KENNETH TAYLOR

Woman's place is in the home, as some one once remarked before. Possibly that is what Maj. Rupert Hughes thought when he first conceived the story of "True As Steel," the picture of that title which is now showing at the California Theater.

The photoplay starts out to solve the problem of home vs. busines in relation to the female of the species, and to prove, probably, that the first-named is the most logical and only correct place for the fair sex. But somewhere along the line Maj. Hughes got all balled up with the result that "True As Steel" doesn't prove anything—not even that the major can turn out a remarkably fine or clever picture every attempt.

The cleverness and satire that have characterized previous photoplays emanating from the brain of the novelist are not greatly in evidence in this production. The picture dissolves into a rather ordinary presentation of a decidedly ordinary theme. Before it is half over you will probably find it dragging, and the interest, rather than being in the plot, is centered on the players, and in a few cases, the characters of the story.

Chief in interest, probably, is Aileen Pringle, because of her recent success as the Queen in "Three Weeks." We wanted to know if she was really as good as we thought she was.

As the business woman in the Hughes picture Miss Pringle gives much the same kind of a performance as she did in her first success. If you expect her to unbend, become human, feel joy, know pain, as ordinary mortals do you may be a trifle disappointed. She is nearly always stately, sedate, rather stiff—in short, queenly. But there are a few scenes in which she limbers up, scenes which she plays with a faint trace of abandonment—and you will enjoy her very much in these sequences.

Huntly Gordon is the business man torn between a love for his quiet, unassuming wife, and a fascination for the dominating business woman. He makes the most of his opportunities, creating quite a favorable impression. Cleo Madison as the wife, Eleanor Boardman as the daughter with modern business tendencies, and William Haines as the young lady's sweetheart, are the other prominent members of the cast. Most of them are interesting.

An Our Gang comedy entitled "Seein' Things" isn't quite up to scratch, but it has a few moments of joy.

CHILDISH FAITH THEME OF STORY

The faith of a little child can work wonders—especially on the flickering silver screen. Coming infrequently as it now does you are apt to find the plot rather interesting, especially when handled intelligently. Which is why "A Chapter From Her Life," or "Jewel," as it is perhaps better known, is a little better than the usual run of pictures, although far from being exceptional. You may see "Jewel" this week at Clune's.

"A Chapter From Her Life" is a child picture—that is, a child runs away with it. Jane Mercer is the little girl's off-screen name. Her performance in this photoplay will endear her to the majority of those who see it.

The story is the familiar one of the child who comes into a family in which discord has formerly ruled, and by her gentleness and faith draws all the individuals to common ground and happiness.

Next to little Miss Mercer's performance, Claude Gillingwater as the kindly grandfather stands out the most prominently. It is safe to count on this player for an interesting performance, for he seldom fails.

Other members of the cast include Jacqueline Gadsden, Fred Thompson and Robert Frazer.

A Hal Roach comedy featuring among others Stan Laurel is also on the bill, drawing a large number of feeble chuckles and a laugh or two. This is "Brothers Under the Chin," a burlesque of a picture popular a year or so ago.

Short reels and musical features complete the bill.

Adding to Current Comedy's Charm

Jane Oaker,
Featured member of the cast of "Lightnin'," soon to close its engagement at the Biltmore Theater.

GETS TRAINING FROM WORK WITH COMEDIAN

Monte Bell, who directed "Broadway After Dark," now showing at Grauman's Rialto, received most of his technical training under the guidance of Charles Chaplin.

One of Bell's most pronounced characteristics is that he never raises the pitch of his voice on the set. His directions are given in quiet, low tones that are decisive yet are more in the nature of a suggestion than a command and stimulate the imagination of the actor. Though new in the directorial field the results of Bell's methods are brilliantly shown in "Broadway After Dark," in which Adolphe Menjou, Anna Q. Nilsson, Carmel Myers, Norma Shearer, Edward Burns and Willard Louis play principal roles.

ROMANCE, PLAYHOUSE WILL OPEN TONIGHT

The glory that is Los Angeles will reach its highest climax tonight when Louis O. Macloon opens the new Playhouse at Ninth and Figueroa streets with Doris Keane in "Romance."

So much importance is attached to this new home of the best drama that A. H. Woods, New York theatrical producer, has journeyed all the way from the East to be present at the opening. Will Rogers has volunteered to be toastmaster and to make the dedicatory speech.

After the performance Doris Keane will give a little party to her numerous friends and perhaps help them forget the divers sorrows of her charater, La Cavallini, in "Romance."

KEATON COMEDY NOW SHOWING AT TALLY'S

Buster Keaton has moved his detective offices to Tally's Theater, where he is continuing to look for crime and getting laughs instead.

As "Sherlock, Junior," Buster provides an hour or more of funny entertainment. In this latest of his Metro feature comedies the comedian introduces several new gags that should keep audiences in convulsions.

The picture boasts Kathryn McGuire as leading woman, with Ward Crane as villian. Buster besides being an embryo detective gets mixed up with the screen of his own motion picture theater, and the climax provides the most exciting chase that has ever been devised.

The added feature of the program is the first showing here of Captain Kleinschmidt's "Adventures in the Far North," a film taken during seven months of exciting episodes in the Arctic regions.

MAE MURRAY PICTURE ON ALHAMBRA SCREEN

At the Alhambra Theater this week Mae Murray, seen in her latest production, proves she can be just as gorgeous in an outdoor setting as in a rich and tapestried interior. "Mademoiselle Midnight," is a story of the early days of lower California, in the days of the Dons, and Miss Murray plays the role of a dark-eyed, dark-haired Spanish senorita.

The leading male role is portrayed by Monte Blue. As the young American for whom the dark-eyed Spanish miss risked her life, Blue is a typical Richard Harding Davis hero.

Miss Murray has an opportunity to do some dancing, which is one of the spectacular features of the picture.

ACTOR KNOWS WHERE YOUNG SKEEZIX IS

Skeezix and Huntly Gordon are friends!

Because Gordon's favorite comic strip is "Gasoline Alley," the actor named his wire-haired terrier after Walt's adopted son.

Gordon is now being featured in Roland West's production, "Driftwood," at Goldwyn studio. Until the hoof-and-mouth disease caused State officials to order all animals confined, Skeezix was Gordon's constant companion at home and at the studios.

"Must you go so soon?"

"Yes, I've got to go home and dress a chicken," said the young matron.

"Oh, do let me come over and help you," entreated the prospective bride, "I used to love to dress dolls."—[Boston Transcript.

"WHITE MOTH" TAME

BARBARA LA MARR GRACEFUL, DOESN'T ACT

By Grace Kingsley

"The White Moth," current at Loew's, is just a Bertha M. Clay theme with Police Gazette illustrations!

Maurice Tourneur seems to me like a bad little boy peeking around a corner and yelling "yah-yah" at a policeman. His picture has such very, very naughty touches in it; yet as a whole it is about as brave and daring and true to life as a tin soldier. So long as Tourneur insists on being bad, why does not this truly brilliant director, with a real imagination, brave the world with a terrific, bitterly true theme? I wish he would try a great historical picture, suggesting all its ironical significances and telling the truth as only he could. At present he is merely the solemn Hopwood of the movies.

The literary proginitors of "The White Moth" are the Typewriter, out of the Barrel. Altogether, if Tourneur intends this picture as a nose-thumbing at the censors, he succeeds admirably. For he proves that you can get away with any number of insidious minor dirty touches, just so long as your main theme remains—stupid!

The story is about a man who marries a girl he thinks is a hussy to keep her away from his younger brother. It is as banal as that. That is, the first part. Then it goes on to be worse. For he deserts her, and then, without any reason whatever, he grows sloppily sentimental and comes back to ask her to forgive him for doubting her!

One naughty moment occurs when a saucy girl of the streets at the artists' ball in Paris trips the brother and drags him to the floor with her, and there are several other moments as highly spiced. At the close, Barbara in her nightie opens the door between her room and her husband's and tosses a pillow at him, whereat he rises, goes into her room and closes the door.

Despite the fact the heroine was lifted to dizzy heights as a dancer by a Parisian Follies Bergere sort of manager, she remains chemically pure, even if her manners have become very, very free.

Barbara La Marr as the heroine is supposed to be American, but she is very Frenchy throughout. Miss La Marr is best in her superficial moments, whether of sentiment or daring sauciness. She has not grown one atom as an actress since first she donned grease paint. She is a poseur, but a graceful and fascinating one. Her dance, however, was a big disappointment.

Tourneur has introduced moments of irony, however, that are superb, these principally in connection with the theatrical manager played most skullfully and humanly by Charles De Roche. Perhaps both being French they work together well at the art of putting these sopsiticated sort of touches over.

Kathleen Clifford played the audacious little girl at the ball as only an artist could. She outlaps most of the screen flappers, is pretty and vivacious in the last degree.

Conway Tearle is as dependably magnetic and clever as ever in an unbelievable role. I cannot see Ben Lyon as yet, more than I can see half a dozen other youngsters. Edna Murphy is sweet and convincing. And what a pleasure it is to see Josie Sedgwick on the screen again, even in an unsympathetic part.

Much needed comedy relief is furnished by Lloyd Hamilton in "Killing Time," which has many high spots of fun, with perhaps the funniest moment the scene at dinner in which a bare lady dances, and smoke issues from the comedian's shirt front and collar as he inadvertently sits on a chair above a chafing dish on the floor.

The author of "The Guilty One" is the guilty one!

"THE GUILTY ONE" AT METROPOLITAN

"The Guilty One" is playing at Grauman's Metropolitan, and is another barrel opus. It begins on Theme 3467, that of the wife neglected by a husband devoted to business, and finishes up on Theme 3468—a murder mystery, with everybody suspected. I really forget who the guilty party was, I got so tired suspecting before we found out.

The only interesting man in the story died early. He was the hevamp played by Crauford Kent. Edward Burns is one of those Conway Tearle substitutes, who needs experience and mellowing. Stanley Taylor, whom we used to like in juvenile roles at the Majestic, is going to be a great little trouper once he learns the film angle, and we shouldn't be surprised if he would turn out to be another Cullen Landis.

Agnes Ayres is so lovely, so deeply sincere, so intelligently clever, that it is to be hoped they will stop wishing these poor stories on her. I kept thinking of the Mona Lisa portrait as I looked at her. Why not give her a historical story built around that cryptically fascinating character? As the wife, she is the only person you believe or care a darn about, except Kent, in the story. They stand out in spite of the poor material.

Here's another case of drab boredom being turned to sweetness and light by a comedy! "Flying Finance," a Jack White comedy, starring Jack Lloyd (all the comedians seem to think there is luck in the name of Lloyd these days) pages the giggles. There is a cyclone sequence that is one of the funniest things in all picturedom.

If I have to listen to any more of these compulsory jazz orchestras, I'm darned if I'm not going to learn to play the saxophone myself! I've got to get even on somebody. California's Native Sons jazz boys don't do a thing for their country.

Creatore's music is another soothing bit; but the dancing number in which a bunch of fat girls dance in a tiger's cage only make you wonder why they kept them fattening so long before they let them dance!

ANDY WILL ATTEND DANCE

Joe Murphy, the Andy Gump of the screen, in a preview of his sketch "The Radio Salesman," will be a feature of the first informal dance to be given by the Ocean Park-Venice Council of the Knights of Columbus, at Crystal Pier, Ocean Park, Thursday evening. Carl Allen and his Rendezvous Orchestra will furnish the music.

COLLEGE BEGINS EXPANSION PLAN

Whittier to Expend $260,000 for Development

Oil Operator's Gift Will Go for Men's Dormitory

Many Other Betterments to be Started at Once

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

WHITTIER, May 4.—Since the inauguration of Dr. Walter F. Dexter as president of Whittier College some eight months ago, the resources of the Quaker college have been increased $260,000. This is to be expended in extension and development work, a program having been already mapped out and begun.

Of the total amount raised $110,000 was made immediately available by the $100,000 John Greenleaf Whittier birthday banquet given at the Ambassador in Los Angeles last winter, when the plates sold at $100 each. This unique method of raising funds for the college was the idea of Dr. Dexter, and many eminent people, among them Gov. Richardson, William Gibbs McAdoo and Madame Schuman-Heink, attended and had part in the program.

DORMITORY BEGUN

Another $100,000 was given the school by A. Wardman, wealthy local oil operator. With this the school is to build a dormitory for men, to be known as "Wardman Hall." Ground has already been broken for the building and it is proposed to have it ready for occupancy at the beginning of the fall semester. This dormitory will accommodate fifty men, and there is to be a spacious lobby or informal assembly-room with huge fireplace, books, trophies and the usual furnishings of a man's den and sitting-room. Paul Smith, dean of men, and Mrs. Smith, will live at the dormitory.

Another improvement now under way at the school is the remodeling of the old administration building. This has been stuccoed to conform with the exterior appearance of the new buildings, which are of concrete. The interior is to be redecorated.

OUTLINES POLICY

Considerable work also has been done at the athletic field; the old board fence has been removed and is to be replaced with a neat wire fence. The roads on the campus are being graded and resurfaced with gravel. This, in addition to the new lawns and ornamental shrubs and trees, will make a pleasing change in the appearance of the campus.

In outlining the policy of the school Dr. Dexter said: "My ambition for Whittier College is that it shall not only be served by its friends, but that it in turn shall serve in two distinct ways: First, by training a student body that shall become socially minded and each of whom shall be sent out into the world with a high desire to render friendly service; second, that the college shall serve the communities of Southern California. We believe if we succeed in the second endeavor we shall also accomplish the first."

VETERAN SURGEON OF CALEXICO TO RETIRE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CALEXICO, May 4.—Dr. William Fawcett Smith, 84 years of age, has announced his retirement after actively practicing medicine and surgery for more than sixty years. Dr. Smith is asserted to have been the youngest surgeon in the Union Army during the Civil War. For several years he was in charge of sanitation work in Porto Rico and later served in similar capacity under Gen. Gorgas on the Canal Zone. He expects to make his residence in Los Angeles.

BARLEY HARVESTING TO START NEXT WEEK

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

CALIPATRIA, May 4.—Harvesting of barley is to begin in this district next week. The barley is asserted to be unusually well headed and the yield is expected to be heavy. The territory in the vicinity of Calipatria is expected to produce at least 80,000 sacks, with the valley total around 300,000 sacks. Demand for barley at present is light. Some of the grain sold in the last week at $1.40 a sack.

ROW AT DANCE IS FATAL

Rancher Asserted to Have Made Self Objectionable, Dies After He and Another Fall Down Stairs

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ONTARIO, May 4.—Arrested shortly before midnight Saturday on a drunk charge after he was alleged to have attempted to force his way into a private dance at the W.O.W. Hall, which resulted in a scuffle in which he fell down stairs and struck his head on the sidewalk, J. R. Kast, a rancher residing at 407 West E street, died early today in his cell at the City Jail.

According to persons attending the dancing party, Kast with Virgil and James Meadows, all roughly dressed and apparently under the influence of liquor, disregarded a no admittance sign. They walked into the hall and stood about watching the dancers. Seeing the rough-looking men, Paul D. Cushing of 317 West E street, who at the time was dancing with his 9-year-old daughter, stepped up to the trio. He explained that it was a private party and asked them to leave. One of the three, according to Cushing and others at the party, replied to the effect that they would leave when they were ready. The men, it is asserted, used profane language. Cushing is then reported to have taken hold of the arm of one of the Meadows and started to escort him to the door, when Kast is alleged to have struck Cushing on the jaw with his fist. The two then grappled and struggled toward the door.

As they reached the head of the stairway they lost their balance and plunged down the entire flight to the sidewalk on Euclid avenue, Cushing being unable to break his hold until they were nearly to the bottom. The police were called and Patrolmen Harry Smith and J. A. Clark responded. They placed Kast in a cell at the City Jail. When an officer visited the jail at 8 a.m. today the man was apparently all right, but about 4 a.m. he was found to be dying. Dr. S. A. Craig was summoned but was unable to do anything for him.

Friends of Kast this evening were attempting to fix responsibility for Kast's death. It was intimated that a complaint was to be sworn to. Kast was 40 years of age, and is survived by a widow and four children. The inquest is to be held tomorrow afternoon at the Rraper mortuary when a representative of the District Attorney's office will be present.

HOTEL GALLERY IS PLUNDERED

Costly Picture Cut from Frame by Thieves at Maryland

[By a "Times" Staff Correspondent.]

PASADENA, May 4.—A valuable painting owned and painted by Orrin White, well-known artist of this city, was cut from its frame and stolen from the Stendahl Art Gallery at the Maryland Hotel yesterday, the police declare.

Two men are believed to have participated in the robbery. One of the pair engaged the gallery attendant in another part of the gallery while his accomplice cut out the painting and made away with it. The painting was done in oil and was a view in Topanga Canyon. It was valued at several hundred dollars.

WIDENING HUNT FOR "MISSING"

Pasadena Police Called on Almost Daily to Help in Finding Lost Ones

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, May 4.—Pasadena is fast becoming known as the city of missing men, for nearly every day the police are notified of some mysterious disappearance. Reports from wives of missing husbands occur most frequently, while missing boys, near the age of sixteen years, are next in numbers, according to police records.

Perhaps the most intensive search for a missing man was that made for G. G. Green, Pasadena Scout executive. All parts of Southern California were searched but no trace of the missing man was found. Only recently Mr. Green wrote to his wife saying he was safe "somewhere in Los Angeles."

Then there was A. E. Hart, a young married man, who went away. He was traced as far as Tia Juana and there the trail was lost.

Today the police were called on to search for Robert C. Fields, 39 years of age, and who resides at 146 North Fair Oaks avenue, and was reported missing by H. R. Bent, 1154 Topeka street. Jacob Miner, 514 Cypress Court, has been missing for two weeks, the police were informed. He is middle-aged. Dan Auld, 15, son of S. H. Auld, 305 Lincoln avenue, rode off on his bicycle last Friday. He has not been seen since.

NECKLACE AND GIRL ARE LOST

Gems Found on Hedge in Altadena; Unrequited Love Affair Revealed

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, May 4.—A woman, prominent in society circles of Altadena, recently found a valuable coral necklace hanging on her front hedge. Numerous telephone calls and considerable investigation revealed the following story.

A young woman was being entertained at the home of friends in Altadena. Here she met a young man who fell in love with her. He endeavored to show his regard by presenting the young woman with an expensive coral necklace. This she refused to accept and he straightway flung it as far as he could. It landed on the hedge.

Now the finder of the discarded jewelr is at loss to know what to do with the article. The young woman has gone to her home in the East and the young man's address is unknown.

Well, youth must have its fling.

BEACH TOWNS IN RAIL FIESTA

Four Communities Join in Electric Line Joyfest

Claus Spreckels Among the Many Honor Guests

Route Opens Ocean Shore to Homeseekers

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, May 4. — Four beach communities joined today in the climax of a four-day celebration over the completion of the San Diego-La Jolla high-speed electric railway, a project which already has had a marked effect upon the development of the territory immediately north of the city.

Ocean Beach, Mission Beach, Pacific Beach and La Jolla participated in an extensive program at Ocean Beach this afternoon. Prominent San Diegans, including Claus Spreckels, vice-president of the San Diego Electric Railway Company; Mayor John L. Bacon, former Representative William Kettner and city officials were guests of honor and made addresses.

MANY SEEK HOMES

The San Diego-La Jolla line went into operation the 1st inst., which day started the celebration concluded today. Rapid growth of the communities along the ocean shore made necessary the extension of the electric railway's lines to La Jolla. When announcement was first made, more than a year ago, that the line would be built, large tracts of unimproved but splendidly located land were subdivided and a rush of home-seekers followed.

All four communities are within the rather far-flung limits of San Diego. Lack of transportation facilities has hindered the development of the beach territory until the present. With the new railway line in operation, building activity is expected to be greatly stimulated.

AMUSEMENT PARK

Mission Beach, a part of which will be transformed into a great amusement center, has built up rapidly in the last year and a number of important enterprises, notably a large bath-house and hotel, have been started at La Jolla. GAMING HALT CUTS CRIME IN CALEXICO

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CALEXICO, May 4.—City Recorder Markey in his monthly report to the City Trustees showed that his office had collected $3265 in fines and forfeitures in April. There were 255 arrests made in the month, mostly for intoxication and reckless driving of automobiles. There was not a single arrest for check forging, pocketpicking or shoplifting. The improvement is declared by Chief of Police Hardwick to be the result of the discontinuance of gambling in Mexicali. Virtually all the bad checks circulated here have resulted from a desire on the part of the check passers to gamble, in the opinion of Chief Hardwick.

MANY BILLS FOR COUNTY TO PASS ON

Record Business is Before Kings at Its May Meeting; Claims Entail $50,000

HANFORD, May 4.—The May meeting, starting tomorrow, of Kings county, will have one of the largest number of bills to consider of any time in its history. Seven hundred claims were in Saturday, approximating $50,000. These figures do not include regular monthly salary warrants or jury fees and mileage. Many of the bills are in connection with the quarantine for foot-and-mouth disease, although this county is free of the disease. The quarantine expenses total $7500 for April.

Kings county has made some relaxation in its cattle quarantine regulations, on advice of the Federal authorities. Twenty-two line riders, guards and dip men have been taken off the south and west boundary lines and the disinfecting vats at the highways entering the county have been abandoned. Farm laborers coming into the county from other sections will not have to undergo disinfection.

Grain, fruit and vegetables continue to be shipped daily out of this uninfected territory. The State Farm Bureau Marketing Association is planning to resume its hog auction sales in the valley. Sales at Hanford, Corcoran, Tulare and Visalia have been announced for this week.

SEA LIONS FOR ZEBRA TEAM

San Diego Zoo Trades Coast Mammals for African Species in Deal With Germany

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, May 4.—Twenty-two California sea lions captured for the San Diego Zoo were crated today for shipment to Hamburg, Germany, where they will be exchanged for a pair of zebras. Zoo officials say this is the largest herd of sea lions ever sent from the Pacific Coast.

Because of the long journey, extreme care is being taken to care for the mammals en route. The shipment will leave over the San Diego and Arizona Railway tomorrow morning for New York, special arrangements having been made with the American Railway Express for transshipment. The sea lions' future home will be in the German Zoological Gardens in Hamburg.

Representatives of Carl Hagenbeck, one of the most famous animal collectors in the world, will supervise the shipment. Hagenbeck will select the two zebras for exchange. Contrary to the general belief, zebras are among the most expensive zoo exhibits, a pair of the animals being valued at $2500.

Word has been received from the National Zoological Garden in Washington that a male Himalayan tayr is being sent to the San Diego Zoo as a mate for the female tayr recently received from the St. Louis Zoo.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

ONTARIO, May 4.—If plans of of Thomas M. Robertson, 19 years of age, had not miscarried, he would have returned to his home in Broken Arrow, Okla., in style. The youth was placed under arrest last evening, however, after he had passed worthless checks amounting to $112.30 at Ontario clothing stores, police assert.

At a shop conducted by Lalone & Lowe, 117 North Euclid avenue, the young man purchased a suit and other articles and gave a check for $58.80 in payment. At another shop owned by Arthur Jackson, 100 South Euclid avenue, he purchased another suit and one or two smaller articles, giving a check in the amount of $53.50, police report.

Some alterations were necessary, however, on the suit bought at the Jackson store and when Robertson returned for his purchase he was placed under arrest, the proprietor having investigated and found he had insufficient funds in the bank on which the check was drawn. It was learned by police that Robertson had the day previous deposited $95 in a local bank and then before making his purchases had personally checked out $75. He told the police he had planned to leave for his Oklahoma home today. He is held in the City Jail for arraignment before Judge George R. Holbrook tomorrow.

RANGE HARB MEETING TODA

deral Expert Will H Hearing at Santa Ana rt Advocates Attach Import to His Report

n Bernardino, Riverside Counties Affected, To

SANTA ANA, May 4.—

s of the project to make Orange county harbor a major port of the Pacific assert that utmost importance in Washington will be attached to the report made by Major D. Ardery, United States engineer district engineer, in charge of the hearing to be held here Monday morning.

"Every organization or individual in San Bernardino, Riverside, Orange counties, with a stake in the game that might add to the support up of action on the part of the Federal government should attend the hearing."

George Peabody, harbor attorney of Newport Beach, today added:

"Every person who is not of his own mind that the harbor is the greatest asset of the county should attend and reserve his judgment until the evidence is in."

GAIN COURAGE

Harbor boosters today found encouragement for their efforts in the announcement from Washington to the effect that Brig. Gen. Harry Taylor, assistant chief of army engineers, has been assigned to succeed Maj.-Gen. Lansing H. Beach, who will retire from active service June 11. Gen. Taylor is personally carefully interested in the Orange county harbor project and received first-hand information again when the Army engineers recently visited the county.

It is expected that harbor advocates will call the attention of the secretary of war to the following points:

The necessity for the improvement of new ports in Southern California to open up new avenues to the sea from interior points and to relieve the congestion now existing at present ports.

FEDERAL INTEREST

The justice of Federal interest in a port upon which the people of Orange county themselves have expended $3,600,000 in public and private funds.

The justice of affording growers in Orange, San Bernardino and Riverside counties an outlet to the sea shorter than is at present route.

The necessity of locating a Southern California new harbor to care for the greatly increased population and the part that a deep-water port will play in such a program.

The opportunity in taking advantage of generous national facilities for the construction of a deep-water port.

There is something about the members of Los Angeles' that has won the Mead—it is wonder-

The speaker was Axel F. Wallenberg, Swedish Ambassador to the United States, who is visiting here on his first visit to the West

Sitting in the lobby of the Biltmore hotel where he is staying, the Swedish Minister discussed the affairs of his countrymen residing in the United States, reforestation, imports and exports, the labor unrest and California fruit, but declined to comment on the Senate investigation, the Japanese exclusion bill, or the Ku Klux Klan.

"This is my first visit to Los Angeles," he said, "but it shall not be last. Yours is a wonderful, diverse city. I am told there are 40,000 of my countrymen here and that might add to the support up of action on the part of the Federal government should attend the hearing."

Ambassador is an ardent lover of reforestation and will make a study of it, while here, he said, long ago realized the necessity of it. Mr. Wallenberg said there is a steady flow of trade between the Pacific coast and his country, the principal importation being dried fruit and grain. Sweden exports large amount of forest products to the Pacific Coast, he said.

Ambassador Wallenberg will remain in Los Angeles about three weeks, going from Los Angeles to San Diego.

FIGHT NEARS ON RAIL CROSSINGS

Two Roads Would Go Over Anaheim Street

City Proposes Another Plan; Hearings Wednesday

Harbor's Transit Future is Believed at Stake

Conflicting applications to be heard Wednesday, the 7th inst., by the State Railroad Commission for permission to cross Anaheim street, Wilmington, constitutes the foundation for what is regarded by members of the Los Angeles City Council and of the Greater Harbor Committee as the most important grade-crossing proceedings instituted within the past decade, or likely to be instituted in the next two decades.

On the outcome is dependent the transportation future of Los Angeles Harbor. "If the Union Pacific and the Santa Fe Railway are permitted to establish themselves on the lines proposed in applications which they already have on file with the commission," said Councilman Allan, chairman of the Council's Public Utilities Committee, yesterday, "unification of transportation facilities at the harbor will be set back at least twenty years.

"As a substitute, the city of Los Angeles is proposing plans which, though not contingent upon unification, will permit it to develop in the future. In other words, the city's plan does not depend on unification, but unification does depend on the city's plan."

By a resolution adopted last week, the Council placed itself on record as strongly indorsing this substitute plan, which was worked out by the Council's joint engineering commission, composed of L. S. Brady, chief engineer of the State Railroad Commission J. W. Ludlow, harbor engineer F. A. Lorenz, chief engineer to the Board of Public Utilities, and Messrs. Leeds and Barnard, consulting engineers to the Greater Harbor Committee.

Also indorsing the plan are the directors of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, the Municipal League, the Los Angeles County Regional Planning Commission, and the Greater Harbor Committee. The City Council of Long Beach has passed resolutions approving the plan and expressing a desire to co-operate with the Union Pacific in getting a new right of way to its important Terminal Island holdings.

The city, following the Allan resolution, asks the Railroad Commission to grant the Santa Fe and the Harbor Board a temporary permit, running two years, with the stipulated understanding that the Santa Fe in that period shall extend its lines into Domingues Creek bottom.

Largest Hat Comes to Los Angeles

Somebody Must Have the Big Head

Giant top-piece ushers in time when winter habiliments are discarded for spring accouterments.

DOFF FELT TO DON STRAW

Men to Blossom Forth in Hay Lids, Traced Back to Noah as Original Inventor

Los Angeles and Southern California will bow today to the new straw hat. Today marks the beginning of Straw Hat Week and the song of the man on the street now is "Off With the Old Hat, on With the New."

Straw hats will be worn on the head this year as usual, and should not be parked in the bathtub, fashion dictators say.

The origin of the straw hat is problematical. There are many versions. One story has it that Noah, standing on the deck of the ark, bareheaded, was caught by a sudden rain and covered his head with a handful of straw, thus conceiving the first idea for a hat of that useful material.

AND THUS HAMLET

If "Hamlet" were alive today his well-known soliloquy might run thusly:

"To wear or not to wear—that is the question;
Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer
The heat and weight of the faithful felt,
Or to take arms against a sea of straws,
And by opposing end them? To wear—to sport
No more the faithful felt; and by a change to say we end,
The heartache and the thousand jokes and jibes,
That old hats are heir to—'tis a consummation
Devoutly to be wished. To buy—to wear—
To wear! Perchance to praise!
Ay, there's the rub."

Among the early purchasers of straw hats was Andy Gump, chinless wonder, and "the peepul's choice" in a now famous fight for a seat in Congress. Andy plans to send a picture of himself wearing his new "California top" to Min as an inducement for her to return.

GIANT ON DISPLAY

Just to prove that Los Angeles does things on a big scale, a straw hat, weighing more than seventy-five pounds, said to be the largest in the world, has been brought to this city and will be on display today and tomorrow in the windows of a large downtown store. The hat is five and one-half feet high, size 40 and has 600 yards of straw braid in it.

Next Thursday afternoon the hat will be paraded through the downtown streets and on May 11, will be awarded to the winner of the "Straw Hat Derby" at Ascot Speedway.

The latest thing in straw hats, it is said, is the type known as the "balloon-tire edge."

QUICK RETURNS ON ELECTION

"Times" to Give Results by Radio, Stereopticon, Phone, Extras

The Times will give election returns tomorrow evening by stereopticon at First and Broadway, by radio from KHJ, The Times broadcasting station, by extra editions during the evening and by telephone to all who call.

The Times has perfected arrangements for completely covering the election in all its contests — Presidential, county and city issues—as rapidly as the votes are counted in each precinct of Los Angeles city, Los Angeles county and the State at large.

Bandits Rifle Cash Register at Oil Station

Driving up to the Shell Oil Company's station in Alameda Boulevard, Compton, late Saturday night, two automobile bandits held up C. R. Taylor, in charge, and rifled the cash register of $60, according to a report made today to the Sheriff's office.

According to Taylor, the men drove up in a Ford coupe, the driver ordering a quart of oil. As Taylor went inside of the station to draw the oil he was followed by the second bandit. Tendering a $5 bill in payment for the oil, the bandit covered Taylor with a gun as he opened the cash register to make the change. The operator was ordered to keep quiet while the gunman rifled the register.

Jumping into the waiting machine, the bandit ordered his companion, whom he addressed as "Frenchy" to "step on the gas." The two drove off in the direction of Los Angeles. A description of the pair was furnished Deputy Sheriff J. L. Harrod.

PARKING REPORT AGREEMENT DUE

After a week of conferences, representatives of the two street-railway companies, the Automobile Club of Southern California, the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and those mercantile interests most affected hope to agree this morning on the final text of the Joint Parking Survey Committee's report to the Public Utilities Board.

The report carries the signatures of all members of the committee, save that of E. E. East, representing the Automobile Club. Speaking for the directors of that body, he concurs in all the recommendations contained in the report, but has not been willing thus far to approve statements of policy which put the committee on record as giving first consideration to public means of transportation over private vehicles.

As the matter now stands, the mercantile interests are willing to agree to modification of the text, if the recommendations, which constitute the constructive portion of the report, remain intact. They much prefer, however, the original draft.

Thief Smashes Store Window, Taking Jewels

Watching for his chance when no policeman was in sight, a bold thief early yesterday morning hurled a stone through a large plate-glass show window in the front of Montgomery Brothers' jewelry store at the intersection of West Seventh and Hope streets and helped himself to an assortment of watches and necklaces which had been left on display over night.

Officer T. M. Coughlin, making his regular rounds, reported that he passed the store at 6:25 a.m. and was three blocks away when he was attracted by the sound of crashing glass. Running back to the scene he discovered that the window had been caved in. The sidewalk was littered with broken glass.

Detective Lieutenants Partin and Brown investigated but found no clew.

SAFE IS SMASHED

Sledge Hammer Used to Break Open Garage Strong Box

Sledge-hammer yeggs removed $116.50 from a safe they broke open in the Oldsmobile Garage at 5732 Sunset Boulevard early yesterday, according to a report made to the police by William J. Schuessler, the manager.

Detectives Taylor and Trosper of Hollywood Division found that the thieves got into the establishment by breaking open a side window. The safe was carried into a rear room and cracked open with sledge hammers.

VENICE GIRL BELIEVED TO BE KIDNAPED

Friend of Family Charges Tourist Took His Car and Red-Haired Miss

Believed by her mother to have been kidnapped, Ruth Vores, 16-year-old Venice girl, was yesterday made the object of a country-wide search by deputy sheriffs. The girl's disappearance was reported by A. H. Freshwater, a motorist en route from Texas to Los Angeles, who asserted that she was last seen in the company of George King, 26 years of age, who, according to Freshwater, drove off with the girl in his machine from Banning Saturday morning. The man and girl were headed for Los Angeles, Freshwater reported.

According to Freshwater, he was motoring here with his family to accept a position when he met up with the Vores family while traveling toward the city. He also had picked up King, a natty salesman, en route. On the way Freshwater drove the Vores car while King and the girl rode in Freshwater's machine. The two cars arrived at Banning Saturday morning. After a brief stop King suddenly drove away with the girl in Freshwater's car. No trace of the couple or the machine, which bore a Texas license plate, has been seen since, Freshwater reported.

The girl was described as being five feet four inches in height and weighing about 130 pounds. She has bobbed, red hair and was attired in khaki knickerbockers.

GOODCELL TO SPEAK AT CLUB LUNCHEON

Rex B. Goodcell, internal revenue collector for this district, will address the Advertising Club of Los Angeles at its regular weekly luncheon at the Biltmore Hotel tomorrow noon.

"Foundation Facts Concerning the Long Continued Prosperity of Los Angeles From the View Point of an Official of the Government," will be the subject of his talk.

The entertainment feature of the program will be a quartet led by Heinrich J. Tandler, leader of the Criterion Theater orchestra, and playing two of Tandler's own compositions, "Canzonette" and "Barcarole."

The quartet is composed of H. J. Tandler, pianist; George Benkert, first violinist; Ed Rotzler, second violinist, and Robert Alter, cellist.

LECTURE ON SOUTHLAND

TRIAL CASES TO BE SPEEDED UP

Homicide Squads Expect to Help Clear Dockets

Preparation to Make Work of Prosecutor Easy

Defendant to Face Court in Month Under Plan

Working in close co-operation the homicide squads of the District Attorney's office and the Sheriff's office, with aid from the same organization in the Police Department, are formulating plans by which it is expected the time in which a defendant is brought to trial will be cut to a minimum.

It was disclosed Saturday that by preparing cases, regardless of prosecution or defense, but with the idea of arriving at the facts, the three organizations intend to have a case so well prepared for trial that when the prosecutor takes it over he will be able to proceed with speed heretofore impossible.

SPEED IS PLANNED

By the arrangement between the offices, Deputy Sheriff Bright, head of the homicide squad in the Sheriff's office, prepares in transcript form the statements of each witness in each homicide case, with an index to the document. This is submitted to Dep. Dist.-Atty. Dennison, who directs the various homicide squads as to evidence, and Capt. Jesse D. Hunter, investigator, who conducts further investigations. This transcript is used in preliminary hearing, or in presentation of a case to the grand jury.

Then, from the testimony of each witness, a synopsis of the case is made and a brief statement made of what each witness will testify to at a trial.

TO HELP COURTS

It was stated that the purpose of preparing cases in this manner is to expedite trials and relieve the crowded court calendars, as advocated by the Crime Commission.

Mr. Dennison stated he believes that by the new system a defendant may be placed on trial within thirty days from the time of his hearing. It is also expected that by eliminating unnecessary details, an information in a case will be filed in Superior Court within three days, instead of ten as required after the defendant has been held to answer.

It was urged that court calendars be heard on Saturday morning, instead of during the week, thus eliminating delays of trials during other week days, when trials have to be postponed until calendars are heard.
